Indian family life on skids

OTTAWA (CP) — Family life on Indian reserves is breaking down under the weight of alcoholism, unemployment and poor living conditions, says a federal report.

Divorces are increasing, suicides by Indians aged 15-24 are three times the national average, death rates among young and middle-aged Indians are two to four times greater and there are more violent deaths.

Juvenile delinquency among Indians is almost three times the national rate while the percentage of Indians in prison is much higher than their proportion of the population.

The report was made public Tuesday by the Indian affairs department and deals with social, economic and political change on and off reserves since 1960.

It was compiled to help Indian and goverment officials deal with Indian Act amendments, assist Indians to define a socio-economic strategy and aid the department in shifting from an administrative to a supportive role.

There are 300,000 status Indians in Canada receiving benefits and protection under the Indian Act. The report does not cover the estimated 500,000 Metis, of mixed-white blood, or the 500,000 non-status Indians.

The report says the Indian population has increased 40 per cent in the last 20 years, creating a greater demand for social services, education, housing and jobs.

Consequently, federal government expenditures for such programs have also been increasing steadily.

Ottawa spent about $240 million on social support programs in 1978-79, up from $85 million in 1970-71.

And more money is needed for housing. The report says 11,000 homes are urgently required but noted that only 2,200 new units are built each year. Almost 20 per cent of reserve houses contain two families and more than 50 per cent have no running water or sewage disposal.

High unemployment rates and the poor social conditions on reserves have forced Indians to move to urban settings.

Alcohol remains a serious problem.

The report says officials working in health services for Indians estimate that between 50 and 60 per cent of their illnesses and deaths are alcohol-related.

Mom charged in tot's death

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A five-day search for a missing one-year-old girl ended Tuesday with the child found dead and the mother charged with second-degree murder.

The mother, Denise Aimola, 19, of Kamloops was taken into custody by RCMP shortly after the baby's body was found in a sage-covered field in this city in south-central B.C.

Pinned to the blanket in which the baby was wrapped was a note which police said was "apologetic in nature" with a signature thought to be a pseudonym.

In a brief court appearance today, the mother was remanded in custody until Monday for psychiatric examination to see if she is mentally fit to enter a plea and to participate in a hearing.

Discovery of the body came soon after the child's father, Sergio Aimola, 21, made a public plea for his daughter's safe return.

Marca Aimola was reported missing Friday.

Aimola, an apprentice mechanic, said he was sleeping less than three metres away from his daughter, in her crib in another room, and he didn't hear or see anyone entering the home through the unlocked front door.

Mrs. Aimola was taken into custody after returning from Kelowna, about 175 kilometres south, where she had been staying since reporting Marca's disappearance, RCMP Insp. Don Render said. She came to the station voluntarily.

Harbor site ruled illegal

In a precedent-setting decision Mr. Justice W.J. Wallace of the B.C. Supreme Court has quashed a city of Victoria rezoning bylaw which permitted the proposed convention centre to be built on the waterfront.

He agreed with Dr. James Martin, who leases property next to the centre site, that the bylaw should be overturned on grounds that the city did not notify property owners and occupants within and next to the zone amended by city council.

Mayor Bill Tindall said today he will ask city council Thursday night to appeal the decision. He said council will also be asked to authorize preparation of another bylaw so the city can again legally rezone the property.

The procedure of introducing the bylaw, notifying owners and tenants within 70 feet of the zone, holding another public hearing and giving it three readings could take another month, he said.

The city did not comply with the requirements of Section 720 of the Municipal Act, which says that owners and occupants of property within a certain distance of the affected property must be notified personally of the upcoming public hearing, Mr. Justice Wallace said.

Mayor Tindall said the city based its actions on a 1976 amendment to the Municipal Act which defined two types of rezoning — only one requiring notification. Mr. Justice Wallace

Romp in park ends in death for local man

An 18-year-old man was killed in Beacon Hill Park just before noon Tuesday when a log he and two companions were trying to flip end over end crashed down on him.

Police said Kenneth Wilson, of 271 Michigan Street, and two 20-year-old friends were in the park playground area when the freak accident occurred.

Police said the three were trying to lift the log into a vertical position so it would flip end over end.

Wilson's two companions managed to scramble free as the log crashed down.

The log was about 7½ metres long and roughly 20 centimetres in diameter.

Union rejects offer, building halt closer

VANCOUVER (CP) — The threat of a province-wide strike in B.C.'s construction industry increased following union rejection Tuesday of an offer by representatives of more than 800 construction companies

The 45,000-member B.C. and Yukon Building and Construction Trades Council — which expects to have strike vote results by July 11 — has rejected an offer from Construction Labor Relations Association of a $3.15-an-hour increase over two years, without cost of living protection.

The council is seeking a $3.50 an hour increase — about 23 per cent over two years — and a cost of living allowance in a two-year agreement.

Also part of the companies' package was a proposed affiliation clause which would have permitted construction workers to refuse to work at job sites employing non-union people.

The clause would protect council affiliates' jobs from invasion by right-to-work groups — a movement which is absorbing much of the construction industry contracts in Alberta and parts of the U.S.

But council president Roy Gautier said the offer does not go far enough.

The unions are also seeking language in their contracts which would permit workers to stop work at any job sites where unions not affiliated with the 17-member building trades council are working.

The council has been engaged in a lengthy jurisdictional battle with the International Woodworkers of America because its members have been engaged in the construction of new sawmills.

The trades feel that work belongs to them and conceivably the protective clause they are seeking in their contracts would allow them to shut down a site where there were IWA people doing such work.

Chuck McVeigh, president of the contractors association, said employers have given in to the request that building trades members can refuse to work beside non-union people.

Higher inflation, no growth in '80

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conference Board in Canada says the latest forecasts are more pessimistic about the performance of the economy this year.

The results of a survey released today show most experts expect no real growth in the economy in 1980. The average forecast for inflation is 10.1 per cent, slightly higher than expected at the beginning of the year.

Real growth in 1981 is estimated at an average of two per cent, an indication that few forecasters believe conditions will improve markedly in the near future.

The surveys were conducted between April 22 and May 12 and reflect large increases in U.S. interest rates during the first quarter of the year. The board says that meant both higher rates in this country and reduced demand in the U.S. for Canadian exports.

The average forecast of the experts says the unemployment rate this year should be eight per cent, down marginally from January predictions. Corporate profits are seen as slightly stronger with an average increase of four per cent. Predictions about the merchandise trade surplus are up a bit at $3.2 billion. And housing starts are expected to be 168,000 units, down from January forecasts of 182,000.

About half of the forecasters assumed crude oil prices will rise at least $4 a barrel this year. The actual increase will depend on the outcome of talks between Ottawa and the producing provinces.

Food prices are expected to rise slightly faster than the over-all consumer price index.

Labor costs are likely to grow somewhat slower, but productivity is expected to fall.

Import prices could increase by 14 per cent, depending on inflation in other countries and foreign exchange rates.

The board expects a modest growth in the money

Playgirl going to the dogs

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Full-page newspaper advertisements by Playgirl, the women's magazine featuring nude male centerfolds, have been whetting appetites for weeks.

The magazine promised its August centerfold would be "one of America's beloved stars of family motion pictures whose handsome profile and heroic exploits have thrilled audiences around the globe."

Speculation has been running high. And the newspaper ads headlined "Grin and Bare It!" only fuelled the mystery.

Well, the August issue of Playgirl is off the presses, and sprawled on his back atop white satin sheets is the mystery celebrity — Benji — the canine motion picture star.

THREE-PART SERIES on street kids and their problems brought MacMillan Bloedel journalism award and $500 to Victoria Times' reporter Derek Sidenius. Sidenius, left, is shown receiving certificate from MB chairman Calvert Knudsen at awards dinner Tuesday night in Vancouver. Sidenius has been with the Times since September, 1973. New nurse code to clarify strikes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian nurses, meeting here, resolved Tuesday to rewrite a section of their code of ethics dealing with withdrawal of service during strikes.

Sister Simone Roach of Nova Scotia, author of the new code of ethics, said a committee which will be formed at the direction of a convention resolution will change the section because it was open to misinterpretation.

A sentence in the section reads: "When a nurse is working under conditions which violate justice, the withdrawal of need services to patients as a means of resolving such injustice, is unethical."

Most of the 1,000 nurses at the meeting knew the clause condemned total withdrawal of services and not strike action in which emergency and other vital services are maintained, Sister Roach said.

The section will be changed so the code cannot be used against nurses in strike situations, she said.

The code was drawn up to replace one used by the International Council of Nurses.

Universite de Montreal labor analyst Roland Foucher told the convention a survey of Quebec nurses showed most saw themselves as employees and not as professionals.

If hospitals wish to have their nurses see themselves as professionals, they will have to change their management practices, Foucher said.

Professional groups will have to reflect concerns and needs of their members and be able to wield power in order to prevent replacement by trade unions, he said.

Professional nursing groups must work together with bargaining agents to ensure the strongest voice possible for nurses when changes are made in the health care system, said Louise Lemieux-Charles of the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario.

"I do not deny that the collective bargaining movement has created conflict for nurses who view it as being contrary to a professional ethos of altruism and individualism," he said.

"However, many sociologists and nurses have written of the importance of work setting influencing the professional's behavior. It would seem to me that the nursing unions may in some cases be more accessible and perhaps more effective than professional associations in situations where nurses experience conflicts of interest between their accountability to the profession and their responsibility to their employer."

Sue Rothwell, former president of the Registered Nurses Association of B.C., was elected first-vice president of the national association for a two-year term.

Rothwell takes office today, along with new CNA president Shirley Stinson of Alberta. Helen Preston Glass of Manitoba became CNA president-elect by acclamation, and will take office in 1982.

BNA claim likely soon

LONDON (CP) — Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said today he hopes to make proposals to Britain in the fall or early next year on constitutional reform.

As he emerged after a 2½-hour working luncheon with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Trudeau told reporters he "assured her I would be meeting the premiers in September after a full summer of work and that we hope to come either in the fall or next year with proposals for, I hope, a final recourse to the British Parliament to end this situation."

Trudeau said he did not discuss how Britain might respond if the provinces and the federal government cannot agree on methods to bring the constitution, a British act, to Canada.

He said he is optimistic about resolving the situation under which the 113-year-old British North America Act has to be amended in Britain.

"I didn't ask her to speculate on any other hypothesis.

"I told her I was a Liberal and therefore optimistic and that everything would come up roses in September."

Mrs. Thatcher is a Conservative.

However, Trudeau would not rule out the possibility there could be difficulties in getting British consent to send the constitution to Canada should there be disagreements between Ottawa and the provinces.

Justin's a gent

FP News Service

VATICAN CITY — When the wooden doors of the Papal library opened and the prime ministerial party was signaled to enter, eight-year-old Justin Trudeau, wearing a pair of blue suede sneakers, looked up at a black-robed cleric and said, "I don't want to go in first."

Pope John Paul Tuesday granted a 50-minute private audience with Prime Minister Trudeau hours after he arrived in Rome from Venice.

Although slightly bemused by the powerful figure in the starched white robe, Justin listened quietly as the Pope told him he had the same name as one of the Catholic church's great saints, and he was obviously pleased when the Pope presented him with gifts — rosaries and holy medals to take home to his two younger brothers.

Justin's gentlemanly conduct was in contrast to that of another world leader's child — Amy Carter — who angered Italians with her rather bratty behavior when she and her presidential parent visited the Vatican prior to the Venice economic summit on Sunday.

apparently decided the legislation as worded doesn't mean what the legislature intended, he added.

City solicitor Jakob de Villiers had argued last week when the Vancouver justice heard the case here that there were two types of rezoning. The case in point was the second kind which did not require notification.

It was advertised in the paper but he admitted the city did not notify owners individually.

The city earlier this year added public buildings to the list of permitted uses in the CH-3 (commercial harbor zone) around the Inner Harbor, to permit construction of the convention centre and make some existing buildings conform to the bylaw.

De Villiers claimed this was not changing land from one zone to another zone, but the judge disagreed.

De Villiers said today the ruling establishes a precedent.

Mac-Blo awards

VANCOUVER (CP) — Moira Farrow, a feature writer at The Vancouver Sun, and Beverley Dalton of the Kamloops Daily Sentinel each won $1,000 prizes in MacMillan Bloedel Ltd's 22nd annual journalism awards announced Tuesday.

The award paid tribute to Sidenius for outstanding writing, journalistic initiative, public service and contributing to the understanding of important issues.

Ian Fraser of The Vancouver Sun received the third award of $250 for a series on the B.C. Resources Investment Corp.

Dalton won in the under-25,000 circulation group for stories on the forest industry.

Vets to get all of $35 raise

OTTAWA (CP) — War veterans will be entitled to the $35-a-month increase in guaranteed income supplement approved by Parliament last month, the veterans affairs department announced Tuesday.

The department said the increase, effective July 1, will not result in a veteran's allowance being reduced as is usually the case when he receives additional income for other sources.

The release also said a single veteran, or a veteran's widow, now will be allowed to earn up to $2,100 without the allowance being affected.

Firemen laud WCB change

The 2,500-member B.C. Professional Firefighters Association is generally pleased with recently-announced changes to Schedule B of the Workers Compensation Act but has a few questions to ask.

Board chairman Dr. Adam Little announced the changes to the schedule last Friday.

Not included was a proposal, hotly contested by the firefighters' association, that the schedule cover heart attacks to firefighters only when they occur within 48 hours of a fire or other unusual stress.

However, the board went ahead with its plan to drop specific coverage for firefighters for chronic lung disease.

Association president Terry Erskine said in an interview Tuesday the firemen will be seeking a meeting with board officials and attempt to get clarification in writing of a number of points.

Included in the firefighters' list of questions are the following:

—Will there be retroactive coverage for those affected by the changes;

—Will retired firemen be covered;

—Will firemen's past claims be reviewed in light of the changes.

The association also wants to know if it will be getting some financial asistance from the WCB to help cover the expenditure of $18,000 for a 68-page report from the firemen on the WCB's initial proposals for amending Schedule B.

The schedule lists the industrial diseases for which the presumption is given in favor of the workers if they contract the given diseases under stipulated working conditions.

However, Erskine said the WCB says lung coverage will be covered.

Rogers to probe Nechako

Environment Minister Stephen Rogers said Tuesday he will investigate whether the B.C. government has legal authority to order the Aluminum Company of Canada to increase water levels on the Nechako River.

Rogers' statement in the legislature was prompted by Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) who said the province has the legal right because of a clause in the Industrial Development Act — the legislation that originally allowed Alcan to dam the Nechako River for its Kemano powerhouse.

The clause referred to by Howard says fisheries must be protected in any agreement signed under the Industrial Development Act.

Currently, Alcan and the federal department of fisheries are negotiating over the river's levels, Rogers said.

Corporation block

Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Tuesday he will ensure municipalities will no longer be able to set up their own development corporations.

The move follows an investigation of Langley City and its development corporation.

Vander Zalm says the NDP brought in legislation allowing municipalities to set up corporations which could buy into other businesses, run businesses or buy and sell land.

Murder charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police have charged a 26-year-old logger with second-degree murder in the death of his 45-year-old wife. Donna Hamilton's badly-beaten body was found after the woman's husband, Michael Taylor, went to a hospital early Tuesday and said he had found his wife in a pool of blood at their apartment in the city's West End.

$3,000 to victim

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 64-year-old Vancouver woman who was punched in the face and suffered a dislocated finger when a man was stealing her purse has been awrded $3,000 under the Criminal InjuryCompensation Act. The award was among 27 totalling $109,924 given out in May by the Workers' Compensation Board which administers the act.

Runway overshot

FORT NELSON (CP) - A CP Air 737 jet overshot the runway on takeoff Tuesday but there were no injuries and no damage to the aircraft, a company spokesman said. The spokesman said a bird was sucked into one of the jet's engines, causing a power loss, and the takeoff was aborted.

Rent office help likely: Nielsen

The under-manned B.C. rentalsman's office should have no trouble getting additional financing from the provincial government so more staff can be hired, Consumer Affairs Minister Jim Nielsen said Tuesday.

Rentalsman Jim Patterson has complained that he is losing staff because of the heavy workload and has had to shunt aside a number of minor complaints so he can handle the major problems.

Nielsen said a priority system must be established, but he thinks the government will provide additional money.

He said the government already has budgeted an additional $250,000 for staffing.

"It really doesn't go a long way when you're hiring people and it may represent a relatively small number of people," the minister admitted.

"But if we need them, I'll certainly support his request for additional funding."

Red tape stops two firms from locating in B.C.

Restrictive government regulations — both federal and provincial — have prevented two high-technology U.S. firms from establishing in B.C., Science Minister Pat McGeer said Tuesday.

Two of the largest U.S. manufacturers of large-scale integrated circuits used primarily for computers decided not to locate in B.C. in favor of more competitive sites, McGeer said.

He said one wanted to locate in Surrey and another chose Mission in the Fraser Valley.

"But each decided to locate elsewhere because they felt conditions in B.C. and in Canada were not competitive with conditions in other parts of North America and the world."

The firms would have provided 5,000 jobs in a high-wage, clean, high growth industry," he said.

McGeer has made several visits to the industry-clogged Silicon Valley in California during the last two years trying to encourage high-technology industries to locate future facilities in B.C.

"Many of these firms are growing at a rate of 30 to 50 per cent a year," he said.

McGeer said the firms' decision to go elsewhere was a great disappointment because of his work trying to get them to come to B.C.

He declined to name the firms, saying he hoped conditions will improve enough to attract future expansion.

Every time an approach is made to these industries, McGeer said, governments learn more about their own shortcomings.

"We've got some work to do in this province and in this country in order to put ourselves on a competitive basis for manufacturing — we've got a lot to learn in Canada," he said.

DEAD WHALE is inspected by beachcombers near Ucluelet. The 11-ton sperm whale washed up on Long Beach in Pacific Rim National Park. Officials say the giant mammal's back muscles were severed and speculate that it died after being hit by a ship. Teeth and jawbone have been removed for testing.

McCarthy stopped deal: MLA

Deputy Premier Grace McCarthy has secretly rescinded a 1974 agreement with the city of Vancouver which provided $2.1 million for open space in the city's downtown core, Emery Barnes (NDP — Vancouver Centre) charged Tuesday.

Barnes said McCarthy cancelled the agreement so the money could be used for the new trade and convention centre.

McCarthy denied that the rescinding, signed May 5, was done secretly, saying it was requested by the city.

The agreement, reached in 1974 by the city and the then-NDP government on an exchange of court house sites, called for part of the $2.1 million purchase price to be used for a civic square in Vancouver.

Village threatened by dam collapse?

An NDP MLA said Tuesday that a dam in northwestern B.C. is in danger of collapse.

Al Passarell (Atlin) said the dam at Long Lake, owned by Cominco Ltd., could threaten a mining road and the village of Hyder, Alaska, just west of the B.C. town of Stewart, about 500 kilometres northwest of Victoria.

Passarell called for an emergency debate in the legislature, saying he was acting on concerns expressed, not by his own constituents, but by nearby residents of Alaska.

Deputy Speaker Walter Davidson agreed to look into the debate request and report back to the house.

Passarell said later he has received phone calls from some of Hyder's 200 residents expressing concern that their village may be flooded by a 13-metre tidal wave if the dam gives way or if Cominco goes ahead with plans to dynamite it.

But Cominco spokesman Jim Cameron said Tuesday night the fears are unfounded because in the unlikely event the 34-year-old dam collapses, it would merely send a metre-high crest of water to Hyder and Stewart, an amount which wouldn't cause flooding.

He said Cominco officials are monitoring the dam on a 24-hour basis and are in radio contact with officials from Granduc Mines to alert them if water threatens a road used by mineworkers.

Cameron said Cominco originally planned to breach the dam with a three-metre hole, allowing water to drain away. But warm weather led to a buildup of meltwater and the dam filled, making this impossible.

He said it's hoped that the 35-metre-long concrete dam, built to supply power to the Big Missouri gold mine in 1938, will be dismantled by October.

Needs of today

Rentalsman Jim Patterson, obviously a first-rate politician in his own right, has made public plenty of evidence to back up his claim that the whole rentalsman system is "collapsing" because of the great increase in workload. He talked of staff members having to take time off for stress-related health problems, of lowering staff morale, and of some cases being delayed because of lack of staff.

Patterson says that only "minor" cases, involving small amounts of money or repairs, are being shunted aside because of the workload. Even a small amount of money, however, may mean a great deal to a tenant living below the poverty line or a landlord struggling to make ends meet. These cases should be heard just as expeditiously as those involving larger sums.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Jim Nielsen says he is sympathetic to the rentalsman's concerns and will support him in efforts to get more staff and money. He notes that an extra $250,000 has already been provided this year. The money, however, is not nearly enough when most of the new funds are needed for rentalsman's officers, a reasonably well-paid job. Assuming that salaries and benefits for each new staff person totalled $20,000 per year, the sum would provide for only 12 new officers this year. Patterson says he needs at least 40 to take care of the workload.

When the government provides the needed extra funds, however, it should not fall into the trap of making all the new officers permanent civil servants. Patterson himself is convinced that the main reason for the huge increase in workload is the present low vacancy rate in major centres.

A low vacancy rate means an increase in militancy among both landlords and tenants, he says. Because they know they will have difficulty finding alternate accommodation, tenants tend to fight for their rights through the rentalsman's office rather than simply move. Landlords know they are taking little risk of losing tenants by being strict with them because the chances are good the tenants won't find another place to go.

When the vacancy rate rises, the number of complaints will probably drop.

If that is the case, the workload a few years down the road might not be sufficient to justify the number of officers that are needed now.

If the government hires the new staff on a renewable one-year contract basis, it will meet today's needs and not have an unnecessary financial burden in the future.

Over-regulated MPs

Governments at all levels are repeatedly accused of over-regulating the lives of the citizens they represent.

Now a case has arisen in which the federal Parliament appears to be over-regulating its own members.

Pat Carney, Conservative MP for Vancouver Centre. Ms. Carney is now boycotting sittings of the House of Commons to protest the refusal of the Commons to allow her 15-year-old son to fly free to Ottawa to visit her six times a year.

The regulators of Ottawa have provided a series of rules governing airplane travel between an MP's home constituency and Ottawa.

Briefly stated, the rules allow each MP 52 free round trips annually home to his or her constituency. They also allow the MP to transfer six of those trips to his or her spouse, so the spouse can visit Ottawa instead of the MP returning home.

Carney, however, is divorced and a single parent. She wants to transfer her spouse's trips to her son. The regulations don't allow that.

Those whose job it is to write regulations can doubtless see a raft of pitfalls if they give in on this point. If children are allowed to use the free flights, why not an MP's parents? Or his brother? Or, worst of all, a member of the opposite sex to whom he is not married?

A more pertinent question, however, is why should the Commons as a whole feel an overpowering need need to regulate the use of the airline passes? Why not simply allow each MP to use the six passes a year as he or she sees fit?

After all, if an MP wants to bring his wife and his five children to Ottawa once a year, instead of his wife six times, that really shouldn't be of any concern to the rest of the House.

A few MPs might abuse the privilege, but if MPs were required to disclose publicly to whom they gave the passes, the voters could decide whether they approved.

And the House of Commons could get on to more important tasks.

Searching for a consensus

OTTAWA — Sometimes, as you are walking along the street being a layman, you probably wonder why in the world something happened, and what it all meant, and marvel that there are people who actually know when you quite clearly haven't the slightest idea.

It was that way with me and interest rates. The CBC morning news stated clearly that the Bank of Canada central bank rate had fallen to 10.67 per cent Thursday — meaning it had fallen 5½ percentage points in less than two months.

I read a newspaper which told me things have been even wilder in the United States — banks that were charging their best customers 20 per cent interest in April are now charging them 12 per cent, or about the same as they had been charging them before interest rates began rocketing early in the year.

Dampen inflation

I was not completely uninformed in this area, having actually written a story during the takeoff explaining that American interest rates were soaring because the American government wanted to dampen people's voracious appetite to spend, spend, spend, by making it harder to borrow money.

When people stopped trying to buy everything they saw, the rate of inflation would start falling and the cost of living would quit going up so relentlessly.

If that was the reason interest rates went up so quickly, then why did they come back down so quickly less than two months later?

And what was accomplished in the meantime?

Just what you were wondering, right?

So on behalf of FP News Service readers everywhere I marched determinedly to work and called Gerald Bouey, governor of the the Bank of Canada, and demanded an explanation.

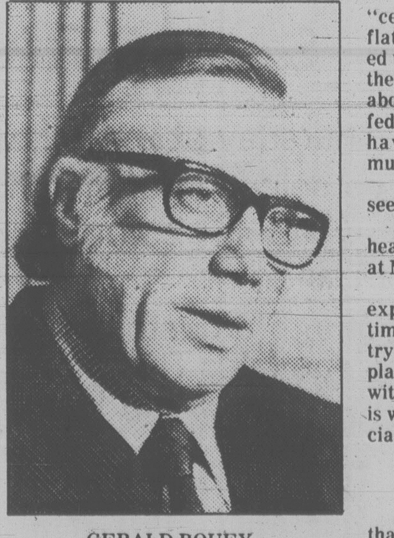
Bouey said Canadian rates had risen because American rates had risen and American rates had risen because the Americans had been concerned about the inflationary psychology.

Why they had gone up so quickly and then down so quickly was something I would have to ask the Americans, he said, conceding in parting that yes, "it may look a little unusual when people sit down to write the history of our times."

No further ahead, I turned to a list of respected and senior Canadian economists, the people financial writers call for comment on matters of great economic import.

Peter Martin, chief economist at the Toronto investment firm of McLeod, Young and Weir, said the escalation of interest rates had indeed made sense in the pursuit of a lower inflation rate.

"They had tried tightening the system twice, and gradually it became clear that they were going to have to hit it with a meat axe sooner or later."



GERALD BOUEY
. . . can't explain it either

The rates had come tumbling down because the U.S. economy had "completely collapsed" in April.

Temporarily, he said, the tactic had worked — he expected inflation rates of eight or seven per cent or even lower to be forthcoming, although probably in the long run inflation would come raging back.

Doug Peters, vice-president and chief economist at Toronto-Dominion Bank, was not nearly as understanding about the rate increases, and in fact called them "unnecessary, ill-conceived and pretty ridiculous."

He said the short-lived rate increases will have only a slight impact on the rate of inflation, but a devastating effect on the economy, which he expected to go into recession for two years now, partially because of the tight money policy reflected by the interest rates bump.

In two years he expected Canada and the United States would be coming out of that recession and "we'll probably still have a pretty substantial rate of inflation."

Au contraire, according to Ben Gestrin, chief economist over at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Gestrin said the increases had "certainly put a real damper on inflationary expectations." He expected the rate of inflation would drop in the United States, and perhaps hold about even in Canada because the federal government will eventually have to face the inevitability of much higher oil prices.

"So far, so good," he said. "It seems to be succeeding."

Not at all, thought Jack Weldon, head of the department of economics at McGill University in Montreal.

"You don't change inflationary expectations in short intervals of time." It had been pretentious even to try with interest rates. "Trying to play psychiatrist to the whole nation with such crude tools as interest rates is wildly beyond our knowledge of social behavior."

All theatrics

Yes, for the first time he expected that the rate of inflation would at least temporarily decline. But that was because the American economy had gone into recession — pushed by tight monetary, fiscal and regulatory policy, and had nothing to do with the "theatrics" of trying to change people's habits through pushing up interest rates.

What the government should be doing to curb inflation, he contended, was get to its root — the energy problem — and do things that would leave people no other choice than to drive small cars and insulate their houses.

The list of experts is a long one, and I would have called still more on your behalf. But I thought once I got this kind of consensus, I should rush it into print.

Now you know.

Subsidizing foreign culture

OTTAWA — Did you know that the federal government spends as much to subsidize the distribution of American culture across this country as the budgets of all of its cultural agencies, the CBC excepted, combined?

This intriguing case example of the familiar phenomenon of the government's left hand not knowing what its right hand is doing is contained in the report Spending Tax Dollars, just published by the Carleton University School of Public Administration.

In 1980-81, the current financial year, Ottawa plans to spend $185 million on all of the agencies, from the Canada Council to the National Film Board and from the National Arts Centre to the National Museums, whose purpose it is to entertain and to edify Canadians.

A tidy sum

This is a tidy sum all right. But it is no larger than the amount Ottawa spends, indirectly, under-the-table, and without realizing what it is doing, in promoting the distribution of non-Canadian culture to compete with the work of its own high-minded agencies.

According to the Carleton report, "The 400 million magazines brought into this country pay in the range of $100-200 million less than the true cost of postal processing."

The report goes further — too far in my own judgment — and claims that the Post Office "provides direct and indirect subsidies of approximately $750 million to U.S. periodicals distributed in Canada."

This claim is based on the premise of "lost advertising revenues" brought about by the subsidization of U.S. (and some British and European) magazines. The report points out that although Canadians spend as much on culture as do Americans, advertising revenues in Canada represent only 1.2 per cent of our gross national product compared to two per cent in the U.S.

Here, the Carleton authors are winging things a bit. Many of those missing advertising dollars have been lost to television rather than to magazines. Many Canadians still would subscribe to American magazines, and advertisers therefore still advertise in them, even if the postal rates imposed on them, and therefore their subscription rates, were to be increased.

Beyond a doubt, though, the Post Office subsidizes the shipment of magazines and of newspapers. Canadian periodicals benefit from the same low rates as do imported ones, but suffer in terms of service because the U.S. periodicals are bulk mailed. "The Toronto to Vancouver service for American imports normally takes five days," the Carleton report notes, "For small Canadian periodicals paying comparable rates, two to three months."

Two separate issues are intertwined here. The first is whether anyone who mails anything ought to get any subsidy at all. The Post Office's deficit this year will be $425 million. This amounts to a "regressive" subsidy, paid out of general taxes by the average householder to the benefit of the corporations of all kinds who account for more than 80 per cent of the Post Office's business (Christmas cards now are the only really big item of personal mail.)

The second issue is whether the Post Office ought to be subsidizing the distribution of non-Canadian culture.

Obviously, it ought not to be. As obviously, the Post Office has no business deciding who should use the mails for what purposes, from love letters to the unlovely stuff that comes in plain brown paper wrapping. "However much they frustrate the government's cultural objectives," the Carleton report comments, "the actions of the Post Office do make sense in terms of the administrative and financial needs of the department."

Tried 10 years ago

To make cultural sense match administrative sense wouldn't be difficult. The Post Office ought to charge the full rate to all periodicals, whether American, Afghanistanian or Canadian. Then, as a matter of cultural policy, the Secretary of State's Department ought to subsidize the shipment of Canadian periodicals, either at their present rate or even at a lower one by using part of the $100-200 million "saved."

This solution neither is new, nor is it mine. A decade ago, Postmaster General Eric Kierans, to whom I then was executive assistant, tried to apply it as part of a program to eliminate the Post Office deficit. At the time, Kierans couldn't overcome the squeamishness of Canadian publishers about being subsidized — directly. Nor could he overcome the cabinet's lack of political will.

Two differences between 1970 and 1980 may be enough now to make a political difference. During the years in-between, the Post Office's operating deficit has grown tenfold. Also, a subsidy is the only way Canadian publishers can escape having to pay, year by year, higher rates to compensate the Post Office for revenue losses caused, mostly, by rival American periodicals.

Dangerous road

In regards to the lack of pedestrian crosswalks and a traffic light on the Gorge Road:

Heaven knows how many times myself and my 17-month-old son have come close to leaving this world, while risking our necks trying to cross the road.

The one and only crosswalk in the area in front of the Gorge Hospital is completely ignored by the passing traffic many of whom are travelling at speeds above 40 miles an hour. We have on occasion been almost swept off the curb by cars who are taking advantage of a "straight stretch," namely the absence of a traffic light.

We are in desperate need of a controlled crossing between Washington and Harriet.

I don't want to die, neither does my son or any other member of my family; nor do we want to see the inevitable happen before the city is stirred into doing something about the situation. After all, a death is usually what it takes, isn't it, but I don't want to be the statistic. — Mrs. G. Mar, 202 - 129 Gorge Road East.

Color of signs

As a tenant in the Bill Hartley Agencies building I was interested in Alderman Bob Wright's comment that Hartley had not lived up to his promise to respect the historic nature of the building, (Times, June 18). Had Mr. Wright visited the building he would have found the following changes since Bill Hartley acquired the building some six months ago:

— The oak door at the main entrance which was in terrible shape has been restored and more work will be done on it.

— The beautiful oak fireplace in the former bank manager's office was covered with several layers of paint and is now in its original condition.

— Work has been done to prevent further deterioration of the oak counters until they can be restored.

— The upper floor rooms which had been allowed to deteriorate are now in process of being restored.

More exterior work is planned for this summer, but years of neglect cannot be reversed overnight. It will, however, be reversed gradually.

Now for the signs that seemed to upset Mr. Wright. They fall into three categories — Blencoe election signs, Hartley temporary signs and Hartley permanent signs.

During the federal election Blencoe rented the upper floor of the Hartley building, and like every political candidate, he covered the place with signs. As with all election signs, his were designed for visual impact rather than artistic appeal. Following the election those signs were removed.

When Bill Hartley bought the building several temporary signs were put up to identify the location; some of them are still up. The temporary signs provided identification while a craftsman was employed to create permanent hand-carved signs using, wherever possible, the original Bank of Commerce signs by restoring and rearranging the letters and carving new letters to fill the gaps.

Ald. Wright's concern about the present appearance of one small building that is being restored seems strangely inconsistent with his strong support of a convention centre in a location that would destroy one of the most attractive scenes in Victoria. Could it be that he is less concerned about the appearance of our city than he is with his political differences with Alderman Blencoe? Or could it be that the temporary Hartley signs are in NDP, rather than Socred, colors? — Harold B. Wilson, 2420 Douglas Street.

Misleading quotes

Many critics of the Trade and Exhibition Centre on Wharf Street have quoted the Clack Report in order to prove their case.

This is misleading in that the Clack Report actually wanted a bigger project on the site.

I quote from the report: "Wharf Steet between Yates and the Causeway has to be closed."

"The provincial government can apply its need for office accommodation in Victoria as a planning tool by designating the area as a preferred one for government-office space expansion . . ."

He goes on to recommend "a density not exceeding 3:0". That means three feet of floor space to one foot of land.

The city now only allows two feet of floor space to one foot of land.

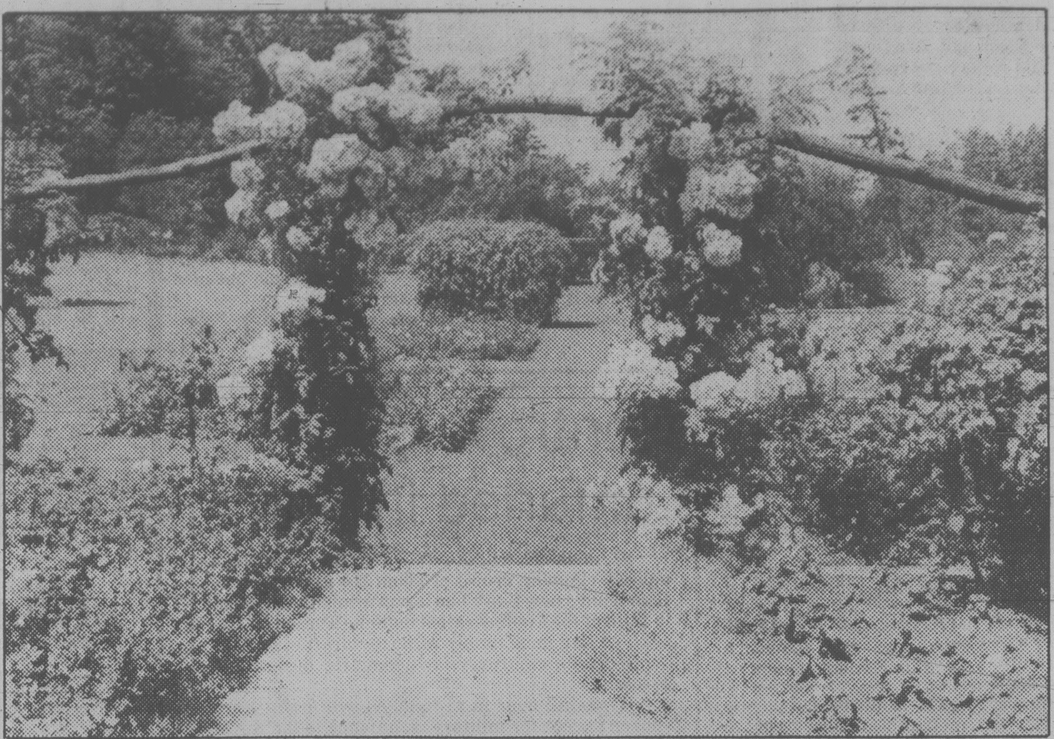
However, the proposed centre is only about one-half foot of floor space to one foot of land, or about 25 per cent of the allowable density.

The Clack Report then lists acceptable building uses. These include: residential accommodation, hotel-apartment, hotel, office accommodation, cinema, club, meeting hall, tourist-oriented functions, underground parking and services.

To put all this in real terms, the Clack Report would prefer a building such as the one currently being built by Sam Bawlf — but 50 per cent larger.

In spite of the Clack Report, I would think that most Victorians who are serious about saving Old Town would find the proposed centre not only acceptable but highly desirable. — Ald. Bill McElroy, City of Victoria.

A man who makes beauty



Early Butchart's Gardens scene . . . a 10-cent tip from Rockefeller

By DENNY BOYD
The Vancouver Sun

As the oak grows from the acorn, Raoul Robillard's roots in western Canada's rich soil began with a nosegay of prairie wildflowers and grew into the kaleidoscope miracles of Butchart's Gardens.

Still growing, this remarkable 83-year-old man, so full of charm and wonderful stories, was at his ease in the contemporary trendiness of Viva restaurant one night last week as the B.C. Society of Landscape Architects gathered to present him with a striking silver medal for the 70 years he has devoted to the beautification of our province.

Some men become known as builders and developers for the franchised hamburger outlets they plant in our neighborhoods, others by the stark columnar residential units they erect against our skylines, monuments to the facility of the building block. Raoul Robillard gave us flowers and shrubs, family yards bejewelled with trees. He predates our finest architects, building with living components, rather than brutish lumps of hard minerals. He is, too, it is sad to consider, one of a threatened breed of artists. We look around our beautiful city and realize that, while we weren't looking, the trees planted by Robillard in the West End have been replaced by high rises, the ground plants gone to concrete parking ramps.

Silver medal

The silver medal presented to Robillard was created and crafted by sculptor George Norris, and the citation reads, "To Raoul Robillard, for his legacy of enhancement and improvement in our landscape over this 70 years."

He was born in 1897 in the Normandy village of Goulet. In March of 1905 the family of four arrived in Red Deer, Alberta, carrying suitcases and $35 worth of French gold.

At the age of eight, Raoul was given his first job. He helped his mother pick wildflowers in the Red Deer Valley and made them into bouquets. The Robillard family spoke no English, but there was a Mrs. Michener in the city who adopted them and took them, with their bouquets, to the Alberta Hotel. Mrs. Michener's son, a boy named Roland, helped to carry the load. The hotel bar was jammed with cowboys, dressed in chaps, 10-gallon hats and empty gunbelts, since firearms had recently been banned within the city.

Mrs. Michener called the hard-drinking cowboys to the bar's swinging doors and they quickly bought up all the flowers, to the surprise of an eight-year-old French boy who had a different image of cowboys. It was not, of course, explained to him that the whooping cowboys took the bouquets as gifts for the delighted ladies of the neighborhood brothel. "That," chuckles Robillard, "was the first $10 my family made on Canadian soil." The little Roland Michener boy was later to do quite well in Canadian politics.

They moved to Vancouver in 1908, to a rented house at 929 Seymour, the present site of Dominion Motors. The father was hired as a consultant and work supervisor by General McRae, who was building Hycroft House at 16th and Granville, which is now Hycroft Towers. Moving to Victoria, the family found immediate acceptance, the mother as a caterer, the father as a gardener tending the estate grounds of the Pembertons, the McBrides, the Todds, the Arbuthnots, the Kers and the Rithets.

The boy and his father were the landscape architects in the modern world's most famous gardens, Butchart's, built near the lime-rock quarry discovered by cement-man Robert Pim Butchart.

Young Raoul had been taking violin lessons and was about to join the Empress Hotel house band led by a young man named William (Billy) Tickle. But there was a delay and Raoul decided to follow his father's craft. It took 2½ years to complete the 25-acre Butchart project and, as well as the beauty of the flowers, Robillard recalls the tragedy of the coolie laborers.

The importation of coolie labor was practised as an investment by many Victoria families. Each Chinese coming into the country had to pay a $500 head tax, lent to them by a contractor who acted as the bagman for the Victoria families, who put up the money.

Picked UBC site

The coolies, and there were up to 250 of them working at Butchart's, were paid 50 cents a day, less their wardrobe, lodgings, food and payback on the $500 loan. As Robillard recalls, "They worked a 10-hour day, six days a week and under the terms of their contracts, it would take 20 years to pay back their loan."

The King of Siam visited Butchart's soon after it opened. So did billionaire John D. Rockefeller, who was so impressed with the beauty of the place that, after much deliberation, he gave Raoul 10 cents.

There were other great creative adventures. Robillard tells this one beautifully: "In 1912, whilst working for Premier Richard McBride, we were asked to join him on a visit to the future site of UBC. On a Sunday morning, a beautiful day, with a team of horses hitched to a Democrat, we made our way up the future 10th Avenue hill and University Boulevard. I was then 15 years old, and as the most agile in the party I was asked to climb a large cedar tree and describe to them the wonderful view of Howe Sound. So was chosen the future site for the mall and the original buildings of UBC."

Over the years, Raoul and his father, and then Raoul alone, landscaped the grounds of 1,500 Vancouver homes and many commercial sites. He was the consultant on the B.C. Electric (Hydro) head office, the Bentall Centre and Robson Square.

When his colleagues gave him the medal at Viva, they also announced they had raised $12,000 for a UBC scholarship in his name. Joe Segal got up from his table and said a scholarship was not enough. He wrote out a cheque for $10,000 to start a fund to establish a seat in landscape architecture in the plant science department. Without leaving his chair, Clark Bentall said he'd match Segal's $10,000. Segal and Bentall are neighbors on Southwest Marine. Both of their homes were landscaped by Robillard.

That was the only time Robillard lost his composure. He wept briefly, perhaps thinking of the boy, deprived of schooling by family need, picking wildflowers for cowboys' consorts, given the blessing of eternal life in a university he helped to plot.

Protecting whom?

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

Ontario allows its doctors, under the Health Disciplines Act, to license and discipline themselves. Their vehicle is the College of Physicians and Surgeons, which has the power to find the province's doctors guilty of professional misconduct. It also has the power, apparently, to strike the fear of God into the heart of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Dr. Morton Shulman, a Toronto doctor and journalist, ran afoul of the college's disciplinary committee because of articles he wrote two years ago in The Toronto Sun. Elizabeth Graham, 52, had been given three units of mismatched blood during a throat cancer operation at the Toronto East General Hospital in March, 1978. Dr. Shulman was given the woman's hospital chart by an anonymous source, and on April 25 wrote an angry column based on Mrs. Graham's case. In May, 1979, the college found Dr. Shulman guilty of professional misconduct for "giving information concerning a patient's condition . . . to any person other than the patient without the consent of the patient . . ."

Dr. Shulman appealed. This month, the Supreme Court of Ontario dismissed the appeal, stating that "the interpretation of the committee (of the College of Physicians and Surgeons) is not only a reasonable one, but the most reasonable one under the circumstances." Elsewhere in his decision, however, Supreme Court Justice Robert Montgomery made a startling contention. "Discipline committees," he said, "which deal with standards of conduct on a regular basis, are in a better position than courts generally, to assess the impact and consequences of professional misconduct. In my view, the decisions and penalties of professional discipline committees ought not to be lightly interfered with."

Interfered with? Does the court imply that the process of appeal constitutes interference? Dr. Shulman, dissatisfied with his treatment by the self-regulating college, had challenged the college's verdict before the Supreme Court, expecting objective judgment. Yet the court has expressed reluctance to reverse any decision which the medical profession takes through its internal discipline committee, and has stated that the college's discipline committee can handle those matters more ably than the courts.

In principle, that philosophy is an abdication of the appeal courts' responsibility to provide an absolute recourse. In practice, the court is on particularly shaky ground placing its faith in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, whose track record of late has been marred by at least three wrong-headed decisions:

For example: a doctor neglected to inform the family of a patient who underwent a complex heart operation about his condition, despite efforts by the family to speak to the doctor. The Health Disciplines Board, set up by the government in 1974 to protect the interest of patients, ordered the college to admonish the doctor. The college refused.

SHULMAN . . . appeal dismissed

For example: in 1978, a Toronto doctor sent a form to an insurance company describing his patient as a chronic alcoholic, although he had insufficient evidence of her drinking. The board instructed the college to issue a warning to the doctor. The college ignored the instruction.

For example: in 1978, a woman complained to the college that an Ottawa doctor had indecently assaulted her. The college declared the complaint unfounded. Earlier this year, the doctor pleaded guilty to the charge.

And this, says the court, is a body whose "decisions and penalties . . . ought not to be lightly interfered with". Why do we bother having an appeal process?

NAPLES — The poverty of Naples used to make travellers catch their breath in horror; now every Neapolitan wears shoes and buys medicines and if you look into their bassi, the one-room dwellings where a whole family of 15 may live, as often as not you see high-gloss furniture, chrome table centres, an electric crucifix.

But Mario Borelli, the priest who 30 years ago founded the world-famous House of the Urchins for the starving guttersnipes of the city, thinks that when it comes to food, people ate better when he was a boy than they do now.

"We had fruits, we had fish, people used to eat all the interiors of animals," he says. "A hundred years ago they were eating legumes, they weren't eating frugally. We forgot how creative is poverty — pasta was the invention of a poor economy that makes a substantial meal out of very little."

He waxes lyrical about its origins: the names come from the different ways you cut your sheet of pasta — macaroni, which was the first, came from the Greek word macharion, meaning a knife (it wasn't a tube in those days) and lasagna referred to parallel cuts like the ones that draw blood (sagna) when you're shaving.

Now people can't even eat shellfish — at least they shouldn't because the Bay of Naples is so polluted; though you still see it glistening wetly on its beds of seaweed outside fishmongers, and the bags of garbage that burst at your feet are as likely as not to spill out shells. Junk food — "industrialized shit" Borelli calls it — abounds: sweets, Coca-Cola, chewing gum.

The intrusion of America means, for some people, missiles or CIA subversion; Borelli resents the arrival of the alien product. "Products are the natural ambassadors — in every product is the society that produces it." (And Italy's products? He wrinkled his shrewd blue eyes for a moment and then said: 'Leather, jewellery — elegant things that aren't very useful — bella figura — we're very much concerned with appearances.")

He is even still complaining about the intrusion of the Piedmontese in the last century: "Before the unification of Italy we were self-sufficient. We grew enough wheat for ourselves. But we didn't grow enough wheat for all Italy — so they imported cheap Turkish wheat, which undercut ours, so we stopped growing it and became dependent."

He mourns the cultural element that's lost in a debased cuisine; and over the dinners in the House of Urchins — now grandly called the Materdei Community Centre — he tries to teach dietary principles.

I hadn't gone there to discuss food with him, so much as health, and drains, and the boys he used to have to rescue from the streets. But talking to him, in a city poised between the rich north and the poverty that almost merges with Africa, made me realize how many misguided notions of eating we dogmatic northerners have exported in our time.

We gave them Spock, and his ludicrously fancy notions of what a child should eat. We exported canned milk, which may have saved a few babies at the time, but probably harmed a good many more of them in the long run by putting mothers off breast-feeding.

And remember the theory of the "protein gap"? People found undernourished children in Africa, noted that they lacked protein, and tried to spread the word about the need for beef. In fact there was enough protein in their traditional foods — if only they'd had enough of them. Their poor bodies used up the protein on day-to-day energy — on the same principle as burning the furniture when you've nothing else to burn to keep you alive.

But the answer wasn't to keep getting in ever more expensive furniture, or meat, to burn; but just to see they got enough of the traditional wheat and maize, potatoes and beans.

We thought we were exporting health and education and enlightenment and getting nothing but leprosy and disaffection in return. In food, it's been entirely the other way round: they get white flour and Coca-Cola and a loony insistence on animal protein, while we have learned joyfully about pizzas and curries and egg-drop soup and chili.

I rather think Borelli would like to go back to having a kingdom of Naples, with a large wall around it to stop the trucks of the Common Market thundering through. A bit late for that, alas; we can only throw the unopened tins of Coca-Cola at the polluted mussels in the bay.

New pot bill stirs up opposition

OTTAWA (CP) — It may be a serious offence to sell marijuana to minors if a bill now being drafted by officials becomes law, informed sources say.

Original object of the bill was to "decriminalize" possession of marijuana by shifting it from the Narcotic Control Act to the Food and Drug Act, and to reduce penalties for trafficking and importing.

However, pressure from a spectrum of groups is gradually complicating modification of the law.

Official sources say the result may be a law that will be displeasing to everyone.

"It's being watered down," the official said. "We're trying to simplify it but. . . ."

But a growing number of sources say that "decriminalization" may put more people in jail than the current law does.

Under the current law, the use of "marijuana," as the 1923 law spells it, can mean six months in jail and a $1,000 fine, selling it can mean life in prison, and importing brings a minimum sentence of seven years.

The proposed changes would remove the criminal stigma as possession would be an offence under the Food and Drug Act. And it would reduce sharply the penalties for trafficking and importing.

The National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Law in Canada (NORML) says all this may simply encourage police to harass users with citations and fine enforcement.

And criminal lawyer Paul Copeland of Toronto says traffickers will lose their jury-trial option, meaning that more of them will go to jail.

"This is simply not appropriate considering the whole idea of decriminalization is to get the police out of the individual's private affairs," NORML spokesman Rob Bourque says.

Public concern about the number of juveniles being arrested, jailed and saddled with criminal records in the late 1960s and early 1970s led to the "decriminalization" proposal. But pressure against such a move now is coming from high school principals in Toronto and boards of education in a variety of locations. The Alberta Chamber of Commerce said recently that dealers should be executed.

"So we may have something special in the bill for the under 18s," the official said. "It may be just like the liquor laws, with their prohibition against sale to minors."

The result may be a bill that is pleasing to no one and has the opposite effect of its stated intention — to keep people out of jail, he said.

"It's a no-win situation."

Refinery mishap claims first woman mine victim

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Sally Matthews, 39, a worker at the Inco Metals Co. copper refinery at nearby Copper Cliff, was killed today in an above-the-ground accident — the first time a woman has died in a Canadian mining accident, company officials say.

The mother of eight was killed when she fell from a mobile platform while standing on it to loosen bolts from a furnace door. The platform was moved by the boom of a crane and fell on top of her as she fell.

Mrs. Mattews's death was the sixth mining-related death on Inco property since March.

With 17 deaths in mining accidents in the province this year, Stewart Cooke, Ontario director of the United Steelworkers union, has called on the Ontario government to establish a new commission to examine mine safety.

Cooke said in an interview that such a commission should spend part of its time evaluating new techniques to detect rock faults, which often cause cave-ins.

Denison Mine Inc. officials have said Friday's cave-in at Elliot Lake, in which three men died, was caused by a fault in the mine roof, which had been inspected that morning.

Union spokesman Gerry Barr said that if the present rate of mining deaths continues, there will be more than twice the averge annual rate of deaths by Dec. 31. He said there were 40 deaths in the previous three years.

Ships collide in Ont. river traffic snarl

COURTRIGHT, Ont. (CP) — Two lake freighters collided today on the foggy St. Clair River, a waterway that coast guard officials say should be monitored with a modern communications system.

The collision cut a six-metre hole in the bow of the Montrealais, a bulk carrier owned by Upper Lakes Shipping Ltd. of Toronto, and made a 2.5-to-three-metre hole in the bow of the Algobay, owned by Algoma Central Railroad Co. of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Controversial flag unfurled in Nfld.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Drizzling rain and a politely-clapping crowd of about 300 greeted Newfoundland's new flag when it was officially unfurled in front of the Confederation building Tuesday.

The flag hung limply without a draft of wind to show off its controversial geometric design and arrow.

It was all over in 15 minutes with not a word spoken except for military commands to the Royal Newfoundland Regiment and Band. There was another guard of honor from the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary and a pipe band from the local folk arts organization.

Conspieuously absent were members of the Royal Canadian Legion — strong opponents of the new flag.

Little hope for auto pact concessions

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says U.S. officials, preparing for auto trade talks Friday with Canada, believe Ottawa's huge trade deficit is largely of its own making and are not prepared to consider substantive changes to the auto pact.

The report says U.S. officials attribute Canada's auto trade deficit problems to its continued concentration on the production of large vehicles when the demand is for smaller cars.

Court quashes verdict

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A U.S. federal appeals court today overturned the conviction of Ashland Oil Co. on price-fixing charges but upheld the convictions of other companies.

The 4th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals said the Ashland conviction was based primarily on the testimony of a former Ashland vice-president who had suffered mental illness.

The court's action reversed an opinion it issued last December when it upheld the conviction of Ashland on charges of participating in a conspiracy to fix retail gasoline prices in the mid-Atlantic market.

Also upheld at that time were the convictions of Amerada Hess Corp., Kayo Oil Co., the Meadville Corp., Petroleum Marketing Corp. and the Society of Independent Gasoline Marketers of America.

In its ruling today, the appeals court again sustained the convictions of all the defendants except Ashland.

"Our review of the record persuades us the evidence was sufficient to support the conclusion of the jury that the defendants were working together for the common purpose to fix prices within the geographical area described in the indictment," it said.

Bonds

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were steady in active trading on the Canadian bond market Tuesday.

The short end of the market was off 10 cents. Mid-, long-term, provincial and corporate issues were unchanged.

Day-to-day money was available at 16 per cent.

Although the market was firm, the indigestion caused by the recent flood of new issues still lingered, and trading was confined mainly to dealers as institutional buyers moved to the sidelines, an analyst at Merrill Lynch, Royal Securities Ltd. said.

WOODWARD'S HAS IT ALL

Phillips takes top place as B.C.'s big spender

Industry Minister Don Phillips, the leather-lunged MLA from South Peace River who admittedly likes to do things in a big way, was the biggest spender abroad of any B.C. cabinet minister last year.

Figures tabled in the legislature Tuesday by Premier Bill Bennett show Phillips and assorted functionaries spent $88,000 on trips to Japan, Korea and China — nearly half the $205,000 total spent in 1979 by all B.C. cabinet ministers.

Phillips' trip to China with 13 other persons to discuss economic relations between China and B.C. cost provincial taxpayers more than $53,000.

A separate trip to Japan and Korea, during which Phillips took along two deputy ministers and a consultant, to discuss more economic co-operation cost nearly $35,000.

Health Minister Rafe Mair was another busy world traveller in 1979 — making visits to the U.K., Sweden, Japan, Korea and Hong Kong.

Mair, then environment minister, took four persons on each of two trips — a total cost of $44,000.

Cheapest foreign trip by a B.C. cabinet minister during 1979 was former tourism minister Elwood Veitch's promotional visit to Portland, Ore., at a cost of $243.25.

Other trips included trade missions by Bennett to Los Angeles, Seoul and Japan; visits to London (twice) and Paris by Finance Minister Hugh Curtis — then provincial secretary — to discuss Transpo '86; and Science Minister Pat McGeer's trip to London, Dusseldorf and Atlanta to discuss coal liquefaction possibilities.

ANIK puts B.C. in the KNOW

The Knowledge Network of the West — part of a provincial government policy to bring education to every part of B.C. — was unwrapped Tuesday by Communications Minister Pat McGeer.

McGeer said B.C. will become the first jurisdiction in the world to offer credit courses by using voice-over between students and teachers in the television studio.

McGeer's news conference from the network headquarters at the B.C. Institute of Technology in Burnaby was beamed to several education centres throughout the province via the ANIK-B satellite.

In Victoria, Education Minister Brian Smith, who watched McGeer on television and then talked to him live, said the network will mean a great deal to those who do not have access to major learning centres.

"The day is not far off when those living in remote areas will be able to take credit courses and interact on television with your instructor who might be in Burnaby or Vancouver or Kamloops," he said.

McGeer also announced that a non-profit communications authority, headed by deputy education minister Walter Hardwick has been established to co-ordinate the education programs and manage their delivery.

Deputy ministers from the universities and education ministries also are on the board along with Don Hamilton, a Vancouver broadcast consultant, and Ron Jeffels, principal of the Open Learning Institute.

The network, which already has been allocated $1.2 million of government money by the legislature for capital and operating funding, is expected to be fully operational sometime next year.

The three elements of the network include a closed-circuit system connecting the three B.C. universities, BCIT, the Open Learning Institute and Vancouver law courts and teaching hospitals; a closed-circuit, transmission and satellite connection to off-campus, interior and northern locations; and access to an educational channel on community cable systems.

Duties divided

KELOWNA (CP) — A compromise was reached Tuesday in a dispute over eight American tradesmen working on installation of a $600,000 conveyor and fruit packing system. The parties involved have agreed on a split work force of three Americans and three Canadians.

B.C., feds still haggling over Ridley superport

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) — The federal government hasn't yet accepted B.C.'s decision to pull out of infrastructure financing on the proposed Ridley Island superport, says Senator Bud Olson, minister of state for economic development.

The federal and provincial governments are still "fine-tuning negotiations" over B.C.'s original $4.6-million commitment to a $42.5-million package to prepare and service sites for new grain and coal terminals on Ridley Island, Olson said in an interview from Ottawa.

"I don't think we should assume absolutely that they are pulling out," Olson said. "That assumes that we are taking the responsibility and it doesn't necessarily follow.

Olson said the disputed $4.6 million figure will be paid for by the two levels of government, one way or another.

Although there is no signed agreement between the federal department of regional economic expansion and the province, he feels the project is not in jeopardy.

However Sandy Peel, B.C.'s deputy minister of industry and small business, reconfirmed Tuesday that the province is committed only to a $4-million share in the $8-million construction of a Ridley Island access road. Any development pertaining to the coal terminal is no longer the province's responsibility, he said.

He also indicated that although a provincial study on the social, economic and environmental impact of Ridley Island development is "95 per cent complete" the province would not finish the study, but would make the information gathered so far available to the federal government.

Lawson tops $100,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — Senator Ed Lawson of Vancouver is among 25 international Teamsters Union officials who received between $100,266 and $295,853 in salaries and compensation during 1979, a dissident union group said Tuesday.

Lawson is listed as earning $118,065, which would put him 19th on a list of the union's 25 top-salaried officers published by the Teamsters for a Democratic Union.

However, Lawson's opponents moved him near the top and ahead of international president Frank Fitzsimmons by adding incomes from three posts in Canada.

Jack Vlahovic, Lawson's local adversary from the dissident group, said he figured Lawson's total pay at $180,665 by adding $23,000 as president of the union's joint council covering B.C. and Yukon, $4,800 as a trustee of Local 213 in Vancouver, and $34,800 as a member of the Canadian Senate.

Another Teamster in the top 25 is Arnie Weinmeister, who played for British Columbia Lions in 1954.

Weinmeister made $144,731 doing five jobs for the Teamsters in Seattle.

Cambodian civilian toll near 1,000

BANGKOK (AP) — Estimates of civilian casualties rose to between 600 and 1,000 wounded as Vietnamese forces widened their military operations along the Thai-Cambodian border today.

The International Red Cross reported 223 wounded Cambodian refugees at the vast Khao I Dang camp, "several hundred" at the border encampment of Nong Chan, and 350 wounded Thais in Aranyaprathet, 225 kilometres east of Bangkok.

The Red Cross and the UN Children's Fund rushed medical teams and food to several large groups of Cambodians uprooted in the fighting, including 10,000 at Kok Sung, 5,000 at Nong Chan and up to 15,000 in Nong Samet.

Tens of thousands of others are believed to have fled into forested areas or were under Vietnamese control.

The Thai command said more reinforcements are being moved in to sweep away remaining Vietnamese positions inside Thai territory in a 55-km stretch north of Aranyaprathet.

Most of the Vietnamese soldiers who struck into Thailand three days ago were back inside Cambodia but apparently dug in along the border and were capable of raking Thai positions with small-arms fire and artillery.

The Thai command estimated that up to 10,000 Vietnamese soldiers are deployed along the border inside Cambodia to the north and south of Aranyaprathet.

The command reported fighting between "Free Khmer" anti-Communist guerrillas and Vietnamese soldiers in the northern Cambodian province of Oddar Mean Chey and said the guerrillas sought temporary refuge in Thailand's Surin province.

The command also said Vietnamese troop movements were detected to the south of Aranyaprathet where the guerrillas of ousted premier Pol Pot are concentrated and that fighting has broken out between the Vietnamese and Pol Pot soldiers at Nimit, a key village 15 km inside Cambodia on a major highway leading from the Thai border to the provincial city of Battambang.

Gloomy outlook

supply to keep interest rates above those in the U.S. That would help attract more capital and help maintain the value of the Canadian dollar in international money markets.

The prime rate banks charge to their most creditworthy customers is forecast at 14 per cent at the end of the year. However, interest rates in both Canada and the U.S. have continued falling from peak levels in April since the survey was completed, and the prime rate in Canada now is 13.25 per cent.

The conference board is an independent, non-profit research organization with sister organizations in both Europe and the U.S.

Meanwhile, the International Monetary Fund has painted a doleful picture of the world economy, with inflation, recession and a trade slump affecting all countries.

In a survey of the world economic outlook, the IMF said Tuesday that industrial countries, wealthy oil producers and impoverished developing countries will all suffer this year because of the deterioration in economic conditions.

"The world economic picture is rather grim," said the report, the first of its kind to be released publicly by the IMF.

It said that in the first few months of 1980, there was a widespread worsening of inflation, caused mainly by oil price increases that began in 1979.

None of the seven major industrial countries — the United States, Britain, Canada, France, West Germany, Italy and Japan — escaped a substantial acceleration of consumer price increases in 1979 and early 1980, the report said.

The IMF said underlying inflation — that which excludes the effects of imports — increased at an average rate of 7.5 per cent in industrial countries between 1978 and 1979. That rate is expected to increase to 9.5 per cent this year before receding to 8.5 per cent in 1981.

For developing countries without oil reserves, the IMF estimated that in both 1979 and 1980 inflation would run at about 30 per cent — far higher than in the past.

U.K. jobless rate up

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government announced Tuesday that unemployment in Britain is at its worst since 1948.

The government said the jobless rate was 6.9 per cent of the work force of 24 million, compared with 6.3 per cent in May. Britain began its current system of recording unemployment statistics in 1948.

Mrs. Thatcher, sticking to her 13-month-old government's policy of public spending cutbacks and tight money controls, expressed "distress."

She was greeted with shouts of "you are not distressed at all!" from Labor party MPs.

Glacier breakup may threaten tankers

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Tankers carrying oil from Alaska's North Slope might be endangered in the next few years because of the likely break-up of the massive Columbia Glacier, U.S. government scientists said Tuesday.

The interior department's Geological Survey said a team of its glaciologists have found that the huge glacier in south-central Alaska is unstable.

They said it was on "the verge of a drastic retreat," meaning huge chunks of ice would start breaking away from the front of the glacier.

Although there is no immediate danger, the scientists said in coming years large icebergs might be released from the glacier into the shipping lanes of Prince William Sound near Port Valdez, the southern terminal of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline.

"The annual discharge of icebergs will increase to a peak of about 20 to 27 million tons a day during the period 1982 to 1985, or about six times the discharge during 1978," the survey said.

Prof. Mark Mieir, head of the glaciological team, said some ice released into the narrow Valdez Arm of Prince William Sound would be "in sufficient size to be of concern to shipping.".

Currently, icebergs do not pose major problems for shipping in Prince William Sound, through which tankers last year carried more than one million barrels of oil a day.

Salt battery: the next big power trip?

By PAUL MINVIELLE

Salinity power is not a new radical political movement.

It's a chemical phenomenon that University of Victoria chemist Dr. Robert O'Brien feels could be an important source of global electricity and his research is attracting world-wide interest.

What's salinity power?

It's a battery in which power is produced when ions from a dense solution flow into a less dense solution.

Still with us?

In Dr. O'Brien's concept, the ions are sodium and chloride, the two elements in salt.

Thanks to a membrane developed in Israel, O'Brien, with the aid of research associate Sam Visaisouk, was able to put together a battery which produces power from a concentrated salt solution — salty water — and fresh water.

To picture what's happening, remember that salt is sodium chloride.

Now think of a flat plastic pouch immersed in fresh water. One side of the pouch is anionic — it allows only negatively charged ions, in this case chlorine, to pass through.

The other flat side of the pouch is cationic, meaning only positively charged ions (sodium) can slip through.

Once the salty water is pumped into the pouch between the two membranes, the positively charged ions start passing through one side and the negatively charged ions head through the other one.

Abracadabra, you've got a flow of charged ions and that's direct current electricity, folks.

Put a lot of little pouches together in what O'Brien calls a stack and you have a dialytic battery.

The question is, what's it good for?

O'Brien suggests you think of spots where there are great adjacent amounts of salt water and fresh water.

Try the Fraser River or any other great river as it flows into the sea.

Other possibilitites would be the treated sewage outflow of a city such as Los Angeles.

While O'Brien feels that particular American city could utilize his concept right now, he doesn't believe his membrane batteries will be useful everywhere.

He says salinity power represents exotic technology and it will probably be used only in very special circumstances.

The researchers' figures indicate power generated by dialysis would be somewhere between 2¢ and 5¢ a kilowatt hour, compared with 5¢ to 12¢ in many parts of the U.S.

B.C. is in a favored position with hydro power costing about 2¾¢ per kilowatt hour, so power by dialysis isn't likely to replace big dams.

Instead, O'Brien's vision extends to such places as Hong Kong.

He feels power could be generated by dialysis utilizing sea water and treated sewage water.

The power and the waste byproducts from the sewage and the seawater (which are nutrients) could be used to grow food hydroponically.

O'Brien developed the use of membrane processes for generating power along with Chaim Forgacs, who hails from the Research and Development Authority, Ben Gurion University of the Negev, Beer-Sheeba, Israel.

The international quality of science is even more evident when you learn Visaisouk came to UVic from Laos via the University of Hawaii and Kansas City.

The membranes that made the process possible, developed in Israel, are polyethylene plastic sheets treated by a photochemical process.

One of the big problems in developing a workable battery was to develop a means of keeping the invididual cells in the battery apart without impeding the flow of solution between them.

A new kind of reinforced membrane is helping to solve that problem.

The power generated by the cells is picked up by grates made of platinum-coated titanium.

The research involved was first done under a Defence Research Board contract.

What the DRB was looking for was a cheap method of storing power, and dialysis apparently held the answer.

O'Brien's research, however, showed it was too expensive and DRB lost interest.

But out of the research came the dialytic battery, and sometime soon, once O'Brien and Vivaisouk have developed a battery with more power per cubic foot, power from ordinary water should become commonplace.

Miffed seniors walk out of recreation meeting

By BRENDA DALGLISH

More than 150 senior citizens Tuesday walked out of a rowdy meeting of the Juan de Fuca Parks and Recreation Commission.

They refused to discuss guidelines the commission intends to institute for the seniors' activity centre at the recreation complex in Colwood.

The protesters were members of the Juan de Fuca Senior Citizens Club, the prime user of the centre which costs taxpayers $200,000 per year to run.

The commission held the special afternoon meeting after issuing separate invitations to the 400 club members.

The majority of the seniors wanted no part of the discussion about the centre and walked out after club president Harry Jones told them the commission couldn't take any action if the members left.

But the commission, after talking with the 30 seniors who remained, approved a five-point policy statement implementing a policy and procedures manual for a new association. Any senior using the centre on a regular basis would have to join.

Starting July 15 the manual will be the guideline by which the centre operates and on the same date all new registrations will be paid to the commission.

Jones said today the club will not accept the commission's move.

Members will consider legal action based on the terms of a referendum held before the centre was built.

Members objected to certain points suggested by the commission as key elements to changing the centre's operating methods. They included hiring of a co-ordinator to oversee the centre and work with all seniors in the community, and payment of a $3 association membership fee ($5 if the meember doesn't live in Colwood, Langford or Metchosin) to the commission.

Commission member Mac Tipton said complaints about the centre are regularly received from seniors who say they haven't felt comfortable or welcome there.

For that reason, Tipton said, the commission wants to regain the control over the building it should never have given up to the club when the centre opened some years ago.

The commission has met several times before with the executive of the club, he said.

"We've always had polite meetings and the commission has gone away believing that changes would take place but they never did."

He said the same problem occurs frequently in other senior citizens centres.

"We don't want to run their club but we want to run the facility for the benefit of all the seniors in the community."

He likened the situation to the commission turning over the operation of the pool to a swim club or the arena to a hockey club.

The commission's position was approved by at least one senior citizen at the meeting.

. . . legal action studied

Pat Strachan, who isn't a member of the club, said even with every chair at the meeting filled only 4.25 per cent of the community's senior citizens was represented.

"No group is able to speak for all seniors of the community. The commission has to make the decision," he said.

Points that club members oppose included: the commission taking over ownership of any equipment or furnishings supplied in the centre by the club; the president being prohibited from serving more than two consecutive terms; the club not being allowed to donate money to charities, and a clause that suggested seniors could be moved out of the building they now have.

The commission reply:

— The policy is that any club using the facilities provided by the commission must turn any equipment it brings to the buildings over to the commission. This is also necessary for insurance reasons.

— The president's term is part of the suggested constitution and could be amended by members.

— The clause saying the association couldn't donate to charities referred only to money that was received from official sources such as tax levies or government grants. Any money raised by activities such as bingos could be used as the association desired. The commission suggested rewording of the clause.

— Interpretation given the clause in question that suggested seniors could be moved from the centre at the will of the commission is incorrect and the wording of the clause was altered to clarify it.

Woodward's sues over ferry turnback

Woodward's Stores Ltd. is suing the B.C. Ferry Corp. for damages because Woodward's trucks were refused passage on ferries.

The store says in a B.C. Supreme Court writ that the refusal was breach of contract and breach of the ferries' duties as a common carrier.

Last week, ferry ticket takers refused to serve Woodward's truck drivers hauling goods to Vancouver Island because the store was being struck by food-floor clerks.

Five trucks at Horseshoe Bay north of here and two at Tsawwassen had to turn back.

Mediator Ken Albertini will meet both sides Thursday in Victoria in a fresh effort to settle the strike.

Albertini has remained informally involved in the three-week strike by the Retail Clerks Union, Local 1518, even though he had previously reported out of the dispute.

The dispute is basically over whether the Victoria clerks should get special Woodward's benefits such as longer coffee rest periods and purchasing discounts on top of the standard agreement covering clerks in the supermarket chain stores.

Waddington skylight safe for strollers . . . they say

They don't know what caused a pane of glass in the skylight of the Waddington Building to fall out last week but the B.C. Buildings Corp. is satisfied the courtyard beneath is safe for strollers.

Tom McCann, BCBC building manager, said he and the supervisor of construction for the firm which installed the glass on the provincial government office building on Broughton checked the large skylight Saturday.

Both were satisfied that, whatever caused the breakage, the remaining glass will not fall down.

"We don't have any problems with the roof," he said Tuesday.

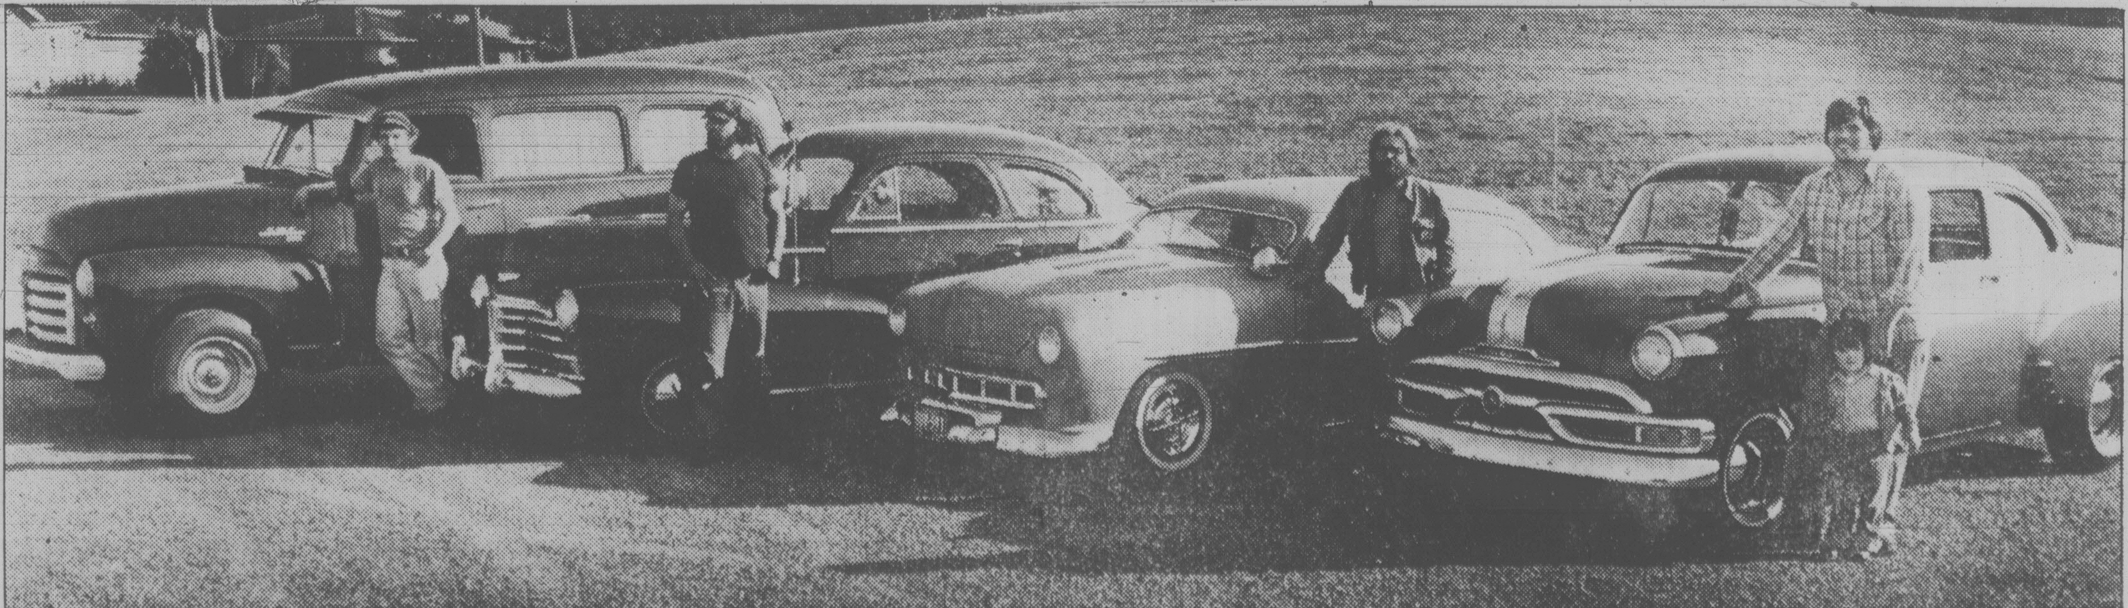
McCann said the tempered glass broke in place, the centrepiece fell out and the glass shattered into small irregular-shaped pieces. It didn't fall in one piece and smash on the bricks below.

It will be about three weeks before a replacement pane can be made to order and put back in the frame, he added.

The plaza below the skylight was never closed off to the public, he said.

Commissionaires were stationed there Saturday while the inspection of the glass took place to direct people away from the areas directly below.

It was just a safety precaution, McCann said.



SOOKE STREET RODDERS line up with their prize possessions in preparation for their annual car show Saturday and Sunday at Sooke Flats. Entries will be accepted for the show until Saturday afternoon. Hundreds due in charity run

Hundreds of Victoria runners are expected to turn out July 13 for the Nautilus fun run which will help the handicapped kids at the George Pearkes Clinic.

The two-stage race — the first is a six-km or 3.7-mile event while the second is 10 km or 6.2 miles — starts and finishes at Mile 0 at Dallas Road and Douglas.

The entry fee is $7 and participants will receive T-shirts and race packs.

Net proceeds from the race, organized by the Nautilus Pacific Fitness Centre, 1551 Cedar Hill X Road, will go to help the Pearkes clinic.

Entry forms can be picked up at the Nautilus Centre, Pimlott's, 1383 Hillside, Oak Bay Sporting Goods, 2077 Cadboro Bay and all McDonald's outlets.

The races start at 9 a.m. and mailed entry forms must be received before July 10.

PCC may go public

The Provincial Capital Commission may end a 24-year policy of meeting behind closed doors and open its monthly sessions to the public.

After 90 minutes of debate Tuesday, the 11 members of the provincial government agency decided to give the problem to a subcommittee, which will report next month with a recommendation.

Chief executive officer George Giles said the PCC had taken on a new role in recent years.

"It has become a developmental agency. We lease space and have dealings with tenants. We run several businesses. The question is, how much of that is really private and how much isn't."

The commission was founded in 1956 as the Capital Improvement District Commission and for 21 years carried out mostly local beautification projects initiated by the four core municipalities which are members of the commission.

The focus shifted in 1977 when it was renamed the Provincial Capital Commission, given new operating legislation and a full-time staff. It was also given the task of developing several parcels of government land in the city.

The commission renovated the Crystal Garden and until the whole project was put on hold, it was working closely with the Pan-Pacific Society on the proposed waterfront convention centre on the Reid site at Wharf and Fort.

Giles said the commission talked about various forms an open PCC meeting could take. Some things would have to remain in camera, such as personnel and land matters and recommendations to Finance Minister Hugh Curtis, who is responsible for the PCC and can accept or reject its decisions on most questions.

Property owners win first round

City property owners won the first round in a border skirmish between Victoria and Saanich over rezoning of property just over the city limits in the Gorge Road area.

About a dozen city residents were promised that Saanich would advertise again a public hearing on a proposed rezoning of land on the west side of Harriet between the San Sebastian property and the Gorge waterway.

Harriet forms the boundary between the two municipalities. About a dozen residents on Lotus and the Victoria side of Harriet petitioned Saanich, complaining they had not been notified of the rezoning proposal.

Parity breakthrough at Safeway

VANCOUVER (CP) — Workers at three Safeway supermarket suppliers have accepted a contract their union says represents a breakthrough in the food industry by providing wage parity for men and women.

The one-year agreement provides a starting salary of $11.15 an hour to male and female clerical workers, packers and warehouse workers at Macdonald's Consolidated, Lucerne and Empress Foods, retroactive to April 1, 1980.

The 775 workers, members of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union, Local 580, had threatened a strike which would have emptied shelves at 88 Safeway outlets in B.C.

Elimination of lower pay for women had been a key union request.

The $1 an hour across-the-board increase sets wage rates from $11.15 an hour to $12.72. The union said in a news release the workers will get a 10-per-cent increase in pension benefits.

The percentage vote in favor of the agreement was not immediately known. Both sides in the dispute were negotiating through special mediator Clive McKee.

Meanwhile, workers at the Foremost Foods have rejected by 61 per cent a contract offer from the dairy products supplier to Super Valu stores.

However, Hugo Tims, president of the Canadian Allied Manufacturers Wholesale and Retail Union, said today talks between the company and the negotiators for 68 union members will continue under provincial mediator Ken Albertini.

The union served strike notice last month and can strike after the mediator books out of the dispute.

The plant workers and truck drivers earn between $11.23 and $13.08 an hour in a 36-hour week under a one-year contract that expired March 31.

Motorcyclist hurt

A Ganges motorcyclist received a broken arm and other injuries Tuesday afternoon when he collided with a freight truck pulling onto Lower Ganges Road opposite the Gulf Islands School District office.

Randy Severn, 19, was taken to Lady Minto Gulf Islands Hospital for treatment and released.

The Salt Spring Island Freight truck was driven by Richard Robert Kelly, 721 Kelly, Victoria.

Police said John Pinchin of Ganges noticed gasoline pouring from the motorcycle and, fearing an explosion or fire, rushed to pull the injured rider to safety.

Super efforts warm up fans

Victoria Budgets were super and their efforts helped about 600 fans forget about the cool temperatures and light showers Tuesday night by blanking O'Byrne Electric from Springfield, Mo., 1-0 and 10-0 in a Super Series fastball doubleheader at Royal Athletic Park.

Rob Guenter, Dennis Eckert and John Green helped Victoria win the opener.

Guenter pushed his pitching record to 9-0 with a five-hitter, striking out three and walking two while Eckert supplied the lone run by blasting a two-out homer over the left-field fence in the first inning.

Springfield ace Roy Burlington, however, bore down the rest of the way and limited Budgets to singles by Green, Randy Benn and Reg Underwood.

Green, a recent choice for third base by the Canadian team, made three putouts and assisted on four other outs — several times in spectacular fashion.

The second game was strictly no contest as pitcher Mark Smith dominated, Victoria bats played havoc and Springfield committed five errors.

Smith, now 11-2, struck out 12 while yielding only one walk and three hits.

Budgets started with a rush, scoring three runs in the first inning on two walks, an error and singles by Carl Walker and Benn.

Bob Burrows set the batting pace with two hits in four trips to score twice and drive in a run, Eckert went one-for-two and drove in two runs, Green doubled and drove in a run and Walker went two-for-four and scored twice.

Budgets, who are now 8-2 in Super Series play and 27-7 for the season, play host to Oxnard, Calif., for Super Series doubleheaders starting at 7 p.m. Sunday and Monday at Royal Athletic Park.

PROTEST MARCH is staged during fifth inning of National League baseball game Tuesday in Montreal as Expos' manager Dick Williams, followed by Warren Cromartie and Rowland Office (25) follow umpire Dave Pallone to continue argument. Pallone ruled that outfielder Andre Dawson had not held on to fly ball after juggling it during four-run Philadelphia outburst. Expos eventually had last word when Cromartie's single in 10th inning produced 7-6 victory over Phillies. (CP laserphoto)

Governors gave it a gallant try

LOS ANGELES — National Hockey League teams will continue to play in their present divisions next season under the same balanced schedule as last year despite pressure for realignment, the board of governors decided at the windup of their two-day annual summer meeting.

The 21 governors listened to several realignment proposals Tuesday, but opted to remain in the same alignment for the 1980-81 season despite suggested changes on grounds of geography and rivalries.

"Personally, I'm in favor of realignment and the unbalanced schedule," said board chairman Bill Wirtz of Chicago Black Hawks. "But those are very, very difficult things to accomplish.

"We worked tremendous hours on it, even at night, but realignment did require a 100 per cent vote. Usually, though, these things are most successful when you're having an expansion, and we're not right now.

"We gave it a gallant try, we came close, but that wasn't enough."

Sources indicated the closest the governors came to approving divisional changes was a 15-6 vote on two separate proposals. Next year only a three-quarters majority will be necessary. The league put a two-year, 100-per-cent vote on realignment and schedule changes when accepting four clubs from the former World Hockey Association last year.

"A couple of the proposals would have passed had they been proposed a year from now," said NHL president John Ziegler. "Some proposals encompassed geographic realignment within divisions and conferences.

"One of the major factors behind realignment is the ever-increasing concern over travel costs. Some of the rationale in some of the proposals also went into trying to preserve traditional rivalries. Problems with radio and television line costs also was considered in the alignments."

Wirtz said the governors did "some big-league thinking in there today because you can open up some bitter wounds if you're not careful."

"I've been involved in a lot of realignment division fights," he said, "but this was very high level, high class all the way."

The decision to stand pat leaves Calgary Flames still in the tough Patrick Division (along with New York Islanders, New York Rangers, Philadelphia Flyers and Washington Capitals) despite the transfer of the franchise from Atlanta for next season.

There was some pressure to switch the Flames into the Smythe Division because of natural geographic rivalries with Edmonton Oilers and Vancouver Canucks.

Ziegler said he feels more confident about future realignment than before the meetings and expects more firm proposals at the governors' semi-annual meeting in December, perhaps even approval then.

"Going back to previous expansions," he added, "when we had realignment before there was a lot of bitterness, much of it coming from the concern about competitive disadvantages.

"In these discussions the last two days, there was no mention of advantages or disadvantages. We were dealing with marketing the product to the best advantage for all the teams."

Cliff Fletcher, general manager of the Flames, said Calgary wants realignment eventually, but for the present he's happy "to be in the best division in hockey."

Fletcher said there was talk about having unbalanced schedules in the future, with playoffs within the conferences and then the two conference winners meeting in the Stanley Cup final. Last season the top 16 clubs met in the playoffs under a format which saw the team with the most points playing the team with the fewest, regardless of conferences.

The sale of the Atlanta franchise to the new majority owner of the Flames, Nelson Skalbania, was unanimously approved by the governors after Skalbania told them of guaranteed gate revenues of at least $6 million for next season, with the 6,500-seat Calgary Corral already sold out.

In other developments, the governors elected Wirtz to his second-straight and fourth term as chairman of the board, with Robert Sedgewick of Toronto Maple Leafs named vice-chairman and Robert Swados of Buffalo Sabres the secretary.

Travel equalization was discussed and tabled for future consideration, while the Central Scouting Bureau headed by Jim Gregory was approved for another year.

Canucks set to play benefit softball game

Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League are trading skates for cleats and will face an all-star team from the Heywood Men's Softball League in an exhibition game July 12.

Proceeds from the game, which is scheduled for 2 p.m., will go to the George Pearkes Clinic for handicapped children.

Canucks scheduled to play include former Victoria Cougar stars Curt Fraser and Gary Lupul as well as Kevin McCarthy, Harold Snepsts, Chris Oddleifson, Dennis Kearns, Rick Blight, Stu Ostlund and Richard Martens.

Martina feels great as Wimbledon star

LONDON (AP) — Defending-champion Martina Navratilova raced to a 6-3, 6-0 first-round victory over South African Ilana Kloss on Tuesday and declared herself in great shape to win the women's division of the Wimbledon tennis tournament for the third straight year.

"I don't feel unbeatable," she said, "but I think it's right that I am the favorite."

The top seed took 33 minutes to defeat Kloss.

Navratilova has had little grass court match play, losing in the third round at Eastbourne last week, but said she felt ready.

"People say that I have not had enough match play on grass, but I feel fine. I think I am the best judge.

"I got in lots of grass court practice after losing at Eastbourne and I felt confident today and was hitting the ball sharply. I don't think one or two matches makes much difference."

Navratilova's victory was watched by her entire family, granted exit visas by the Czechoslovakian government and planning to settle in Dallas.

Navratilova, who has lost six pounds to come down to 144 — her lowest weight in seven years — said her desire to win Wimbledon seemed to increase every year.

"Of course you want to keep winning. But my desire to in this tournament seems to be getting greater. Once you know what it feels like you want to carry on."

Navratilova is seeded to meet Tracy Austin, 17, in the women's singles final and said she felt both players had improved this year.

"Sure Tracy has got bigger and better," said Martina, "but I've also got better. I have to feel this way.

"I feel I can do more with the ball than last year, but so can Tracy. I just hope I've stayed ahead.

"I know if somebody catches me when I'm not playing well I could lose. You have to be realistic. Sure, grass suits my game but it is also a great equalizer if you get some bad bounces and maybe some wind."

Martina said the pressure on her increased each year.

"When you've never won, people don't expect anything from you. As defending champion I find people expect a bit more."

Navratilova was one of the few players to beat the English weather, which wrecked the program Tuesday for the second straight day.

Austin cruised to a 6-1, 6-2 victory over another Californian, Alycia Moulton, but only a handful of other matches were completed.

Tenth-seeded Kathy Jordan scored a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Kim Sands, while eighth-seeded Australian Dianne Fromholtz ousted American Roberta McCallum, 7-5, 6-3.

Wojtek Fibak of Poland, seeded No.13 in the men's singles, came from behind to defeat Mark Edmondson of Australia in a match that was spread over more than 24 hours. Edmondson led 5-1 in the fourth set Monday night and squandered three match points. Fibak took the set and then took Tuesday's final set 10-8 to win, 5-7, 6-4, 3-6, 7-6, 10-8.

Roscoe Tanner, seeded fifth, cruised to a 6-2, 6-0, 6-4 victory over Jiri Hrebec of Czechoslovakia.

Irish hopes brighter

Victoria Shamrocks, tied with New Westminster Salmonbellies for second place in the Western Lacrosse Association and hoping to gain first place, received some good news Tuesday night.

The up-and-coming Vancouver Burrards defeated league-leading Coquitlam Adanacs 10-6 before about 900 fans at Kerrisdale Arena.

Shamrocks and Salmonbellies meet tonight at 8 in Memorial Arena.

Vancouver led Coquitlam 3-2 after one period and 5-3 after two.

Burrard's coach Bill Bradley was ejected near the end of the game after complaining about game misconducts to Vancouver players Ron Pinder and Doug Hayes.

Baseball fans can watch an interlocking game between Farmer Construction of the Victoria Cosmopolitan Senior League and Victoria Merchants of the Pacific Coast Junior League at 6:30 in Lambrick Park.

Cromartie's habit fortunate for Expos

By Canadian Press

Someone asked Warren Cromartie how many game-winning hits he had had this season. Quite a few, right?

"I don't count them," said Cromartie. "Maybe (Pete) Rose does.

"I don't keep tabs on that stuff. I just go out and play baseball."

Cromartie, who has hit in eight straight games and is batting .317, singled home the winning Montreal run in the 10th inning Tuesday night, giving the Expos a 7-6 victory over Philadelphia and a 2½-game lead over the Phils in the National League East.

Ron LeFlore started the 10th for Montreal with a single and advanced to second on an infield out. With first base open and lefty reliever Tug McGraw, 0-3, on the mound, Philadelphia manager Dallas Green ordered the right-handed swinging Gary Carter to be walked. That brought Cromartie, a lefty, to bat.

"The percentage was just as high with Tug out there against both guys in that situation," Green said. "But the way Carter has handled our pitching, I felt it was best to go left-hander against left-hander."

Carter's line single in the eighth had given the Expos a short-lived 6-5 lead, but the Phils tied it with two out in the ninth on an RBI-single by Garry Maddox.

Cromartie said the intentional walk gave him a lift.

"It's always a challenge. That's the percentage, left-hand pitcher against left-hand hitter, and Tug McGraw has always been tough on me. He just threw me a good fastball, and I saw it."

Expos built a 4-0 lead after five innings on RBI hits by Chris Speier in the second, Andre Dawson in the third, LeFlore in the fourth and rookie Brad Mills in the fifth. Dawson's was a homer, his ninth.

Mike Schmidt's 21st homer of the year highlighted Philadelphia's four-run fifth, but Montreal regained the lead on consecutive doubles by LeFlore and Rodney Scott in the sixth. The Phils tied it again in the seventh on a throwing error by right fielder Rowland Office.

Elias Sosa, 5-2, relieved in the seventh and earned the victory.

Canada will use pros in 1981 world hockey

TORONTO (CP) — Canada will be represented at the 1981 world hockey tournament by professional players from National Hockey League teams that miss the playoffs.

Al Eagleson, chief international representative for Hockey Canada, said today the decision was made recently by Hockey Canada and it has notified the International Ice Hockey Federation of the change for the world tournament in Sweden.

As a result, Eagleson said, plans for a summer training camp for the national hockey team have been dropped.

"The concept of a permanent national team is being held in limbo for this year, at least," he said.

The amateur nationals, sixth at the Olympics last winter, were to play exhibitions against professional clubs, two tournaments in Europe, a tournament in Calgary in December and the world event.

However, with the cancellation of the Canada Cup tournament in September, several factors came into play, Eagleson said.

With no Canada Cup tournament, Hockey Canada would not have the revenue it expected.

Oerter gains final

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Al Oerter, a four-time Olympic champion competing in what he calls "just another track meet," qualified Tuesday for the discus final at the United States Olympic track and field trials.

The 43-year old Oerter, in the midst of a remarkable comeback that has captivated sports fans throughout the world, hurled the discus 200 feet, one inch on his first toss during qualifying. He then passed the final two attempts.

"Today I had a nice, easy throw," said Oerter, who has loudly expresed support for the United States' boycott of the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow, after originally being against it.

Oerter, the Olympic champion in 1956, 1960, 1964, and 1968 before going into a 10-year retirement, said he had no intention of competing in any proposed "counter Olympic Games."

Book on cycle touring thick with information

by stewart lang

Some rambling notes along the trail:

Although the current weather pattern suggests otherwise, the prime cycling season has arrived in British Columbia.

And, anybody contemplating a trip by bicycle this summer should pick up a copy of a new book entitled: The Complete Outfitting & Source Book for Bicycle Touring.

Written and edited by Gail Heilman and distributed by Holt, Rinehart and Winston, the book costs $9.75.

It's chock-full of information on just about every facet of touring, including equipment and accessories, publications, routes for each state and province as well as organized tours and expeditions.

If this book doesn't have the necessary information, it tells you where to get it without a lot of trial-and-error searching.

A lot of the data on equipment is also useful for backpackers and canoeists, who have similar needs for light durable gear.

While we're on the subject, you might want to check out the latest edition of the B.C. Outdoors Fishing Guide.

Available at most newstands for $3, the 1980 edition has been revamped considerably and must still stand as the bible for freshwater fishermen planning a trip to any other part of the province.

As usual, it contains some superb articles on a variety of topics, an extensive freshwater directory and a greatly-expanded section on saltwater spots.

Boaters should take a gander at the newly-refurbished Deep Cove Marina in Sidney.

Approximately $300,000 has been spent by owners David Else, Mike Hounslow and Mike Lafortune to upgrade the facilities which include boat sales, a store, fuel dock and breakwater.

Another new feature at Deep Cove is Marsh Marine Charterboats. John Marsh and his wife Patricia have a fleet of 16 power and sail craft on hand, from 25 to 42 feet in length, for vacations, operating lessons and fishing expeditions.

Island Mountain Ramblers have a number of interesting outings on tap for the month of July.

Be sure to get in touch with the leader several days in advance if you want to go on a particular trip.

On July 6, there will be a "fairly strenuous" jaunt up Mt. Hooper from Sadie Creek near the headwaters of the Nanaimo River (Doreen Cowlin: wk - 388-5522; hm - 479-6366).

A Mt. Arrowsnith trail work party is set for July 13 (Bob Tusin: 754-5403 or Mike Taylor: 748-1309) and families can participate in a hike the same day along the Cowichan River trail (Warrick Whitehead: 748-1374).

July 19-20 will involve a canoeing and exploring trip to Hobiton and Tsusiat lakes in the Nitinat triangle (Jan Whitehead: 748-1374).

Or, if you fancy something a little more rugged, try a week-long backpacking and mountaineering trek in Stratchona Park July 19-27 (Margaret Symon: 753-3798 or Brian Johnson: 592-6402 or Taylor).

The Sierra Club also has two interesting outings in the works for July.

Trips are open to everyone but non-members will be charged a fee of $2 in addition to a share of the transportation and/or food expenses.

This weekend, starting Saturday, there is a four-day backpacking trip in the Hart Lake area of Olympic National Park (Bo Martin: 595-0655).

July 20-26 there will be either a canoe trip between Zeballos and Esperanza on the west coast of Vancouver Island or a hiking trip around Brooks Peninsula. The response will dictate the destination (Ken Gibbard: 477-4656).

Good news for B.C. Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Lions of the Canadian Football League have received the good news for which they were hoping — x-rays of quarterback Joe Paopao's bruised right shoulder and ribs proved negative.

Paopao received the injury Sunday in the first half of the Lions' exhibition victory over Calgary Stampeders.

Coach Vic Rapp said the disappearance of two protective vests from the club's equipment inventory might have been responsible for the injury.

Storm thwarts Indies

LONDON (AP) — Rain thwarted West Indian cricketers Tuesday when the second Test match against England at Lord's was abandoned as a draw.

A hailstorm hit the area shorly after lunch and when it stopped 20 minutes later, enough rain had fallen to make the pitch unplayable.

In answer to West Indies' first ininngs score of 519, England had followed its first innings score of 269 with 133 for 2 when play was halted.

Geoff Boycott was one short of his 36th half-century for England at 49 not out and Bob Woolmer was at 19 when the storm hit.

West Indies leads the five-match series 1-0 and the third match starts July 10 at Manchester.

Legion home skein broken by Runners

Esquimalt Legion suffered a setback Tuesday night that overshadowed the end of a four-game Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League winning streak at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Sean Doyle, who has been a big asset since joining the club from the East recently, will be out of action for an indefinite period after suffering an injury as Richmond Roadrunners posted a 13-8 victory.

Doyle, who scored a goal and an assist earlier in the game, was chopped down from behind late in the second period and carried from the floor with an injured knee.

Esquimalt general manager Bob Reid said today that preliminary examination indicated nothing was broken or torn.

"It looks like bad strains . . . and it appears rehabilitation is possible this year."

He stressed, however, the examination was only preliminary and the doctor couldn't say how long Doyle might be on the sidelines.

Roadrunners, who held period leads of 4-2 and 9-5, vaulted into a tie for second place with Coquitlam Adanacs and the loss leaves Legion in a deadlock for last place with Burnaby Cablevision.

Kip Jarvis led the Richmond attack with three goals while Tod Lorenz added two goals and four assists. Art Hazel and Bob Johnston also scored two goals each for the Roadrunners and singles were added by Mike Gillies, Bert Greg, Dave Stark and Doug Morison.

Jim Lightbody and Terry Jay led the Esquimalt reply with two goals each while other single tallies were contributed by Ed Van Dyke, Mike Thomas and John Crowther.

Ed Perevich blocked 34 shots on the Richmond goal and Derek Croucher and herb Isherwood combined to make 30 saves for Esquimalt, which faces Adanacs tonight in Coquitlam.

Blues cruise past Phillies

BEND, Ore — Victoria Blues crammed four runs into the first inning and then cruised to an 8-1 victory over Central Oregon Phillies in a Northwest League baseball game Tuesday night.

The game was delayed several times by rain and finally ended after the eighth inning.

Blues collected the first-inning runs on two hits, an error, a walk and another base hit.

Lozando Washington set the pace for Victoria's nine-hit attack with four singles in four trips to the plate.

Blues, who now have a 3-4 record, play Central Oregon again tonight and Wednesday before travelling to Grays Harbor.

The Victoria club returns home July 1 for a game against Salem.

Canada ties

ROTTERDAM (CP) — Cathy Haig of Montreal scored late in the match to enable Canada to rally from a 2-0 deficit and tie the Netherlands 2-2 in an exhibition field hockey game Tuesday. Dana Sinclair of Vancouver scored the first goal for the Canadian side, which had played eight games in nine days.

Brothers set up payoffs

Two brothers provided driving highlights and deeper research might have given a few more handicappers a piece of the richest action Tuesday at Sandown Raceway.

The Ericsson brothers were involved in three good exactor payoffs in the harness-racing program, including one of the largest of the season in the eighth race.

Holridge Duke, driven by Hans Ericsson, and Dixboro Knox finished one-two and produced a payout of $310.60.

Hans' brother, Sten, drove longshots to victory and helped produce other hefty exactors in the fourth ($161.50) and seventh ($130.60) races.

Holridge Duke wasn't a surprise and paid $9.00. But Dixboro Knox returned $9.10 to place after fooling most handicappers.

The 10-year-old bay gelding broke stride early and finished a poor seventh in its only previous Sandown start (June 5) and was seventh in its only race at Cloverdale after arriving from the East Coast.

Careful checking might have showed that Dixboro Knox had a best time of two minutes for the mile while racing last season at Saratoga, N.Y. Dixboro Knox raced 14 times in 1979 and earned $18,000 with three wins, four place finishes and three shows.

A crowd of 1,267 was at the track, wagering $116,782.

Two Swiss bikers crack world mark

ZURICH, Switzerland (Reuter) — Heinz Isler and Urs Freuler both broke the world indoor bicycle record for one kilometre from a standing start during national qualifying tests for the Moscow Olympic Games.

Isler, 20, was clocked in one minute, 6.02 seconds, bettering the former mark of 1:06.15. Moments later, the 22-year-old Freuler clocked 1:05.58.

American sailor finishes trans-Atlantic race in record time

NEWPORT, R.I. (Reuter) — American Phil Weld, 64-year-old former newspaper publisher, today won the sixth singlehanded trans-Atlantic sailing race in record speed.

Weld's 15.5-metre-long trimaran Moxie crossed the finish line at 8:07, making him the first U.S. yachtsman to win the prestigous quadrennial race from Plymouth, England, to Newport.

He slashed more than 61 hours off the record of 20 days, 13 and one-quarter hours set in the 1972 race by Alain Colas of France.

Weld reported as he cruised across the finishing line that he was feeling so well he would sail directly into the marina to speak with reporters waiting at the dock.

In second place, about 64 kilometres behind Weld, was Nick Keig of Britain, followed closely by British-based Canadian Mike Birch and Walter Greene of the United States, all of them also in trimarans.

Wilkin, Donnally jolt Labs

Ron Donnally blasted a home run and Barry Wilkin pitched a four-hitter to lead Tod Hackett to a 2-0 shutout over Labatts in a Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League game Tuesday at Central Park.

Donnally smashed a high fly ball that hit the top of the fence and bounced over for the game-winning homer with two out in the fourth inning. Paul Morrison followed Donnelly with a double and a pinch-runner scored the insurance tally on a passed ball and an error.

At Hyacinth Park, Pam Jones pushed her pitching streak to 11 victories as Island Dryco Breakers topped Victoria Athletics 5-3 and New York-New York tripped McDonald Furniture 5-2 in Victoria-Saanich Senior Women's League play.

Jones yielded only three hits and struck out nine batters for the win while Sherry Gale set the batting pace for Breakers with four hits in four trips to the plate.

In the Heywood Men's League, Capital Builders packed five runs into the third inning en route to an 11-4 win over Ingraham Inn at Heywood Avenue Park.

Theo Vanderbergh contributed three singles to a 12-hit Capital attack while John Cocciotoni bashed a home run and scored three times. Dick Michaud picked up the pitching decision with a three-hitter, including a homer and a single by Ross Swanton.

Mayfair Insurance scored a 7-4 win over James Bay Inn while Rebels nipped Saints 5-4 in Macdonald Men's League play at Macdonald Park.

At Sanscha Park, Al Stewart did the most damage as Travelodge mauled Sidney Hotel 10-0 in the Sidney Men's Association.

Stewart hurled a three-hitter and led the attack with a bases-loaded double to drive in three runs.

In Lower Island Women's Association games, Market Square News topped Safeway 15-11 at Topaz Park and Sooke bounced Lakehill Meats 29-1 at Sooke.

Federal steno raise 9-12%

OTTAWA (CP) — About 14,000 public service typists, stenographers and secretaries have won an arbitration award that boosts their salaries between nine and 12 per cent.

Typists and stenographers currently earn between $8,143 and $11,700 annually while secretaries earn between $8,646 and $17,588. The typists and stenographers received 12 per cent and 11 per cent increases respectively and the secretaries nine per cent.

Treasury board had offered them a five-per-cent increase while they had sought a 16-per-cent raise.

Another recently announced arbitration award gave about 1,000 public service firefighters salary increases of 19.5 per cent in a two-year contract.

It will increase their basic salary to more than $20,000 this year.

The firefighters had rejected a negotiated settlement giving them a 16.5-per-cent increase.

Resource research lacking

OTTAWA (CP) — The provinces should quit fiddling around and get down to promoting more scientific research on their natural resources if they want to cash-in their potential energy bonanzas, says the new president of the National Research Council.

Larkin Kerwin, who took office June 1, says provinces such as Newfoundland with its offshore oil, Nova Scotia with its coal and Alberta with its oil sands should be putting more money into research to properly develop the resources.

Kerwin says that after years of hard lobbying, the federal government has finally been convinced to rehabilitate the country's crippled scientific community. It recently announced it wants spending on research and development raised to $4 billion from the current $2.4 billion.

Now, he said in a recent interview, a major part of his job is getting industry and the provinces to do more high-technology research and development to put the economy back on a sound footing.

Kerwin, a molecular physicist and former rector of Quebec City's Laval University, took office June 1 replacing William Schneider, a research chemist who had joined the government-supported council in 1946.

"Schneider has done a very good job here against the current of public apathy. . . He had to struggle through the lean years when government neglected research and development and industry neglected it even more."

He said the council will support the provinces in increasing research and development efforts.

Nova Scotia, for example, is counting on its coal resources to provide jobs and energy. Known and possible reserves are around one billion tonnes.

But Kerwin says the Maritime coal is poor quality and high in pollution-causing sulphur.

"It requires much processing and it requires a great deal of development to put it into forms suitable for burning or for conversion to petroleum products," he said.

"Nova Scotia, if it's going to make coal go, has to do a lot of research and development and we intend to help them. But this should be a provincial priority."

The council can guide regional and provincial research efforts, he said. In recent years it has decentralized some operations, tailoring programs to specific areas of the country.

For example, a cold water engineering research laboratory was set up with St. John's Memorial University to address pressing problems in that region as Newfoundland plans to tap its undersea oil resources for development.

The greatest challenge for the future is getting industry to do more science, says Kerwin. They must learn to research new technologies and design innovative products for sale.

Too many companies think research and development is necessary to get a tax shelter or to build a good public image, said Kerwin.

Market boss quits

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rex Werts, government-appointed chairman of the B.C. Marketing Board, has resigned for personal reasons. The board oversees farm marketing boards in the province.

Sask. rejects oil price indexing

TISDALE, Sask. (CP) — Saskatchewan has rejected Ottawa's plan to tie prices for oil sands, heavy oil and other unconventional production to the annual cost-of-living indicator, Energy Minister Jack Messer says.

Messer said Monday that the federal government wants to tie unconventional oil prices to the general rate of inflation, not to a specific rate tied to the rising costs of oil sands exploitation.

The increase would be the same percentage as the cost of living increase. Last week, former Alberta energy minister Don Getty said the oil industry would accept a price increase two percentage points higher than the cost-of-living increase.

Messer said the general inflation rate is not necessarily equalled in the oil industry.

A set rate of increase may at times leave industry short of money, while at other times meaning windfall profits if companies are able to keep cost increases below inflation.

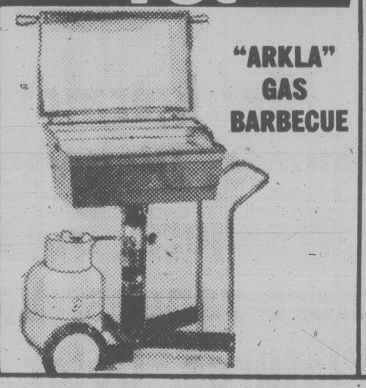
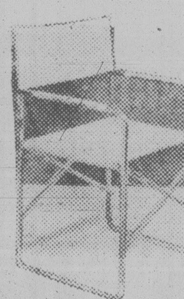
WIN A summerfunthing

Play it daily and be eligible to win weekly prizes. It's easy and it's fun — just follow the instructions below . . .

THIS WEEK'S PRIZES

1st — "ARKLA" GAS BARBECUE
2nd — SUPERSPORT BACK PACK
3rd — SET OF 2 DIRECTORS CHAIRS (3 sets to be won)





HOW TO PLAY
Locked inside the "SUMMERFUNTHING" safe are many valuable prizes. Some of those prizes could be yours if you find the correct PASSWORD that opens the combination lock. It's an exciting game that's fun and easy to enter. The instructions on the dial give you the position of the letters in the "SUMMERFUNTHING" PASSWORD. All you have to do is find the first letter to start. For instance, suppose you started at the letter E and the instructions read 2nd LETTER-FOUR COUNTER CLOCKWISE. Count four spaces in a counter-clockwise direction from the letter E and you arrive at the letter A. The next instruction reads 3rd LETTER-EIGHT COUNTER CLOCKWISE, so count off eight spaces in a counter-clockwise direction from the letter A and you arrive at the letter S. Finally the 4th letter. SIX CLOCKWISE means you count in a clockwise direction from the letter S and you arrive at the letter Y. In this example the PASSWORD is the word E-A-S-Y. To give you another clue and to add to the interest, each day's password is scrambled and you will find it at the bottom of the illustration.

GAME RULES
1. Winners will be chosen by random drawing from all valid entries. All winners must answer a skill testing question.
2. Winners from the previous week will be published in the Saturday Times and Sunday Colonist.
3. It is not necessary for contestants to buy the Colonist or Times to enter the SUMMERFUNTHING contest. An exact drawing of the entry form printed in the Colonist or Times may be made on a plain piece of paper. Note: copies produced by any other process will not be accepted.
4. The SUMMERFUNTHING judges will have the final decision on any interpretation of Game rules.
5. As a condition of receiving prizes, recipients agree to allow publication of their names and pictures in the Colonist or Times for no additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all rules. No prize substitutions.
6. The contest is open to all readers of the Daily Colonist and Victoria Times on Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands. Employees of Victoria Press and their immediate families are not eligible to enter.
7. In fairness to all, the Colonist or Times cannot answer questions or respond to phone calls or letters regarding THE SUMMERFUNTHING CONTEST.
8. All winners will be determined by a random draw from all valid entries.

HOW TO ENTER
Complete the puzzle and fill in the "PASSWORD" on the entry form. Clip out the entry form and send it to us in an envelope with the puzzle number printed in the top left hand corner of the envelope. (As illustrated.)

Be sure to include your name, address and phone number on the entry form.

Enter as many times as you wish but make sure each entry is in a separate envelope.

Investigators overlook 21 crashes

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — Transport Canada failed to suspend the operating licence of a Saskatchewan airline that experienced 21 crashes in four years, killing 16 people and seriously injuring 13, a federal air safety inquiry heard Tuesday.

Despite evidence of repeated violations of air regulations, particularly on aircraft maintenance, Transport Canada issued only a warning to Athabaska Airways Ltd. of Prince Albert that its operating licence would be suspended.

"Is that effective enforcement in your opinion?" John Sopinka, chief counsel for the aviation inquiry, asked William Slaughter, a Transport Canada official from Winnipeg in charge of enforcement for the central region.

"Overloading, falsification of logbook entries, illegal and unsafe maintenance practices, flying below legal limits in bad weather, flying VFR with insufficient flight instruments and other illegal and dangerous practices too numerous to list here are so common as to be accepted as normal practice by many pilots and operators," he read.

Sopinka said also a Transport Canada guideline issued to its inspectors asks, "Do you fully consider the possibility of embarrassment to the minister and any other potential political implications which may result from suspension action?"

Slaughter said he could not defend the actions of his department.

The inquiry heard that federal investigators found Athabaska was engaging in questionable practices during a visit to the company last February.

They found the company had discovered the push flap rods of its Twin Otters were cracked, and, instead of replacing them, maintenance engineers were trying to polish or grind the cracks out.

A general order went out for inspections of the push rods after the crash of a Twin Otter in Vancouver's Coal Harbor in 1978.

The cause of the crash, which killed 11 people, was cracking in the rods caused by stress corrosion.

In another example critical of Transport Canada's enforcement efforts, the inquiry heard evidence that the operating certificate of an Ontario airline was reinstated this year after the company gave written assurance it would conduct its operations safely and according to regulations.

Twenty-one days later a company Cessna tried to take off overloaded, crashed and killed six people, including the pilot.

The airline, Tomahawk Airways Ltd. of Sandy Lake, in northwestern Ontario, had committed numerous breaches of air regulations.

Investigators found the company was routinely flying planes that were overloaded and poorly maintained.

But when the Winnipeg controller in 1977 asked Ottawa to suspend Tomahawk's operating certificate, permission was denied because it might cause political embarrassment to the transport minister, the inquiry was told.

On Feb. 28 this year, Tomahawk's operating certificate finally was suspended, but the suspension only lasted a week when company officials assured the department that future commercial operations will be conducted in a safe and proper manner.

It was on March 24 that another overloaded Cessna attempted to take off from a muddy airstrip at Deer Lake. It failed to gain altitude and crashed into trees.

Tried to tip off Fox: ex-Mountie

OTTAWA (CP) — Former Mountie Donald McCleery testified today that he tried to see solicitor-general Francis Fox in 1977 "to let him know that the hierarchy of the force (RCMP) was lying to the government."

McCleery was testifying before a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing as it prepares to write its report to the government.

McCleery and Gilles Brunet, another former member of the RCMP security service in Montreal, were fired from the RCMP in 1973.

Both had sought reinstatement and McCleery said this was the main reason they tried to meet Fox in 1977 as word of RCMP lawbreaking began to leak out.

Instead, a meeting was arranged with Roger Tasse, then deputy solicitor-general, and Louis-Philippe Landry, a senior justice department official, on June 6, 1977.

Commission Counsel Ross Goodwin asked whether McCleery and Brunet had mentioned arson, theft and other RCMP wrongdoing at the meeting.

McCleery said Brunet raised the case of a "cottage" being burned by Mounties in Quebec's Eastern Townships but he himself shied away from the subject.

He said he told them about illegal RCMP mail-opening.

McCleery said he and Brunet left the meeting feeling their time had been wasted.

"They (Tasse and Landry) were in the same bed with the (RCMP) commissioner . . ."

Only good die young: J.R. lives

DALLAS (AP) — It has long been said that only the good die young. Well, J. R. Ewing, the dastardly wheeler-dealer of Dallas, is alive and kicking.

Larry Hagman, who portrays the sinister oil and cattle baron, rejoined the 10-member cast of the CBS television series Tuesday on location here, said Earl Wingard, a publicist for Lorimar Productions.

J. R., probably the world's favorite TV heavy, was shot in the series' closing episode last year. No one knew then whether he would survive — and it has not been disclosed yet who pulled the trigger.

Almost every character in the weekly hour-long prime time soap opera is a suspect. And Lorimar executives are determined to keep the mystery a secret until the show is broadcast Sept. 19.

Hagman flew to Texas from London on Sunday, almost two weeks after filming of the fall series began, and on Monday reached agreement with Lorimar in their lengthy contract dispute.

Industry spokesmen speculated Hagman had demanded as much as $100,000 an episode to return to the show. The settlement is reported to make Hagman one of the highest-paid actors on television.

On Tuesday, J. R. was rolled in a wheelchair from the fictitious Dallas General Hospital.

"I was supposed to have guards 24 hours a day," cried J. R. "What burns me is how they got in the office in the first place. They're just trying to drag more money out of me, that's what they're trying to do."

Dallas police already have arrested Cliff Barnes, played by Ken Kercheval, the brother of J. R.'s sister-in-law, and lawyer Alan Beam, depicted by Raymond Powell.

Authorities planned to arrest J. R.'s wife, Sue Ellen, today, Wingard said.

Sue Ellen Ewing, played by Linda Gray, was to be arrested and taken to police headquarters for questioning in the shooting of her husband.

But, Wingard insists: "Nobody really knows who did it."

"That decision will be made after several shots (of nabbing the suspect) are made," he said. "One will be skipped in right before air time."

Artists of the year

OTTAWA (CP) — Teresa Stratas of Toronto and Louis-Philippe Pelletier of Montreal have been named artists of the year by the Canadian Music Council with Harry Freedman of Toronto named composer of the year.

The awards were among a series announced Tuesday by the council, a volunteer organization established in 1944 to co-ordinate the activities of many national musical organizations and which speaks for the whole musical profession.

The awards presentations will be made at a time still to be announced.

John Avison of Vancouver, a pianist, acompanist and choir conductor who established the CBC Vancouver Chamber Orchestra in 1938, was awarded a 1980 council medal.

Ballet marks birthday

WASHINGTON (CP) — The National Ballet of Canada, 29 years old, helped an older artistic sister celebrate a birthday here this week with a performance marking the 30th anniversary of the centre-city outdoor showplace named the Carter Barron Amphitheatre.

Veronica Tennant and Peter Schaufuss danced the star roles in the National's production of the classic Giselle before an audience of about 1,500 that included U.S. Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, Canadian Ambassador Peter Towe and visiting Manpower Minister Lloyd Axworthy.

The Toronto-based ballet was invited to help launch a summer-long anniversary festival at the midtown amphitheatre because the National was the first group of foreign artists to perform there back in the beginnings of both institutions 25 years ago.

Ugly duckling blooms, nastier than ever

by vernon scott

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The meanest character this side of Dallas' J.R. Ewing on weekly television is Nellie Oleson, the vile teenager in Little House on The Prairie.

Nellie, a.k.a. Nasty Nellie, could give lessons in rottenness to J.R.

Her sole mission in life is to terrorize the town of Walnut Grove, bringing misery and tragedy to all, especially poor little Laura Ingalls, the fresh-scrubbed heroine of the show.

Last season, Nellie purposely caused Laura to flunk a vital teaching examination. As Laura wept over the calumny, Nellie was having lunch with Laura's beau. She then triumphantly informed Laura of her double-cross.

Early in the history of the show, Nellie humiliated a crippled little girl by making her remove her corrective shoes so everyone could see her deformity.

She employs blackmail when necessary, calls people disparaging names. She made a little girl stutterer do tongue twisters like Peter Piper.

"Nellie is a mean, petty, gossipy, vile bitch," said Alison Arngrim who has grown up in the role during the past six years. "She's despicable and diabolical and those are her good points. She's also delightful to play."

Were it not for vicious Nellie Oleson, the entire cast, crew and most the viewers of the sugary NBC series would doubtless contract diabetes.

Alison, a luscious blonde 18-year-old who joined the series as Nellie at the age of 11, has paid the price of juvenile villainy. She is roundly reviled by fans of the show of every age.

Only once, during her first year as Nellie, did Alison make a public appearance in full costume, ruffly pinafore, blonde wig with Shirley Temple curls, and long white stockings.

"It was terrible," Alison recalls today. "I went to an Easter lawn party for a charity event. When the other kids saw me, they hit and kicked me. I never put on that wardrobe off the set again.

"Nellie gets me in enough trouble when I make public appearances without costume and wig. People booed me the last time I rode in the Santa Claus Lane parade down Hollywood Boulevard. They threw garbage at me.

"In public restrooms, at least one woman will say, 'I hate you.' Usually a woman will say, 'I hate your guts. You're wonderful. I see you every week.' Or they'll call me a bitch — or worse — before they know what they've said.

"Their opening remarks are usually a shock reaction. They get red-faced and excited. Then they realize I'm an actress and they soften up.

"I've based Nellie's character on some frightful little girls I knew in real life. Girls are much meaner than little boys. Boys may hit you when they get mad, but girls will scheme for weeks and months and years to do something vile.

"There was a rough gang of about 10 girls when I was in junior high school in Hollywood. When they found out I was Nellie, I became their heroine. But it was really tough for me to find boyfriends.

"Boys wouldn't touch me with a 40-foot pole. The minute they found out I was Nellie, it was goodbye. I only had five dates in high school."

Now available young men are lining up for dates. She has plantinum blonde hair, enormous eyes and a spectacular figure.

But as a newlywed in Little House On The Praire, she is the same despicable, onery Nellie. The producers have made her the owner and operator of Walnut Grove's hotel and restaurant where she can vent her spleen on customers.

"Nellie has gotten worse with age," Alison giggled. "As a child she could be excused because she didn't know any better. Now her viciousness is adult premeditation, thanks to years of experience at being rotten.

"Playing a bitch like Nellie makes it more fun to go to the studio every morning. I hear people complain about having to go to work and be nice to people. I get to go to work and be rotten."

Alison admits to a small streak of Nellie in her own character. Three years ago she began heckling a comedian from the audience of a small nightclub. She finally wound up on stage with the comic, topping all his lines.

The angry comedian said, "If you think this is easy, why don't you try it?"

Alison said, "One week later I was on the same stage doing a stand-up routine. After that night the comedian quit the business.

"Now I work two or three nights a week in small clubs in the Los Angeles area as a stand-up comedienne. They boo when I walk on stage. I hear people in the audience whisper, 'It's the bitch!'

"I say, 'That's right. I'm the bitch. I use a microwave oven as a bird cage. Now that I'm 18, I'm too old for the Roman Polanski Daycare Center. Of course, any girl over 14 is too old for Polanski.' And I go on from there.

"The audience warms up to me and forgets about Nellie Oleson. Sometimes I wish other people would, too."

Setup in MacKay bugging?

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Toronto private investigators who pleaded guilty to public mischief in the 1977 discovery of bugging devices in Progressive Conservative party offices on Parliament Hill were sentenced Tuesday to jail terms but not before one of them claimed they had been "set up."

Daniel McGarry, 47, a 14-year veteran of the Toronto police force and president of the now-defunct Centurion Investigations Ltd., was sentenced to two years less a day on the mischief charge and six months concurrent for attempting to defraud the party by submitting a $13,000 bill for his services.

William Sandiford, 35, an electronics expert who ran Uniserv Investigations Ltd., a subsidiary of Centurion, was sentenced to one year in jail on the mischief charge.

Both men pleaded guilty April 28 but McGarry took the stand for nearly four hours Tuesday to deny planting the bugging devices the two men found in Conservative MP Elmer MacKay's office and in then-Opposition Leader Joe Clark's telephone Oct. 31, 1977.

McGarry told the court that after the police investigation of the discoveries turned in their direction, he "got to thinking that Sandiford and I were the victims of some kind of setup."

After being charged, he received calls from "reliable sources" who confirmed the suspicions. One man in Ottawa to whom he spoke several times said the two investigators had become "pawns in a political situation."

He said he has his own suspicions of who planted the bugs but did not elaborate.

McGarry said he pleaded guilty to end the affair quickly and start afresh.

"I'm a man at the end of his tether. I'm totally broke. I couldn't afford to fight it any longer."

Speaking to sentence, McGarry's lawyer, Paul Shapiro of Toronto, told the court the bugging devices had been meant to be found. McGarry's fault was "stupidly" managing his part in the affair.

The investigator realized they weren't the kind of bugging devices normally found during surveillance sweeps of offices but continued the masquerade even after his suspicions were aroused, Shapiro said.

He told the court MacKay's secretary sent a note to the MP in the Commons as soon as the bug was located in the bottom of a chair in his office.

MacKay immediately made his startling announcement in the House at a time when the government and the country's security services were under daily attack and bugs were causing widespread concern.

The MP for the Nova Scotia riding of Central Nova then brought reporters to his office, ignoring McGarry's advice to turn the device over to police quietly for further investigation, Shapiro said.

McGarry then rode the crest of publicity in hopes of building his firm into the largest in Canada, unaware he was involved in a plot to dupe the country and embarrass the Liberal government, the lawyer added.

"The story of Dan McGarry is the story of a man who grasped too far, too fast — a man who was a little bit too greedy, too ambitious with not enough integrity. He put everything on the line and lost."

MAKING LIGHT of the situation, Quebec Premier Rene Levesque puts the St. Jean Baptiste Day torch used to ignite the traditional celebration fire to good use as he, with wife Corine and a boy, Oliver Dufour, 7, launch Quebec City's famed holiday. Later in the celebrations, demonstrators burned a Canadian flag during the otherwise peaceful St. Jean Baptiste parade.

Thanks to Dr. Leo Wollman, the quick lunch may never be the same. The New York psychiatrist has studied 3,000 patrons gobbling up goodies at various eateries in a bid to learn the difference between hotdog afficianados and hamburger noshers. His conclusions, "Hot dog eaters tend to be outgoing, aggressive, ambitious extroverts." Burgers, he says, attract "quieter, introverted, more conservative types." And — "people who eat hot dogs usually grab it and go. Hamburger eaters take more time. They're better dressed executive types, used to making decisions." So before you order next time, think "image" — and eat a fishwich.

Dear Abby:

By the time you receive this the party will be over, but I would like your opinion.

My father-in-law will turn 50 on Sunday, and he's been slightly upset about attaining this milestone. In order to help him through this traumatic birthday, his daughter decided to give him a surprise birthday party. The theme of this party is a "wake" for her father's youth. She is going to have a regular-size coffin on display and have the place decorated like a funeral parlor. My husband and I find the whole idea very morbid. Are we being stuffy and narrow-minded?

Repulsed

Dear Repulsed:

This fake wake strikes me as sick, tasteless and strained. But I'd like to know how the idea went over.

Dear Abby:

My husband's sister is being married soon in another state. My husband and I plan to attend her wedding, but here is the problem. We have three children, ages five, three and 14 months old. They are very active, and to say they are a handful is a mild understatement. I want to leave them home so that I can have a little vacation and relax away from home, kids and responsibilities.

My mother has offered to stay with them in my absence, but my husband wants to take them — to show them off! He says it will be "unfair" to his relatives if we don't bring the kids.

Hassle

Dear Hassle:

I think it will be unfair to you if your husband insists on taking them. Furthermore, he owes you more than he owes his relatives. Besides, his relatives will look at the kids for two minutes, and you'll have to look after them the rest of the time.

Dear Abby:

My husband and I are at odds over a family problem. A friend recently asked if he could spend the weekend at our home, as he was coming to town on business. I told him I was sorry but we would not be in town. Then he asked if he could stay at our home anyway. I said, "No, I would be uneasy having anyone in our home during our absence, but perhaps you can make it another weekend when we can all be together."

My husband agreed with my response, as this man wasn't a very close friend. Where we disagreed was with regard to relatives and close friends.

My mother-in-law is coming to town, and she has asked for access to our home in our absence. My husband says that's fine, but, Abby, I am very uncomfortable with the idea (we both don't get along with her as it is), and I think it was presumptuous of her to ask.

They rewrote the (cook)book

By LON WOOD

Bill and Ora Lynn Fraser . . . Vancouver teachers turned gourmet publishers

Tired of eating meat at every meal and unenthused by most vegetarian offerings?

That's the dilemma Bill and Ora Lynn Fraser faced 10 years ago when they began a search through the cookbooks and kitchens of North America for fruit and vegetable recipes.

The search has culminated in the publication of La Cuisine Naturelle.

"It really started with Ora Lynn's desire to vary our meals," said Bill during a visit to the Times this week. "We're not vegetarians, but we got so tired of potatoes and gravy, carrots with butter, the heavy, heavy sauces and green beans out of the package sort of thing."

The cookbook boasts 638 recipes, from artichoke bottoms florentine to honey broiled grapefruit, and even dedicates 26 recipes to the lowly potato.

But nowhere will you find mention of any animal products, including dairy foods such as milk, eggs and cheese.

"I don't know why no one has done a cookbook like this before," Fraser said. "Maybe it's because we've been raised in a heavy meat-oriented society. The meat entry is the basis of almost every meal.

"When we looked for fruit and vegetable recipes, we went to vegetarian cookbooks, but a lot of the recipes are very heavy and contain a lot of protein — a little heavy on dairy products, grains and such."

Fraser said the cookbook's philosophy is to prepare foods "simply and naturally by enhancing their tastes rather than covering them up."

But he said there is no intention to convert people to a strict regimen of fruits and vegetables.

"A lot of people try to become vegetarians and get turned off," he said.

"Our biggest response so far has been from people who eat meat. People have tried the recipes and have said, 'That's terrific.' The natural food idea is a bonus but most of them don't really care."

The cookbook, despite its French title, is printed in English with English and French subtitles.

"We owe a tremendous amount to the French — they've taught us a good deal of what we know about cooking," said Fraser.

"The book is heavily oriented to French cooking. It is cuisine as opposed to 'just grub'."

The French influence began when Ora Lynn took up study with Vancouver restaurateur Pierre Dubrulle. She then began to put together her own versions of the world's classic fruit and vegetable dishes — Italian, Indian, Chinese, whatever.

"We formed our own publishing company so that we could control the quality of the project from the beginning to the end," said Bill. "That's a story in itself. The production phase for this book has been nearly four years."

Bill's regular job is that of office furniture salesman. Both Frasers are former public school teachers. They met in the mountains at Bow Lake, Alberta while working one summer.

"We taught for three years in Calgary," he said. "I would like to teach again but we're having too much fun doing this right now."

There are 336 pages but no page numbers. The entire book is arranged alphabetically and every recipe is numbered. It's divided into two big sections — one for fruit and one for vegetables.

The vegetable section includes 60 salads, 30 soups — and the 26 potato recipes,

The book is indexed so that if you make the tomatoe sauce recipe, the index tells you all the recipes in the book it is used in.

All ingredients are in both metric and Imperial measure.

"It assumes you know virtually nothing so that anyone can go through any recipe step by step," said Bill.

The word "butter" always appears in quotes, and the Frasers use a light corn oil margarine, cold pressed oil, no salt but sea salt.

"Most of the margarines are quite neutral in taste," says Fraser. "Butter will change the taste. Remember, we don't have some sort of hate on for animal products — that's not true at all. We want the taste of the vegetables to come through, that's all."

The fruits section contains individual fruits, a series of fruit dressings for individual fruits or fruit salads, between one and two dozen fruit drinks, a very short section of fruit hors d'ouvres, fruit mixtures, fruit salads and a very imsection on fruit sauces — such as bananas and kumquat puree.

"The beauty of this is that the vegetarians love it and so do the people who love meat. That's never happened before," said Bill. "It's pretty hard to take a carob walnut loaf to put it with your steak."

For vegetables the settup is exactly the same, "and every fruit and vegetable is available at your regular grocers."

The Frasers are selling the clothbound paperback of La Cuisine Naturelle for $14.95 per copy plus $2 postage and handling. A deluxe Chef's Edition in ringbinder format is $46 plus $3.50 handling.

"Word of mouth is what sells books, says Bill. "And we're in it for the long haul."

Their address is W.B. Fraser Canada Ltd., P.O. Box 46256, Station "G", Vancouver, V6R 4G6.

CAULIFLOWER in Dijon sauce

1 medium cauliflower
1 recipe for "Dijon Mustard Sauce" (Recipe 556)

Preparation time: 7 minutes. Cooking time: 10-12 minutes.

1. Wash the cauliflower, and dry it well. Remove most of the stalks from the cauliflower, but keep the cauliflower intact. Set it aside.

3. Into a medium-sized saucepan, add 250 millilitres (1 c.) water, then set a vegetable steamer into the saucepan. Cover, turn the heat to High and bring the water to a boil.

4. When the water has come to a full boil, turn the heat to Medium, remove the lid from the saucepan, put the cauliflower into the vegetable steamer and cover the saucepan. Steam the cauliflower for 10-12 minutes or until it is fork-tender.

5. When the califlower is ready, place it in a warm serving dish, and pour the hot "Dijon Mustard Sauce" over it. Serve immediately.

Serves: 4.

2. Coarsely chop the rinds and the pulp, and put each into separate small saucepans. Add half the honey and half the water to each saucepan, stir well and bring the mixtures to a boil. Cover the saucepans, turn the heat to Low, and simmer the mixtures until they are quite tender. Stir them often.

3. When done, remove both mixtures from the heat. Put them both into separate sieves, and puree them through the sieves into one bowl. Stir well, and cool.

4. Cover the puree, and refrigerate until ready to use.

By DR. L.L. COLEMAN

Can antihistamine drugs be taken indefinitely without doing any harm? I have a year-round allergy that gets worse in the spring and the fall. Doctors have not been able to find the exact thing that provokes my allergy.

T.E.D.

Dear T.E.D.:

Histamine is a substance which is produced in many tissues and cells in the body. It plays an important role in body growth, secretions in the stomach and in the blood circulation. It has been noted that excessive amounts of histamine are found in the blood of people who have hay fever, asthma, hives and other allergic conditions.

Antihistamine drugs were created in an effort to counteract the excess histamines that are formed in an allergic person. These drugs are readily excreted from the body in the urine. It is for this very reason that sustained doses are necessary if the annoying symptoms are to be controlled.

It is rare that antihistamine drugs, even when taken over a long period of time, can be harmful.

It is well-known that drowsiness is one of the unwanted effects of the antihistamine drugs. Many people, under the supervision of their doctors, change from one anti-allergy drug to another until they find one that is effective and yet will not produce such drowsiness.

Some people, especially middle-aged men, may find that the antihistamine drugs interfere with free and easy urination. If this occurs, it should be brought to the attention of the doctor. The symptom disappears once the drug is withdrawn.

There are now a number of new blood tests (RAST and PRIST) by which allergic offenders can be pinpointed. Have you had these done? They might prove interesting.

Dear Doctor:

I've been told that I have a deviated septum in my nose. I'm 17 years old. I want to know if it will get worse if I don't have an operation.

Carl J.

Dear Carl:

It is estimated that more than 90 per cent of all people have some deviation of the nasal septum that divides one side of the nose from the other. Surgery is performed only when the septum, composed of cartilage and bone, exerts pressure on the delicate tissues of the nose (turbinates) or interferes with adequate breathing.

The operation is a beneficial one when carefully chosen in selected cases. The deviation of the septum does not become more marked with time.

Fennel good as herb or food

By BEATRICE COMAS
Christian Science Monitor

Fennel, a tall-growing plant with feathery, bright green foliage and yellow flowers, is both an herb and a vegetable. It chiefly is valued for its slightly curved, fragrant grayish-green seeds but also is an interesting vegetable when poached or boiled. It has a warm, sweet taste, similar to anise.

Fennel seeds are used to flavor sausages, soups, breads, pastries, sweet pickles and fish. The delicate leaves are used mostly as a garnish, for flavoring salads and, when finely chopped, for enhancing sauces.

Florence fennel, native to Italy, where it is called finocchio, grows to only a foot tall, with stalks that resemble celery and a bulbous white base. The stalks can be sliced and served with other raw vegetables and an herb dip. They also may be braised or baked, in any way suitable for celery.

Here are some recipes using fennel, both as an herb and a vegetable. The first is a salad of French origin, and combines the licorice taste of raw fennel with the crunch of chopped walnuts.

FENNEL-WALNUT SALAD

1½ pounds small fennel bulbs
Ice water
¼ cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
Salt and freshly ground white pepper
¾ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
½ tablespoon fresh or ½ teaspoon dried chervil or tarragon

Chill a medium-size salad bowl. Remove fennel tops. Snip and set aside onetablespoon for garnish. Cut away hard outer stalks. Trim base. Slice bulb crosswise into very thin slices. Chill in bowl of ice water for 5 minutes. Drain well and dry on paper towels.

Combine cream, lemon juice and mustard. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Just before serving, combine fennel and walnuts in chilled bowl. Add dressing and toss gently. Garnish with herbs and fennel leaves. Serves 6.

FENNEL MEATBALLS IN SAUCE

⅔ cup fine soft bread crumbs
¼ cup beef broth or water
1½ pound lean ground beef
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 large clove garlic, crushed
1½ teaspoons fennel seed, crushed
1 teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon oregano

TOMATO SAUCE

2 cups onions, minced
1 large green pepper, cut in ½-inch strips lengthwise
⅓ cup chopped parsley
1 14- to 16-ounce can tomatoes
1 15-ounce can tomato sauce
2 large cloves garlic, crushed
1 teaspoon mixed Italian herbs
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon fresh ground pepper
¼ teaspoon oregano

In large bowl soak bread crumbs in broth or water. Add remaining meatball ingredients and mix thoroughly. Shape in 2-inch balls. In large heavy kettle over medium heat brown meatballs in their own fat. Do not crowd. Remove from kettle. Discard all but 3 tablespoons drippings.

To make sauce, add onions to kettle and saute, stirring occasionally, until tender. Stir in remaining ingredients. Add meatballs. Partly cover and simmer, stirring occasionally until sauce is thick, about 1½ hours. Serve over cooked pasta. Serves 6.

ROAST PORK WITH FENNEL SEEDS

1 4-pound center cut pork loin roast
3 cloves garlic, slivered
Salt and freshly ground pepper
1 tablespoon fennel seeds, crushed
2 small white onions, peeled
½ cup chicken broth

Have butcher cut away chine bone to make roast easier to carve. Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Make gashes at various points in fat of roast and between meat and rib bones. Stud with garlic slivers. Sprinkle roast with salt and pepper to taste. Rub fennel seeds on top of roast.

Place roast meaty side down in shallow baking pan. Chop chine bone in pieces and scatter around roast. Add onions.

Bake, basting frequently for 30 minutes. Turn bone side down. Continue baking and basting 30 minutes more. Pour off all fat from pan. Add chicken broth and cover roast lightly with foil. Bake 30 to 45 minutes longer. Serve hot or cold. Serves 6 to 10.

Chicken breasts with ham, covered with cheese sauce

I find when I travel in Europe there is, generally speaking, one dish that sticks in the memory for each village and town in which I dine.

It may be a simple omelet consumed in a small out-of-the-way inn in Burgundy; a wonderfully perfumed andouillette sausage hot from the fire in Sens, or spit-turned chicken cooked to a turn a kilometer or so from Bresse.

During a visit to Italy some years ago, we dined on a fine dish for which the city is known, a veal chop Modenese.

It was an exceptionally tender, white-fleshed cut of veal, bone in, breaded and topped with a slice of prosciutto and Fontina cheese.

The chop had been baked in a hot oven until the cheese took on a glossy, melted luster and still dribbled down the sides of the chop when it was served.

I have quite successfully duplicated this dish at home. On a recent occasion, however, I tried to reproduce it using a simple, inexpensive pound or so of skinless, boneless chicken breasts. It works admirably.

When I made this preparation a few days ago, I was able to buy imported Fontina, which is delectable both as a "melting" cheese as well as for a cheese tray. It is not easy to slice, however. I found that I could best "shape" the cheese, after cutting off a thin slab, by putting it on a flat surface, covering it with plastic wrap and pounding it lightly with a flat mallet. In Modena the dish was served with mashed potatoes.

SUPREME DE VOLAILLE MODENESE
(Chicken breasts with cheese and ham)

2 whole skinless, boneless chicken breasts, about 1¼ pounds
1 egg
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
1 teaspoon peanut, vegetable or corn oil
1 cup fine fresh bread crumbs
¼ cup flour
3 tablespoons butter, preferably clarified
4 thin slices ham, preferably prosciutto, 4 thin slices cheese, preferably Fontina, although Swiss or Gruyere may be used.

1. Preheat the oven to 400 degrees.

2. Using a sharp knife, split the chicken breasts lengthwise down the centre. This will produce four pieces. Cut away the peripheral bits of fat from each piece. Place each piece between sheets of plastic wrap and pound lightly with a flat mallet.

3. Combine the egg, salt, pepper and oil in a flat dish. Beat well to blend.

4. Put the bread crumbs in another flat dish. Put the flour in another flat dish.

5. Dip each chicken piece first in flour, then in egg and finally in bread crumbs. Pat lightly with the flat side of a heavy kitchen knife to make the crumbs adhere.

6. Heat the butter in a heavy skillet and just as it starts to turn brown add the chicken pieces. Cook about four minutes or until the pieces are nicely browned on one side. Turn and cook about four to five minutes until golden brown on the other side.

7. Arrange the chicken pieces on a baking dish. Cover each piece with a slice of ham. Top the ham with a slice of cheese.

8. Place the dish in the oven and bake 10 minutes.

HOW TO MAKE FINE FRESH BREAD CRUMBS

Put enough coarse-textured French or Italian bread cubes into the container of a food processor to make one cup. Process until fine. Line a bowl with a sieve and add the crumbs.

Press and shake the crumbs through the sieve. Discard the crumbs that do not pass through the sieve.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT . . .
By WALTER CHRISTEN

Warm weather starter: gazpacho Bloody Mary. Process fresh garden vegetables and tomato juice. Add vodka just before serving.

More for baked potatoes: split open, fill with seasoned creamed spinach, and top with a poached or soft-fried egg.

Sprinkle parmesan cheese on vegetable soup for a special tang.

This sounds too easy to be true. Brown cut-up chicken in 2 tbsp. bottled Red Russian dressing, then simmer for 30 minutes with a sliced onion in the rest of the dressing (from an 8-oz. bottle). Serve with rice or pasta.

* * *

Ordinary custard pie? No SIR! Bake a shallow shell with puff pastry, fill with rich cooked custard, and chill. Now sprinkle with a layer of brown sugar and broil — carefully — until the sugar melts and carmelizes.

Nouvelle cuisine reaches far

craig claiborne

If the much-heralded nouvelle cuisine of today's French kitchen has altered to a striking degree the flavors (which are lighter), textures (which are firmer) and presentation (which is more studied) of food, it has also in many establishments altered the table service.

In old-style cooking of luxury restaurants, the food — roasts of lamb, duck, squab and so on — was often sent to the dining room to be carved and served by a maitre d'hotel. It was transferred to individual plates and served. This has now been altered.

With nouvelle cuisine, Pierre Franey recently observed, the traditional manner of carving in the dining room is rarely feasible.

"Many of the young men in today's kitchens are simply not trained to do a perfect job of carving and serving the food tableside for each guest," he said. "In nouvelle cuisine, the roasts, birds and so on are carved, arranged on individual plates and garnished in the kitchen. For the waiter it is only necessary to serve the guests. The food looks better and is hotter that way. Besides, who could afford to have tableside carving in this day and age?"

It is in the field of desserts that one finds the most dishes that might well be classified traditional nouvelle. These include sherbets and ices made with various exotic flavors such as passion fruit or melons. The kiwi tart seems to be the darling of the modern pastry maker.

Why the kiwi? It is an exotic-looking fruit — its fuzzy brown skin enclosing an improbably green, tiny-seeded, sweet interior — but has a rather bland flavor. Chefs who practice nouvelle cuisine are hard put to explain how and why this fruit, unheard of in the Western world 20 years ago, came to play such an imposing role in the desserts of nouvelle cuisine. But I recall a sheaf of promotional material that passed across my desk a score or more years ago. I am under the impression that kiwi was first introduced in this hemisphere with a fevered contest among chefs of America and Western Europe to develop kiwi recipes, with travel and a handsome sum of money as a first prize.

SORBET AUX FRUITS DE PASSION
(Passion fruit sherbet)

4 cups fresh or bottled passion fruit puree.
1 cup super-fine sugar.

1. Combine the passion fruit puree and sugar in a mixing bowl. Blend well.

2. Pour the mixture into the container of an electric or hand-cranked ice cream freezer. Freeze according to manufacturer's instructions.

Yield: About 1 quart.

Note: Fresh passion fruits are rarely available in this country. Bottled passion fruit puree may be purchased in delicacy shops.

SORBET AU MELON
(Cantaloupe sherbet)

2 ripe, unblemished cantaloupes, about 2 pounds each
1 cup water
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice.

1. Cut the cantaloupe in half and scrape out the seeds. Cut the cantaloupe halves into wedges. Using a sharp knife, cut away the skin from the flesh of each wedge. Cut the flesh into cubes. Discard the skins.

2. Put the cantaloupe flesh into the container of a food processor. Process to a fine puree. There should be about four and one-half to five cups. Chill.

3. Combine the water and sugar in a saucepan. Bring to the boil. Cook about five minutes. Let cool. Chill.

4. Combine the melon puree, syrup and lemon juice.

5. Pour the mixture into the container of an electric or hand-cranked ice cream freezer. Freeze according to manufacturer's instructions.

Yield: About 6 cups.

TARTE AU KIWI
(Kiwi custard tart)

1 baked pie shell (see recipe)
2¼ cups pastry cream (see recipe)
4 to 6 ripe kiwis
¼ cup apricot preserves
1 tablespoon water.

1. Place the pie shell on a flat surface.

2. Spoon and scrape the pastry cream into the pie shell and smooth it over.

3. Peel the kiwis and cut them into quarter-inch-thick slices. Arrange the slices overlapping in concentric circles from the outside to the center.

4. Combine the apricot preserves with the water in a small saucepan. Cook, stirring, until blended. Brush the kiwi slices all over with the apricot glaze. Serve at room temperature.

Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

CROUSTADE
(Pie shell)

12 tablespoons cold butter
1½ cups flour
2 tablespoons sugar
2 to 3 tablespoons ice water.

1. Preheat the oven to 400 degrees.

2. Cut the butter into small cubes and add them to the container of a food processor. Add the flour and sugar.

3. Start processing while gradually adding the water. Add only enough water so that the dough holds together and can be shaped into a ball.

4. Roll the dough out on a lightly floured board to an eighth of an inch thickness. Fit it into a 10-inch metal quiche or flan pan. Trim off the edges.

5. Line the pastry with wax paper and add dried beans to cover the bottom.

6. Place in the oven and bake 10 minutes.

7. Reduce the oven heat to 375 degrees. Bake 10 minutes longer.

8. Remove the pie tin from the oven. Remove the beans and wax paper. Return the pie shell to the oven and bake three to five minutes.

Yield: 1 baked pie shell.

CREME PATISSIERE
(Pastry cream)

1½ cups milk
½ cup creme fraiche (see note)
3 egg yolks
⅓ cup sugar
½ teaspoon pure vanilla extract
3 tablespoons cornstarch.

1. Put the milk and creme fraiche in a saucepan and bring just to the simmer.

2. Combine the egg yolks, sugar and vanilla in another saucepan and beat with a wire whisk until light. Add the cornstarch and beat to blend.

3. Gradually add the hot milk mixture, beating rapidly with the whisk. Bring just to the boil while stirring vigorously and immediately remove from the heat. Pour and scrape the sauce into a mixing bowl. Let cool.

Yield: About 2¼ cups.

Note: Creme fraiche may be made at home or purchased from delicacy shops.

All eyes on veggies

Now is the time to take advantage of the natural goodness of fresh summer vegetables. Not only are freshly picked vegetables the most appetizing and attractive in appearance, they are also at the peak of nutritional quality. If your fresh vegetables come from the supermarket rather than your back yard, choosing those that look "garden fresh" will be your assurance of best quality.

Leafy vegetables should not be wilted or brown. Choose vegetables that are uniform in size — underside vegetables are immature and may lack flavor; overside ones will be tough or fibrous. Avoid vegetables that are limp, soft or have bruises.

Once you have selected your vegetables with care, preservation of their nutrients and flavor by proper storage and cooking methods is equally important. Vegetables should be stored for short periods, cleaned and prepared just before mealtime and served promptly. Wash vegetables well but avoid soaking them in water. Serving vegetables raw is quick and easy and they are at their best nutritionally when served this way. For those times when you are cooking vegetables, use methods to preserve flavor and nutrients. Vegetables baked or boiled in their skins retain a high percentage of nutrients. Many fresh vegetables can be cooked without peeling if they are well scrubbed. If you peel vegetables, remove only a thin outer layer because many nutrients are concentrated just under the skin. Stir-fry, steam or cook in a small amount of boiling water using a tight fitting lid. using the cooking liquid in soups, sauces or gravies provides an added nutritional bonus because of the vitamins and minerals dissolved in it. Reheating leftover vegetables drives off more nutrients so it is better to marinate leftover vegetables and use them in a salad.

A fresh vegetable's naturally good flavor is the main part of its appeal. Don't mask it with rich sauces or flavoring. Be imaginative in using herbs and spices to season vegetables and avoid the over use of salt and butter.

Vegetables are important in everyone's diet. They provide nutrients, bulk, are low in calories and because of their great variety, add interest to many meals. Broccoli, Brussels sprouts and green peppers are excellent sources of Vitamin C. Vitamin A is provided by orange, yellow and dark green vegetables. Serve vegetables often. Care in selecting and cooking them will ensure that the fresh vegetables you serve your family are tops in flavor and nutrition.

VEGGIE DIP

250 mL plain Yogurt
75 mL mayonnaise
15 mL chopped onion
5 mL dill weed
15 mL chopped parsley
5 mL seasoned salt
5 mL dry mustard
2 slices bacon, cooked and crumbed

Combine all ingredients in a bowl, stirring until well mixed. Serve with a selection of fresh vegetables such as carrot sticks, celery sticks, radishes, cherry tomatoes, cucumber or zucchini slices, cauliflower or broccoli flowerets, mushrooms and green pepper strips. (Makes 300 mL).

MARINATED TOMATOES AND CUCUMBERS

3 medium tomatoes
1 medium long English cucumber
125 mL wine vinegar
5 mL oregano
2 mL thyme
2 mL Sugar
5 mL salt
1 mL garlic salt
10 mL chopped parsley

Cut tomatoes and cucumber in thick slices. Arrange alternately in a shallow dish. In a jar, combine remaining ingredients except parsley. Shake until well mixed; pour over tomatoes and cucumbers. Marinate vegetables in refrigerator at least 4 hours, basting occasionally. Drain tomatoes and cucumber; sprinkle with parsley. (4 Servings).

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Make purchases which relate to travel, vacation or special study. Family domestic situation, home surroundings could dominate your personal scenario. Be diplomatic, especially during discussions about money. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio natives figure prominently.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Setback will boomerang — in your favor. Know it and take heart! Some illusions come tumbling down, but you can rebuild on a more solid structure. Aries native will be sympathetic in connection with payments, investments and collections.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Pressures, responsibilities and authorities are very much a part of your personal scenario. Capricorn, Cancer natives figure prominently. Older people are drawn to you and become allies. You can learn from experience of others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Take one step at a time, maintaining moderate, steady pace. Accent on basic issues, employment, health, communication with relative in transit. Aries, Libra natives play prominent roles. Special service may have to be discontinued.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): New hope, love, personal magnetism and creativity — these are spotlighted. Another Leo and an Aquarian could play key roles. Imprint personality, style. Take initiative, stress originality, independence. In matters of speculation, stay with the numbers 1, 10, 19 and 28.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Lunar aspect coincides now with reunions, trips, special favors performed by relatives, good news from afar — and solution of money dilemma. Gemini, another Virgo and a Sagittarian figure prominently.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Moon position promotes flurry of activity, special, social and artistic endeavors. Horizons expand — you find fractical ways of dealing with inflation. You get answers if you make inquiries.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Emphasis on collections, payments, decisions on what is essential, what should be discarded. Revise, review, check details, be thorough — and aware of possibility of hidden clauses. Aquarius, Leo and another Scorpio figure prominently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Perceive potential — display faith in your own ideas, concepts. Scenario features change, variety messages and posible travel plans. Gemini, Virgo and another Sagittarius native figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Steer away from direct confrontations. Make changes requested by family member. Much occurs behind scenes, you could be asked to articulate views of special club, group, or organization. Good news on way concerning finances.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Aura of creativity, romance and euphoria prevails. Key is to win allies, to express yourself in unique, individual manner — and to stay with number 7 in matters of speculation. Pisces, Virgo natives figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Power, authority, intensified relationship, promotion, added recognition — these are spotlighted. Take lead, outline aspirations to one in position to direct policy. Make room for yourself at top! Capricorn, Cancer persons play significant roles.

IF JUNE 26 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are a "survivor." You build, perceive trends, seldom do anything halfway — and most of your relationships are "serious." Capricorn, Cancer persons ar willing to trust their life savings to you. December could be one of your most memorable months of 1980, a year featuring special associations, changes, travel, freedom to imprint your own style. If single, you could marry. If married, there could be an addition to family. Married or single, you rebound from past restrictions — you are winking at enormous success. Odds are this will be much more than a mild flirtation.

Veteran grocer defies St. Helens

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — The ash may come again and the ground may shake, but grocer Elizabeth Reese isn't budging from the little grocery she's tended for the past 47 years in the shadow of Mount St. Helens.

Despite the latest eruption, which sent more ash pouring down from the sky, Mrs. Reese refused to leave her home and grocery in the red hazard zone, 15 miles from the volcano's crater, because "there's no need to go out now."

"I'm doing fine," Mrs. Reese said in a telephone interview. "I have no fear of the mountain now. There is no bulge on this (south) side, and the north side is the weak side. If anything happens, it's going to happen over there. All we have to worry about is a little ash."

Old cures best cures

LONDON (AP) — Home remedies for migraine headaches — such as going to bed in a dark room with a damp towel on your head — may be more effective than the current arsenal of pills and medicines, a new study shows.

question & answer

Q. A long time ago my mother told me a story about a lobster, an unidentified flying object and a small cannibal child. Do you know the story?

A. That tale appears in Irma Rombauer's The Joy of Cooking, (Bobbs-Merrill). The little cannibal is making his way through the jungle with his mother when a strange flying object passes overhead.

The child says, "Ma, what's that?"

She quiets him with, "Don't worry, sonny. It's an airplane. Airplanes are pretty much like lobsters. There's an awful lot you have to throw away, but the insides are delicious."

Q. Years ago I picked up a restaurant menu from a small inn near Nice. One of the dishes is listed as patafla. Are you familiar with this?

A. I have seen the name in only one source book — Elizabeth David's A Book of Mediterranean Food (Horizon Press, New York), which first appeared about 30 years ago. She describes patafla as a kind of salad served in a sandwich.

It consists of chopped tomatoes, onions, sweet red peppers, pitted black olives, pitted green olives and gherkins or sour pickles all blended in a bowl.

To this you add olive oil, a sprinkling of paprika and salt and pepper. Slice a crusty loaf of French bread and pull out the soft inner part. Cut the soft part into small cubes and add it to the vegetable mixture, then stir. Spoon the vegetable mixture into the two halves of bread and combine, sandwich fashion. This is chilled well and then sliced.

The sandwich, Miss David adds, is best made a day in advance.

Q. Most recipes for lobster state that when the lobster is split for eating, you should remove and discard the small tough sac near the eyes. A friend of mine says that this is done because the sac is poisonous. Is this true?

A. There is an old wives' tail to that effect. I feel quite certain, however, that if you bit into it, you would only find it unpleasant, like biting into a nasty bit of shell. To my mind it is no more poisonous than the lungs of the lobster. I can't imagine anybody wanting to swallow either one.

Q. I heard or read a story years ago attributing the name marmalade to Mary Queen of Scots or some British ruler when she became ill. It was related to the French word malade. Do you know this story and is it true?

A. I do remember that bit of trivia and it is pure nonsense. As I reconstruct it, Mary Queen of Scots became ill while dining on new confiture that her French chef had devised. The French maid, who attended her, ran to the kitchen and said, "Ma'am est malade," and thus marmalade. Heaven knows who conceived that bit of idiotic whimsy. The name marmalade derives from the French marmelade, which comes from the Portuguese marmelada meaning "quince jam." The Portuguese word for quince is marmelo.

An entree of 'crock au vin' could be your compromise

your partner's cookbook

By MIKE McGRADY

We live in the golden age of specialized cooking tools. There is a special appliance this year for just cooking frankfurters, another for hamburger patties, a third for grilled cheese sandwiches. Doubtless someone somewhere is even now ironing the kinks out of a brand new, personal, single-egg boiler. One of the most popular of the relatively new cooking appliances is called the crock pot, and there are at least a dozen models for the crock-potter to choose from.

What sells the crock pot is convenience. This is the scenario: the family cook wakes up early, tosses some meat and vegetables in a crock pot, flicks a switch, goes off to work, comes home in the evening, lifts the lid and discovers — aha! — a ready-to-eat dinner still hot in the pot. Okay, that the theory. Here's what happens in real life: up in the a.m. . . . the meat and vegs . . . the switch . . . the job . . . back home . . . lift up the lid and — aha! — soup.

Instead of using this new-fangled contraption, tonight we're going to use an old-fashioned pot on top of an old-fashioned range, and you're going to be cooking one of the great French classics, coq au vin.

The Staples: Make sure these are all on hand: salt, pepper, butter, milk, eggs, onions, bay laves, garlic, thyme, parsley, vanilla.

The Shopping List: Roasting chicken (4-5 pounds, cut into sections); bacon (4 strips); wine (Beaujolais, 2 bottles); small white onions (2 pounds); half-pound of mushrooms; parsley; chocolate (6 ounces, sweet); cream (one cup); French bread (or Italian).

Prepare in Advance: The chocolate custard. Mix together one cup of milk and one cup of cream and cook over medium heat. Stir in one package of sweet chocolate (6 ounces). When choclate has melted and just before mixture comes to a boil, remove from heat.

In a separate bowl, beat together six egg yolks and one teaspoon of vanilla. Add this to the chocolate mixture, a little at a time, beating between additions. Refrigerate in bowl.

4:45 p.m.: And now for the main course. You'll be using a heavy cast-iron pot with a tight-fitting lid. In the beginning — but only in the beginning — you'll put this over a medium-high heat. Fry the bacon until it's cooked through, then remove the strips of bacon from the pot.

Rinse the chicken pieces under cool water. Salt and pepper them generously. And fry them in the bacon fat until they are lightly browned on all sides. If more fat is needed, add a chunk of butter. Remove the chicken pieces from the pot.

5:10 p.m.: Peel and chop two large onions and saute them in the same pot, adding butter as necessary. Cook them until tender. Add about three-quarters of a bottle of Beaujolais and turn the heat to high, allowing the wine to cook down for a few minutes. (Caution! Don't try to "cheap-out" with inferior wine; the difference between coq au vin and chicken stew is the quality of the wine).

As the wine is cooking, add two bay leaves; three cloves of garlis, minced fine; a pinch of thyme; a small handful of parsley, chopped, and the bacon slices, crumbled.

And finally, the chicken pieces. The wine should just cover the chicken. If more is needed, add it. Then turn heat to low and cover the pot tightly.

6 p.m.: Peel the white onions and cut the tips from the mushrom stems — but do not slice either vegetable.

In a small frying pan over medium heat, melt a large chunk of butter. Add the peeled onions and saute them — shaking the pan from time to time so that they are lightly browned on all sides. The total cooking time should be about 10 minutes.

Set the onions to one side and, using the same pan, saute the whole mushroom in butter.

6:15 p.m.: Add the onions and the mushrooms to the pot. Open the second bottle of Beaujolais.

6:20 p.m.: Preheat oven to 360 degrees. Slice the loaf of French bread lengthwise. Butter both sides and add minced garlic or a combinations of minced garlic and minced parsley. Bake until the butter has melted and the bread has started to brown. The bread will be used in your mopping-up action.

6:30 p.m.: Remove pot from the fire. If sauce seems too watery, remove the other ingredients for moment and boil it down some more. If it seems too thick, try it that way — it'll be delicious.

Just any old sponge won't do when applying liquid floor wax. Detergent and cleaners still linger in a much-used sponge. Use it for waxing and you'll see a streaky wax job because the wax can't penetrate the cleaners still in the sponge. A fresh, new sponge will prove that the old wax is still good.

Be stingy with expensive lawn fertilizer. Too much can cause a toxic effect in the soil and burn turf. If you use weed and feed, steer clear of ornamental shrubs and trees to prevent root damage (I lost a dogwood this way). Cut into the sod and roll back a corner; more than an inch of thatch is too much for nutrients to penetrate and get to grass roots. Thatch that thick needs de-thatching.

Because gold and silver prices have soared, alternative metals are being used for many home accessories and curios, and prices of these metals are on the increase. (Remember that fact when you're repricing items for a yard sale or giving them to charity.)

Pakistan raps Israel tactics

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Pakistan, on behalf of the 40-state Islamic Conference, called on the UN Security Council to impose sanctions against Israel if it annexes Arab East Jerusalem. But Israel told the council to turn a deaf ear to Pakistan's "shrill voice of incitement, hatred and fanaticism."

Pakistani Foreign Minister Agha Shahi said firm and immediate action is needed to block annexation of the eastern sector of the ancient holy city.

Voodoo bones uncovered

MIAMI (AP) — The discoveries of a burlap bag of old human bones and the freshly slaughtered remains of several animals indicate a voodoo-like cult is flourishing in Dade County, a medical examiner says.

The bones, including a skull encrusted with candle wax and streaked with rust, were found Saturday in a cemetery. Three days later the remains of a sheep, three goats, a guinea hen and several chickens were discovered packed in crates by a roadside 10 kilometres away.

They are indicative of the santeria cult — a voodoo-like mixture of primitive African beliefs and Catholicism — said Dr. Charles Wetli, an assistant county medical examiner.

"The animal remains were probably being used for white magic," said Wetli. "They were probably used to help somebody going to trial who wanted a good verdict or somebody who was really sick and dying.

"But the human bones are generally used by practitioners of black magic, who believe they have the power to harm or kill someone."

The human remains were found at Graceland Memorial Park in Little Havana, packed with the skeletons of a chicken and a turkey. The skull was that of a woman in her 30s or 40s, said Dr. Donna Brown, another medical examiner. Also in the bag was the skeleton of a woman in her 20s. None of the bones bore marks of violence.

An expert in dental records will try to identify the human remains.

"It could have been a grave robbing, it could have been a murder or it could have been a completely legal sale of the bones," Wetli said of the bones.

Wetli said the cult, which originated in Cuba centuries ago, has a large following in southern Florida. "I don't think there's any real way of knowing how many people are involved," he said. "All I can say is it's very widespread."

India massacre toll up

NEW DELHI (AP) — The discovery of a mass grave in the village of Athara Card has pushed the death toll in violence between local tribes and immigrant Bengalis in northeastern India to 2,000, the Indian Express newspaper reports.

Tribesmen surrounded the village, set it on fire and "systematically hacked to death about 1,000 inhabitants," a witness told The Express. The newspaper report orginated in the Tripura state capital of Agartala, about 400 kilometres east of Calcutta.

The victims, members of the Hindu Bengali community, emigrated to India from predominantly Moslem Bangladesh. An extremist faction of a Tripura political organization led the attack, aimed at punishing the Bengalis for creating unemployment and housing and food shortages in the impoverished state, the newspaper says.

The report said police discovered 12 rotting bodies at the entrance to Athara Card, adding that the attackers apparently threw hundreds of bodies into a nearby river.

Officials from neighboring Bangladesh reported sighting the bodies of about 400 beheaded men, women and children floating down two rivers in the violence-ravaged state.

Official confirmation of the incident at Athara Card or when it took place was not immediately available. The Express reported that when a police party visited the site of the alleged massacre it was beaten back by the tribesmen who outnumbered them.

DO-IT-YOURSELF SPACE SHIP is one step closer after the successful 60-second tie-down test Tuesday. Robert Truax, who built Evel Knievel's rocket-powered bike for his Snake River jump, is hoping that his ship, the Private Enterprise, will help initiate an age of industrial space research. He's planning a manned flight next year. The engines, from Atlas intercontinental ballistic missiles, initially cost $70,000 each. Trux bought them as military surplus for $115 apiece.

Oil tanks for ransom

PERTH, Australia (AP) — A 20-year-old man was being questioned today by police in connection with a plot to extort $500,000 from four Perth oil companies, authorities said.

The oil companies were told that if they did not meet the extortioner's demands, oil-storage depots and service stations valued at several million dollars would be blown up.

The four companies involved are Golden Fleece, Ampol, British Petroleum and Shell.

Police said the four oil companies received letters on June 11 demanding they pay $125,000 apiece to prevent the bombing.

Swiss Family Robinson techniques save seven

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Four children and three adults shipwrecked on a remote island off western Australia survived five days by drinking seawater distilled in a pressure cooker, eating fish caught with shark bait from an improvised hook and staying warm with fires started with a binocular lens.

They learned the techniques in scouting, and one of the survivors said the experience reminded him of Swiss Family Robinson.

The seven were rescued Tuesday when a trawler sighted a makeshift flag they had made out of their sunken yacht's mast and a sail which they placed on a high cliff.

The seven were the yacht's skipper-owner, David Foreman, 37, a former boy scout; Dennis Vlasschaert, 37, a boy scout leader; his wife, Susan, a 36-year-old cub scout leader, and the couple's four children, all with scout training — Simon, 16; Nicola, 15; Timothy, 11 and Robin, 10.

Exhausted, hungry and suffering from mild exposure but otherwise unhurt, the group was taken to Carnarvon, where they had set out last Wednesday on a fishing expedition.

Foreman said Mrs. Vlasschaert "picked up rocks, built a low rock wall as a barrier against the cold winds and rain because we were all shivering."

"Everyone was assigned to some tasks, including one which involved watching for debris floating ashore from the wreckage. We picked up a mattress, wooden shelving, a cupboard and decking."

They used a sailcloth as a makeshift tent.

S. Africans burn policeman

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Striking black workers in South Africa's strife-torn industrial heartland returned to work today in a labor victory marred by the beating and setting on fire of a black policeman in a ghetto township.

Police said a constable identified only as Silesa was attacked by black youths in a black township near the Free State city of Bloemfontein Tuesday, drenched with gasoline and set ablaze and then stoned and beaten with sticks.

The officer, listed in serious condition, was attacked in the ghetto after approaching a house where hundreds of people had gathered to mourn a person killed in last week's racial riots, but police gave no motive for the attack.

The attack came as striking black workers in the Eastern Cape tentatively accepted a wage and benefit package giving them hikes of between 20 percent and 33 percent to bring their compensation more in line with white workers.

The agreement, expected to be ratified, was described as satisfactory by the workers' two major unions — the South African Steel and Allied Industries Union and the National Union of Motor Assembly and Rubber Workers.

The deal was struck after tense negotiations with Volkswagen, Ford, General Motors, SKF ball bearings and eight locally-owned steel, leather and auto component factories — all except the U.S.-run Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., which said it would continue talks with about 1,000 striking workers.

The agreement defused a potentially explosive situation in Port Elizabeth and Uitenhage, where violent clashes broke out last week between protesting workers and police armed with shotguns, automatic rifles and tear gas.

The workers originally demanded increases of up to 80 percent but settled for an increase of from $3.20 to $4.28 in the top hourly wage and a hike from $1.53 to $1.80 in the minimum wage for unskilled workers.

Before the judge

A 17-year-old who was an $1,000 instant winner on a lottery ticket was ordered to pay back the money after he pleaded guilty in provincial court Tuesday to theft over $200.

Trevor David Daunhauer of Black Creek, a community between Courtenay and Campbell River, was given a suspended sentence by Judge Lorne Pearce and placed on 18 months probation.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan told the court 70-year-old Mary Violet Knight was selling lottery tickets at a table set up outside Fairways Market, 272 Gorge Road West, on Feb. 22.

Daunhauer waited and watched until the woman was preoccupied before dashing up to the table and scooping $176 in cash and lottery tickets valued at $109 and running to a car with four juveniles in it.

Mulligan said the five youths drove to Prospect Lake where they divided the cash. They had thrown the tickets out along the way, he said.

The next day, Daunhauer and one of the juveniles retraced their steps and recovered the tickets, which they "scratched" and discovered they had some free tickets coming.

They turned the winning tickets in for other free tickets and one of them was an instant $1,000 winner. The two claimed the cash and split the proceeds.

Daunhauer was apprehended by Saanich police in a motel.

Defence lawyer Christopher Brennan said Daunhauer is enrolled in a cooking course at Malaspina College in Nanaimo and was seeking employment in Victoria at the time of the incident. Brennan confirmed that four other juveniles were involved and were dealt with in juvenile court.

Brennan said the full $500 had been recovered from the other juvenile and $350 from Daunhauer.

Those figures were disputed by Mulligan, who said $540 was recovered from the juveniles and $258 from Daunhauer, leaving a shortage of $487.

Brennan said his client is willing to make full restitution, but did not know where the money should go.

"One thing that worries me," Pearce said, "is a 17-year-old preying on a 70-year-old."

The judge said it was a callous attitude on Daunhauer's part and warned that if he came back to court on another charge, "the primary concern will be the protection of the public. You will be second."

In addition to the probation, Pearce ordered the youth to perform 60 hours of community service work, make restitution by Oct. 30, 1980, and arrange to meet his victim and apologize to her, if she agrees to it.

Two teenagers jointly charged with breaking into Victoria High School, 1260 Grant, about 5:30 a.m. Tuesday were released on their own undertaking to appear.

Thomas Wesley Boorman, 17, of 2040 Kings, and Michael James MacNeil, 18, of 1120 Summit, were remanded until Friday for election of their trial method.

Judge Blake Allan handed out concurrent, six-month jail terms to 29-year-old Robert Wayne Sharpe, 4968 Old Saanich Road.

Sharpe was found guilty of impersonation and trafficking in LSD.

The first charge was in connection with a May 13 incident when Sharpe was being arrested at the Bastion Inn beer parlor on another charge. He produced a social insurance card and Capilano College card in the name of Steven Dana Corlin. Victoria police later ascertained his real identity.

On the drug charge, Sharpe was arrested after selling an undercover officer 100 units of LSD for $250 on Sept. 6 at the Bastion.

Sharpe had a previous conviction on Sept. 28, 1979, for possession of a narcotic and was fined $75.

Court was told Sharpe is an American who is under a deportation order by Canadian immigration authorities.

Fined for drinking-driving offences were: James Thomas Richards, 20, of 3135 Davin, $450; Robert Alfred Gordon, 18, of 640 Kildew, $450; William Glenn Derksen, 26, of 9717 Fourth, $400; Dorothy Mary MacGregor, 60, of 1138 Oscar, $200; and Spasoje Ristic-Petrovic, 48, of 860 Royal Oak, $200.

MacGregor was fined an additional $200 for driving while under a 24-hour, roadside suspension.

'Wiggled' skewer could have been murder weapon - doctor

A pathologist testified in B.C. Supreme Court Tuesday a meat skewer could have caused the death of a William Head inmate on March 16.

Dr. Frank Perry of Royal Jubilee Hospital said the perforation made by a skewer pushed straight into the body would not fit the fatal wound of inmate William Engle.

But a skewer "wiggled" on entry could have made an entrance wound wider than the rest of the 10-inch wound that killed Engle, said Perry who performed the autopsy.

A meat skewer was entered by Crown counsel Nicholas Lott as evidence in the first-degree murder trial of Michael Thomas Leslie, 36.

Defence counsel Arthur DeMeulemeester asked Perry if the skewer, smaller than the opening of the wound, could have caused Engle's death. Perry replied affirmatively.

Engle died of a a puncture at least 10 inches long that went through his liver, the main vein carrying blood to the heart and into the right pulmonary artery, Perry testified.

William Head guard Steven Lord said he was on duty about 5 p.m. the night of the murder when Engle walked toward him holding his body just below his chest.

He was unsteady, walking with difficulty, he was pale and there was a large blood stain below his chest, Lord said.

Engle said: "Help me, I've been stabbed."

Guard Lloyd Glassford testified that Engle refused a stretcher and was helped to the prison hospital.

Engle was unco-operative in the prison hospital, Glassford said. He kept getting off the bed and tried to walk out the door.

Some remarks made during Monday's proceedings were incorrectly attributed in the Times to the accused, Leslie.

A conversation reported to have taken place between Leslie and food services officer Rosolino DeBenediitis was actually between DeBenediitis and the victim, Engles.

Under cross-examination, DeBenediitis said he cautioned Engles, not Leslie as reported Monday, to stay away from arguments. Engles replied that there was nothing happening he couldn't handle.

RCMP lays on eight-hour Active Pass patrols

RCMP will patrol Active Pass throughout the summer and lay charges against sports fishermen who impede B.C. Ferry traffic, a police spokesman said Tuesday.

Inspector Bruce Terkelson, head of detachment policing in the Victoria subdivision, said the pass will be patrolled eight hours a day between Saturday and Sept. 7.

The stepped-up enforcement of the Canada Shipping Act and small vessels regulations is aimed at solving the long-standing dispute between ferries and fishermen over the use of Active Pass between Galiano and Mayne Islands.

Last Aug. 9, the 137-metre Queen of Alberni ran aground on Collinson Reef at the southwest end of the pass.

Although sports fishermen were absolved, public meetings were called to discuss safety in the pass.

During three days of hearings last November, the B.C. Ferry Corp. asked for a ban on sports fishing in the narrow, six-kilometre-long pass and RCMP admitted they lacked manpower to control it adequately.

The coast guard refused B.C. Ferry's request.

Since 1977, RCMP have issued 140 warnings to Active Pass sports fishermen for hampering ferries, charged 11 boaters and won 10 convictions. Maximum penalty is a $500 fine, six months in jail or both. The courts have issued fines of $75 to $200.

Active Pass is midway between Vancouver Island and the mainland. The B.C. Ferry Corp. has altered schedules to minimize the possibility of ferries meeting in the pass.

Mair abortion plan rapped

Health Minister Rafe Mair's proposed pilot project to reduce the number of abortions in B.C. came under attack Tuesday from the National Association of Women and the Law.

Victoria lawyer Deborah Acheson, a B.C. delegate on the association's steering committee, said Mair's project — planned for the B.C. interior — is essentially an anti-abortion program and would victimize women who lack support services that are available in urban centres.

She said the association believes the decision to terminate a pregnancy should be made by the woman herself in a free and informed environment.

"If Mair wants to help young people in B.C. he should provide support to Planned Parenthood instead of jumping on the anti-choice, pro-life bandwagon," Acheson said.

"He should also ensure that contraceptive information as well as contraceptives are made available in schools."

Quebec delegate Lucette Quirion of Montreal said Mair's position is as ludicrous as the recent proposal by the Quebec government to offer a $240 bonus for bearing a child.

Preventing abortions or buying babies will not solve the problems presented by a lack of adequate services, she said.

Mair has said the pilot project is aimed at reducing the number of abortions and that he did not believe women had the right to arbitrary abortion.

The project will involve education and counselling of young people. If successful it will be carried out in other areas of the province.

The program was criticized by Rosemary Brown (NDP-Burnaby-Edmonds) who said Mair ignored Planned Parenthood's pleas for funds for an education program.

The National Association of Women and the Law's steering committee met here to discuss the organization of the national biennial conference, to be held in Halifax next Feb. 21-23.

The conference will discuss issues related to pensions, income tax, day care and health services.

Forces show on Tuesday

Next Tuesday — Dominion Day — CFB Esquimalt will hold Armed Forces Day 1980.

Lieutenant-Governor Henry Bell-Irving will officially open the gate to the dockyard at noon.

The yard and fleet will be open to the public until 4 p.m. Many displays have been organized.

In addition to the ships being open to the public, there will be Grizzly, Jeep and Zodiac rides in addition to harbor tours.

A highlight of the day will be an air show, starting at 1:55 p.m., featuring Argus and Voodoo aircraft from CFB Comox.

There will be a free double decker bus service from the Inner Harbor in front of The Empress to the dockyard. The run will start at noon and the last bus will return to the Inner Harbor at 4 p.m.

This Sunday members of the base and fleet units of CFB Esquimalt will take part in a colorful ceremony and parade on the front lawns of the Legislative Buildings.

The parade is the Showing and Marching Off of the Queen's Color of the Royal Canadian Navy (Pacific Command) and the parading of the Queen's Color of Maritime Command.

The lieutenant-governor will review and inspect the parade, which will be commanded by Cmdr. Dennis Cronk, commanding officer of the destroyer-escort HMCS Gatineau.

The public is invited and should be at the Buildings by 10 a.m.

Following the ceremonies, the Queen's Color of the Royal Canadian Navy (Pacific Command) will be placed in the Christ the King Chapel at Naden.

For those who cannot attend Sunday's ceremony there will be a full dress rehearsal on the legislative lawns on Saturday at 9 a.m.

The ceremonies have been timed to celebrate the 70th anniversary of the creation of the RCN.

Eaton's balks on marketing data

Eaton's manager Reginald Hind refused in B.C. Supreme Court Tuesday to reveal the company's marketing secrets.

Hind had been asked how much of the retail market the company expects to capture if it opens a department store in the proposed Tillicum shopping centre.

"Our market share would increase by about eight per cent," Hind replied, but would not elaborate.

Lawyers for Saanich and Tillicum developers Cal Investments Ltd. objected to the question by Capital Region District lawyer Don Farquhar.

Farquhar was questioned on the relevency of the point by Mr. Justice John Bouck.

The lawyer said he was attempting to prove that adding Eaton's to Tillicum would make it uneconomical for the proposed Jacklin Road shopping centre in Langford to proceed, which is contrary to the regional plan.

Farquhar said he didn't know how much "eight per cent" refers to and that he wanted Hind to be more specific.

The judge reserved decision on the matter until Thursday.

Cal Investments lawyer Brian Wallace said Farquhar was comparing two entirely different merchandising lines.

There is no evidence that people would spend their money at a Jacklin shopping centre if they didn't spend it at Eaton's, he said.

Farquhar also called regional planner Charles Wakelin, former Sooke regional director Charles Perkins and Ian Thomas, marketing consultant for the Jacklin shopping centre developer, to the stand.

Thomas said the developer, Ridley Brothers, planned an 185,000-square-foot shopping centre for the Jacklin site.

The Jacklin centre is 7.1 miles from the Tillicum site and will contain a department store, food store and a number of specialty shops.

Teamsters brass' pay defended

DETROIT (UPI) — Teamsters Union officials say there's nothing out of line about the salaries of union executives, nearly 30 of whom receive between $100,000 and $200,000, say dissidents in the union.

The reform-minded Teamsters for a Democratic Union Monday released a report based on U.S. Department of Labor figures indicating 25 top union officers received more than $100,000 last year and four — including President Frank Fitzsimmons — received more than $200,000.

The report also said 20 relatives of Teamster officials are on the union payroll and three of them receive more than $100,000 compensation annually.

Left-wing strike shuts El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — A two-day strike called by leftists trying to topple the civilian-military junta paralyzed the capital of El Salvador on Tuesday, closing almost all businesses and government offices.

There were reports of scattered clashes between strikers and security forces, but there was no "show of force" as strike organizers had promised.

The junta reinforced army patrols in the capital and sent jet warplanes screaming overhead.

A left-wing alliance, the Revolutionary Coordinator of the Masses, called for all workers to leave their jobs Tuesday and Wednesday to protest "massacres" of peasants, and demand release of political prisoners.

The junta of three civilians and two army colonels was installed following a coup last Oct. 15, that ousted the government of right-wing President Carlos Humberto Romero.

It freed scores of political prisoners and initiated land reform and bank nationalization programs in a move to appease the left. Those actions enraged ultra-conservatives, who accused the junta of "opening the door to communism," while left-wing extremists vowed to settle for nothing less than a Marxist government.

Political violence has increased since the coup, and local human rights groups place the death toll since January at more than 2,500.

In neighboring Honduras, a group of 40 Roman Catholic priests issued a statement accusing El Salvadoran troops and rightists of killing 600 peasants in a frontier village. It said the "genocide" occurred May 14 in La Arada.

Col. Marco Aurelio Gonzalez, a spokesman for El Salvador's national guard, said: "The report is absolutely false. The left is trying to provoke us."

Carter proposes Afghan neutrality

MADRID (AP) — President Carter proposed a transitional arrangement for governing Afghanistan to prevent "a mass slaughter" of pro-Soviet elements if Soviet forces are withdrawn, a senior Carter administration official said today.

But U.S. intelligence analysts say that they see no evidence the Soviet Union is prepared to remove its troops from Afghanistan, despite the announcement from Moscow this week that one division was leaving.

The Carter official said assurances that a slaughter would be prevented and that a staunch anti-Soviet government would not emerge might be necessary ingredients for an eventual Soviet withdrawal. He said Carter's proposal was presented to the Soviets last month.

"We recognize that the Soviet Union has a legitimate security interest in Afghanistan not being transformed into an anti-Soviet outpost of some sort," the official told reporters aboard Air Force One, as the president flew to Madrid from Belgrade on the next-to-last day of an eight-day European tour that ends in Lisbon on Thursday.

The administration official, who spoke on the grounds that he not be identified by name, also said the United States has received "some reports" that the Soviet Union has increased its number of soldiers in Afghanistan to more than 100,000 from 85,000 in recent weeks.

The official said that State Secretary Edmund Muskie discussed Carter's proposal for a transitional arrangement for Afghanistan with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko when they met in Vienna in mid-May.

Carter, completing a 24-hour visit to Yugoslavia in which he praised the nonaligned Communist state and the late Tito, said Tuesday night that the United States would like to discuss a "transitional arrangment" for instituting a new and independent and neutral government in Afghanistan.

In a toast at a banquet given in his honor in this war-scarred capital on the Danube, the U.S. president renewed a suggestion that apparently fell on deaf ears last February.

The United States hopes it will be taken more seriously this time as it becomes increasingly evident to the Soviet Union that its military forces face a protracted guerrilla war and are unable to gain complete control of the southwest Asian country.

'Control by U.S.' flayed

TEHRAN (UPI) — Ayatollah Khomeini said today Iran's problem is not infighting among the nation's political factions but rather "the deeper issue" of America trying to "control Iran's destinies."

Khomeini spoke for an hour to the Islamic Council of Iranian Workers and other groups who gathered at his home at Jamaran, outside Tehran.

"I warn the whole country and all Iran's clergy of the danger facing Islam and the clergy," Khomeini said. "They must repel all these mullahs who have infiltrated among the people in disguise and are molesting them without divine . . . authority. They are not my representatives. They are out to stir up disturbances and chaos in my name."

Referring to disturbances accompanying inter-faction strife, Khomeini said:

"No. That is not the problem. That is just on the surface in order to cause disturbance.

"The deeper issue is the issue of America. The issue is that America should come here and control our destinies," Khomeini said.

The death toll from a bomb blast Tuesday night in the southwest Iranian city of Ahwaz rose to 11 today when two people died in a hospital from their injuries, state radio reported.

Revolutionary guards in Ahwaz, capital of the oil-producing province of Khuzestan, said 56 people were injured by the explosion in a city street.

Brothel boats in Rotterdam

ROTTERDAM (UPI) — Bombarded with complaints over prostitutes filling residential streets, Rotterdam's city executive has approved a plan to put some of them out to sea — on floating brothels.

The executive Tuesday granted licenses to two "sex boats." Twelve such boats will be moored at three points along the Rhine harbor.

Each brothel will have 15 to 20 rooms, a cinema and a bar, officials said.

Opening lead — four of hearts.

Trump endplays are rare, but they can be very gratifying when they succeed. For an illustration of how they can be accomplished, consider this deal where declarer can make five clubs even though West holds two apparently certain club tricks.

West leads a heart to East's ace and East returns a heart, ruffed by declarer. When South then plays the ace of clubs, he learns that West started with all four missing trumps. This is a disheartening development, but if South does not panic and concede down one, he realizes that there is still a chance to make the contract.

Declarer's only real hope is to try to execute a trump endplay, and in order to accomplish this he must shorten his trump length. Accordingly, he first plays a spade to the queen and ruffs dummy's last heart.

Declarer next plays the A-Q and another diamond to the king. This may appear to be a dangerous way to play, since West might be able to ruff any one of the diamond leads. But South realizes that he cannot possibly make the contract unless West was dealt at least three diamonds, and he is therefore forced to assume that this is the case.

When it turns out that West started with four diamonds, South finds himself well on the way to victory. He ruffs dummy's fourth diamond and is now down to four cards — the K-7 of spades and K-J of trumps. West's holding at this point consists of the ten of spades and Q-10-7 of trumps.

Declarer next plays a spade to the ace and a spade back to his king. West ruffs, but is forced to return a trump from his Q-10 into South's K-J, thus allowing declarer to make the contract by scoring six trump tricks, three diamonds and two spades.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"That's their number," Bob declared. "And it an easy one to remember."

Mike smiled. "One of your gimmicks? Okay, let's have it."

"Well, you subtract the sum of the squares of its two digits from the square of their sum," Bob replied. "That's one more than half the number."

Easy? Just try!

Suspect held for tot slaying

CALGARY (CP) — Harold Smeltzer, 24, was charged today with the first-degree murder of a five-year-old girl whose body was found in a garbage can near her home five months ago.

Police Inspector Bill Crabbe said Smeltzer was arrested in Calgary on Tuesday and will appear in court later today.

Kimberley Thompson was reported missing Jan. 24 by her mother after the girl failed to return home from school. The following day, police, neighbors and friends launched a search and found her body wrapped in a garbage bag, dumped in a garbage can at the rear of a house not far from her home.

Crabbe said Smeltzer also faces two charges of sexual assault, arising from the assault of two young girls at knifepoint in a wooded area near Glenmore Dam last week.

Third miner's body found

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (CP) — The body of Rejean Beauregard, 36, of Elliot Lake, the third miner killed in a cave-in at the Denison Mine last Friday, was found today, mine officials said.

Weeds can be good garden notes

One of my father's favorite gardening stories was of the day he offered a neighbor some portulaca plants, an offer which apparently sent the gentleman into an uncharacteristically violent rage, forcing my father to retreat in haste.

Motivated only by pure benevolence, my father had offered some of his favorite flower plants — the portulaca, or moss rose. It's a low-growing annual with succulent-like stems, producing masses of tiny rose-like flowers in many colors in dry, sunny spots. The blooms close on dull days, only to open with the touch of the sun.

However, the neighbor unfortunately hadn't yet made the acquaintance of this beauty of the garden. His only contact with portulaca had been with the weed purslane (Portulaca clearacea). He apparently had been struggling with this persistent scourge of the garden diligently for years. And here was someone who wanted to give him more!

Weeds indeed used to be a mark of a slovenly gardener. Nice gardeners didn't have them. However, there have always been folk who tended to see some value in them.

I just happened recently to come across a report dated 30 years ago of an agricultural experiment in which weeds were allowed to grow along with corn. When the weeds were a couple of feet high, and before they set seed, they were cut off and allowed to lie between the rows as mulch. The roots were left to grow another crop of mulch.

I suppose this method could be adapted to the home vegetable garden. Of course, any weeds growing close to small, delicate vegetable seedlings would have to be pulled to give cultivated plants space. Proponents of this method claim that the weed roots help aerate the soil and channel air and water-born nutrients into the soil.

Weeds can be regarded as fertilizer gatherers for the garden. Each spring, once the first planting is done, one of our greatest pleasures is to tour the garden each evening to see what has sprouted since our last inspection. But by the time a row is well up and ready for its first cultivation, most often the row is massed with weed seedlings as well.

Frankly, I have always rather enjoyed this first weeding-thinning-cultivating operation. Down in the soft dirt with my trusty claw cultivator, I pull the weeds, toss them in a basket, thin out the row of flowers or vegetables and pull some fresh earth up to the row. Then I pass over the row with a sprinkling of fertilized water. This year, I am trying the liquid seaweed. Previously, I tended to use fish emulsion which also perked up the young plants quite well.

We became rather sold on the benefits of seaweed last year. Having moved into a new house in late spring on a lot that had been dense forest, the only spot we could even dig was a strip beside the driveway. It was pure sand, almost totally devoid of any known nutrients. My husband planted potatoes on a bed of seaweed — and that row, planted in early July, yielded a full winter's supply of potatoes. And a year's supply in a spud-loving Irishman's family is no mean amount!

Getting back to that first weeding-thinning operation, have you noticed each year that once this chore is done the plants really spring into action and begin to grow rapidly? It's as though you've scratched their little backs and now they're stretching in sheer enjoyment of the attention.

The benefits of weeds and weeding continue though. The small weeds, gathered for the compost, return so much to the soil. Still young, they break down quickly. I never leave them lying in the rows myself because if it should happen to rain, at least some will surely reroot.

Indian family life on skids

OTTAWA (CP) — Family life on Indian reserves is breaking down under the weight of alcoholism, unemployment and poor living conditions, says a federal report.

Divorces are increasing, suicides by Indians aged 15-24 are three times the national average, death rates among young and middle-aged Indians are two to four times greater and there are more violent deaths.

Juvenile delinquency among Indians is almost three times the national rate while the percentage of Indians in prison is much higher than their proportion of the population.

The report was made public Tuesday by the Indian affairs department and deals with social, economic and political change on and off reserves since 1960.

It was compiled to help Indian and goverment officials deal with Indian Act amendments, assist Indians to define a socio-economic strategy and aid the department in shifting from an administrative to a supportive role.

There are 300,000 status Indians in Canada receiving benefits and protection under the Indian Act. The report does not cover the estimated 500,000 Metis, of mixed-white blood, or the 500,000 non-status Indians.

The report says the Indian population has increased 40 per cent in the last 20 years, creating a greater demand for social services, education, housing and jobs.

Consequently, federal government expenditures for such programs have also been increasing steadily.

Ottawa spent about $240 million on social support programs in 1978-79, up from $85 million in 1970-71.

And more money is needed for housing. The report says 11,000 homes are urgently required but noted that only 2,200 new units are built each year. Almost 20 per cent of reserve houses contain two families and more than 50 per cent have no running water or sewage disposal.

High unemployment rates and the poor social conditions on reserves have forced Indians to move to urban settings.

Alcohol remains a serious problem.

The report says officials working in health services for Indians estimate that between 50 and 60 per cent of their illnesses and deaths are alcohol-related.

Mom charged in tot's death

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A five-day search for a missing one-year-old girl ended Tuesday with the child found dead and the mother charged with second-degree murder.

The mother, Denise Aimola, 19, of Kamloops was taken into custody by RCMP shortly after the baby's body was found in a sage-covered field in this city in south-central B.C.

Pinned to the blanket in which the baby was wrapped was a note which police said was "apologetic in nature", with a signature thought to be a pseudonym.

In a brief court appearance today, the mother was remanded in custody until Monday for psychiatric examination to see if she is mentally fit to enter a plea and to participate in a hearing.

Discovery of the body came soon after the child's father, Sergio Aimola, 21, made a public plea for his daughter's safe return.

Marca Aimola was reported missing Friday.

Aimola, an apprentice mechanic, said he was sleeping less than three metres away from his daughter, in her crib in another room, and he didn't hear or see anyone entering the home through the unlocked front door.

Mrs. Aimola was taken into custody after returning from Kelowna, about 175 kilometres south, where she had been staying since reporting Marca's disappearance, RCMP Insp. Don Render said. She came to the station voluntarily.

BNA claim likely soon

LONDON (CP) — Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said today he hopes to make proposals to Britain in the fall or early next year on constitutional reform.

As he emerged after a 2½-hour working luncheon with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Trudeau told reporters he "assured her I would be meeting the premiers in September after a full summer of work and that we hope to come either in the fall or next year with proposals for, I hope, a final recourse to the British Parliament to end this situation."

Trudeau said he did not discuss how Britain might respond if the provinces and the federal government cannot agree on methods to bring the constitution, a British act, to Canada.

He said he is optimistic about resolving the situation under which the 113-year-old British North America Act has to be amended in Britain.

"I didn't ask her to speculate on any other hypothesis.

"I told her I was a Liberal and therefore optimistic and that everything would come up roses in September."

However, Trudeau would not rule out the possibility there could be difficulties in getting British consent to send the constitution to Canada should there be disagreements between Ottawa and the provinces.

Romp in park ends in death for local man

An 18-year-old man was killed in Beacon Hill Park just before noon Tuesday when a log he and two companions were trying to flip end over end crashed down on him.

Police said Kenneth Wilson, of 271 Michigan Street, and two 20-year-old friends were in the park playground area when the freak accident occurred.

Police said the three were trying to lift the log into a vertical position so it would flip end over end.

Wilson's two companions managed to scramble free as the log crashed down.

The log was about 7½ metres long and roughly 20 centimetres in diameter.

Higher inflation, no growth in '80

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conference Board in Canada says the latest forecasts are more pessimistic about the performance of the economy this year.

The results of a survey released today show most experts expect no real growth in the economy in 1980. The average forecast for inflation is 10.1 per cent, slightly higher than expected at the beginning of the year.

Real growth in 1981 is estimated at an average of two per cent, an indication that few forecasters believe conditions will improve markedly in the near future.

The surveys were conducted between April 22 and May 12 and reflect large increases in U.S. interest rates during the first quarter of the year. The board says that meant both higher rates in this country and reduced demand in the U.S. for Canadian exports.

The average forecast of the experts says the unemployment rate this year should be eight per cent, down marginally from January predictions. Corporate profits are seen as slightly stronger with an average increase of four per cent. Predictions about the merchandise trade surplus are up a bit at $3.2 billion. And housing starts are expected to be 168,000 units, down from January forecasts of 182,000.

About half of the forecasters assumed crude oil prices will rise at least $4 a barrel this year. The actual increase will depend on the outcome of talks between Ottawa and the producing provinces.

Food prices are expected to rise slightly faster than the over-all consumer price index.

Labor costs are likely to grow somewhat slower, but productivity is expected to fall.

Import prices could increase by 14 per cent, depending on inflation in other countries and foreign exchange rates.

The board expects a modest growth in the money

Union rejects offer, building halt closer

VANCOUVER (CP) — The threat of a province-wide strike in B.C.'s construction industry increased following union rejection Tuesday of an offer by representatives of more than 800 construction companies

The 45,000-member B.C. and Yukon Building and Construction Trades Council — which expects to have strike vote results by July 11 — has rejected an offer from Construction Labor Relations Association of a $3.15-an-hour increase over two years, without cost of living protection.

The council is seeking a $3.50 an hour increase — about 23 per cent over two years — and a cost of living allowance in a two-year agreement.

Also part of the companies' package was a proposed affiliation clause which would have permitted construction workers to refuse to work at job sites employing non-union people.

The clause would protect council affiliates' jobs from invasion by right-to-work groups — a movement which is absorbing much of the construction industry contracts in Alberta and parts of the U.S.

But council president Roy Gautier said the offer does not go far enough.

The unions are also seeking language in their contracts which would permit workers to stop work at any job sites where unions not affiliated with the 17-member building trades council are working.

The council has been engaged in a lengthy jurisdictional battle with the International Woodworkers of America because its members have been engaged in the construction of new sawmills.

The trades feel that work belongs to them and conceivably the protective clause they are seeking in their contracts would allow them to shut down a site where there were IWA people doing such work.

Chuck McVeigh, president of the contractors association, said employers have given in to the request that building trades members can refuse to work beside non-union people.

Playgirl going to the dogs

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Full-page newspaper advertisements by Playgirl, the women's magazine featuring nude male centerfolds, have been whetting appetites for weeks.

The magazine promised its August centerfold would be "one of America's beloved stars of family motion pictures whose handsome profile and heroic exploits have thrilled audiences around the globe."

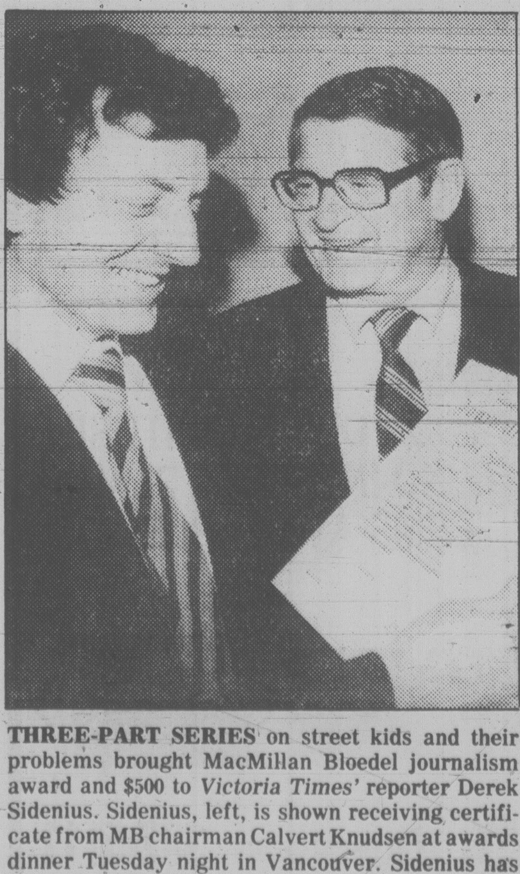
Speculation has been running high. And the newspaper ads headlined "Grin and Bare It!" only fuelled the mystery.

Well, the August issue of Playgirl is off the presses, and sprawled on his back atop white satin sheets is the mystery celebrity — Benji — the canine motion picture star.



THREE-PART SERIES on street kids and their problems brought MacMillan Bloedel journalism award and $500 to Victoria Times' reporter Derek Sidenius. Sidenius, left, is shown receiving certificate from MB chairman Calvert Knudsen at awards dinner Tuesday night in Vancouver. Sidenius has been with the Times since September, 1973. New nurse code to clarify strikes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian nurses, meeting here, resolved Tuesday to rewrite a section of their code of ethics dealing with withdrawal of service during strikes.

Sister Simone Roach of Nova Scotia, author of the new code of ethics, said a committee which will be formed at the direction of a convention resolution will change the section because it was open to misinterpretation.

A sentence in the section reads: "When a nurse is working under conditions which violate justice, the withdrawal of need services to patients as a means of resolving such injustice, is unethical."

Most of the 1,000 nurses at the meeting knew the clause condemned total withdrawal of services and not strike action in which emergency and other vital services are maintained, Sister Roach said.

The section will be changed so the code cannot be used against nurses in strike situations, she said.

The code was drawn up to replace one used by the International Council of Nurses.

Universite de Montreal labor analyst Roland Foucher told the convention a survey of Quebec nurses showed most saw themselves as employees and not as professionals.

If hospitals wish to have their nurses see themselves as professionals, they will have to change their management practices, Foucher said.

Professional groups will have to reflect concerns and needs of their members and be able to wield power in order to prevent replacement by trade unions, he said.

Professional nursing groups must work together with bargaining agents to ensure the strongest voice possible for nurses when changes are made in the health care system, said Louise Lemieux-Charles of the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario.

"I do not deny that the collective bargaining movement has created conflict for nurses who view it as being contrary to a professional ethos of altruism and individualism," he said.

"However, many sociologists and nurses have written of the importance of work setting influencing the professional's behavior. It would seem to me that the nursing unions may in some cases be more accessible and perhaps more effective than professional associations in situations where nurses experience conflicts of interest between their accountability to the profession and their responsibility to their employer."

Sue Rothwell, former president of the Registered Nurses Association of B.C., was elected first-vice president of the national association for a two-year term.

Rothwell takes office today, along with new CNA president Shirley Stinson of Alberta. Helen Preston Glass of Manitoba became CNA president-elect by acclamation, and will take office in 1982.

Mac-Blo awards

VANCOUVER (CP) — Moira Farrow, a feature writer at The Vancouver Sun, and Beverley Dalton of the Kamloops Daily Sentinel each won $1,000 prizes in MacMillan Bloedel Ltd's 22nd annual journalism awards announced Tuesday.

Farrow's award came in the above-25,000 circulation category for her series on southeast Asian boat people.

Second award of $500 in that category went to Derek Sidenius of the Victoria Times for a feature on Victoria's street kids.

The award paid tribute to Sidenius for outstanding writing, journalistic initiative, public service and contributing to the understanding of important issues.

Ian Fraser of The Vancouver Sun received the third award of $250 for a series on the B.C. Resources Investment Corp.

Dalton won in the under-25,000 circulation group for stories on the forest industry.

Man stabbed

A man stabbed Tuesday afternoon in a parking lot at Fort and Langley is in stable condition in hospital.

The man's identity is being withheld until relatives are contacted.

Police believe the victim was stabbed during a scuffle in the parking lot about 2 p.m.

He managed to escape and make his way to Yates Street before collapsing.

Centre zoning illegal

In a precedent-setting decision Mr. Justice W.J. Wallace of the B.C. Supreme Court has quashed a city of Victoria rezoning bylaw which permitted the proposed convention centre to be built on the waterfront.

He agreed with Dr. James Martin, who leases property next to the centre site, that the bylaw should be overturned on grounds that the city did not notify property owners and occupants within and next to the zone amended by city council.

Mayor Bill Tindall said today he will ask city council Thursday night to appeal the decision. He said council will also be asked to authorize preparation of another bylaw so the city can again legally rezone the property.

The procedure of introducing the bylaw, notifying owners and tenants within 70 feet of the zone, holding another public hearing and giving it three readings could take another month, he said.

The city did not comply with the requirements of Section 720 of the Municipal Act, which says that owners and occupants of property within a certain distance of the affected property must be notified personally of the upcoming public hearing, Mr. Justice Wallace said.

Mayor Tindall said the city based its actions on a 1976 amendment to the Municipal Act which defined two types of rezoning — only one requiring notification. Mr. Justice Wallace apparently decided the legislation as worded doesn't mean what the legislature intended, he added.

City solicitor Jakob de Villiers had argued last week when the Vancouver justice heard the case here that there were two types of rezoning. The case in point was the second kind which did not require notification.

It was advertised in the paper but he admitted the city did not notify owners individually.

The city earlier this year added public buildings to the list of permitted uses in the CH-3 (commercial harbor zone) around the Inner Harbor, to permit construction of the convention centre and make some existing buildings conform to the bylaw.

De Villiers claimed this was not changing land from one zone to another zone, but the judge disagreed.

De Villiers said today the ruling establishes a precedent for all British Columbia municipalities.

Firemen laud WCB change

The 2,500-member B.C. Professional Firefighters Association is generally pleased with recently-announced changes to Schedule B of the Workers Compensation Act but has a few questions to ask.

Board chairman Dr. Adam Little announced the changes to the schedule last Friday.

Not included was a proposal, hotly contested by the firefighters' association, that the schedule cover heart attacks to firefighters only when they occur within 48 hours of a fire or other unusual stress.

However, the board went ahead with its plan to drop specific coverage for firefighters for chronic lung disease.

Association president Terry Erskine said in an interview Tuesday the firemen will be seeking a meeting with board officials and attempt to get clarification in writing of a number of points.

Included in the firefighters' list of questions are the following:

—Will there be retroactive coverage for those affected by the changes;

—Will retired firemen be covered;

—Will firemen's past claims be reviewed in light of the changes.

The association also wants to know if it will be getting some financial asistance from the WCB to help cover the expenditure of $18,000 for a 68-page report from the firemen on the WCB's initial proposals for amending Schedule B.

The schedule lists the industrial diseases for which the presumption is given in favor of the workers if they contract the given diseases under stipulated working conditions.

However, Erskine said the WCB says lung coverage will be covered under the respiratory irritation section of the schedule.

Justin's a gent

FP News Service

VATICAN CITY — When the wooden doors of the Papal library opened and the prime ministerial party was signaled to enter, eight-year-old Justin Trudeau, wearing a pair of blue suede sneakers, looked up at a black-robed cleric and said, "I don't want to go in first."

Pope John Paul Tuesday granted a 50-minute private audience with Prime Minister Trudeau hours after he arrived in Rome from Venice.

Although slightly bemused by the powerful figure in the starched white robe, Justin listened quietly as the Pope told him he has the same name as one of the Catholic church's great saints, and he was obviously pleased when the Pope presented him with gifts — rosaries and holy medals to take home to his two younger brothers.

Justin's gentlemanly conduct was in contrast to that of another world leader's child — Amy Carter — who angered Italians with her rather bratty behavior when she and her presidential parent visited the Vatican prior to the Venice economic summit on Sunday.

Amy's manners were not the only thing that irritated Italians, who take a dim view of politicians electioneering behind the papal cloak.

Vets to get all of $35 raise

OTTAWA (CP) — War veterans will be entitled to the $35-a-month increase in guaranteed income supplement approved by Parliament last month, the veterans affairs department announced Tuesday.

The department said the increase, effective July 1, will not result in a veteran's allowance being reduced as is usually the case when he receives additional income for other sources.

The release also said a single veteran, or a veteran's widow, now will be allowed to earn up to $2,100 without the allowance being affected.

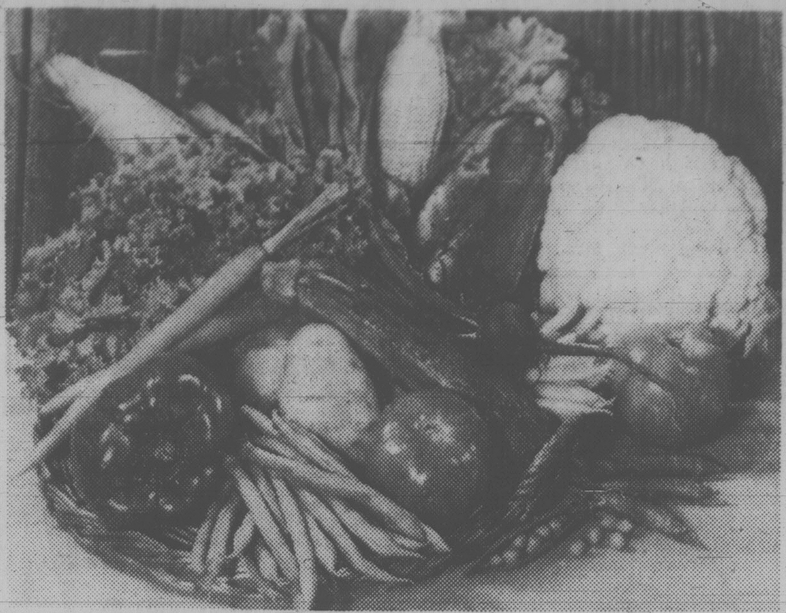
All eyes on veggies



Now is the time to take advantage of the natural goodness of fresh summer vegetables. Not only are freshly picked vegetables the most appetizing and attractive in appearance, they are also at the peak of nutritional quality. If your fresh vegetables come from the supermarket rather than your back yard, choosing those that look "garden fresh" will be your assurance of best quality.

Leafy vegetables should not be wilted or brown. Choose vegetables that are uniform in size — underside vegetables are immature and may lack flavor; overside ones will be tough or fibrous. Avoid vegetables that are limp, soft or have bruises.

Once you have selected your vegetables with care, preservation of their nutrients and flavor by proper storage and cooking methods is equally important. Vegetables should be stored for short periods, cleaned and prepared just before mealtime and served promptly. Wash vegetables well but avoid soaking them in water. Serving vegetables raw is quick and easy and they are at their best nutritionally when served this way. For those times when you are cooking vegetables, use methods to preserve flavor and nutrients. Vegetables baked or boiled in their skins retain a high percentage of nutrients. Many fresh vegetables can be cooked without peeling if they are well scrubbed. If you peel vegetables, remove only a thin outer layer because many nutrients are concentrated just under the skin. Stir-fry, steam or cook in a small amount of boiling water using a tight fitting lid. using the cooking liquid in soups, sauces or gravies provides an added nutritional bonus because of the vitamins and minerals dissolved in it. Reheating leftover vegetables drives off more nutrients so it is better to marinate leftover vegetables and use them in a salad.

A fresh vegetable's naturally good flavor is the main part of its appeal. Don't mask it with rich sauces or flavoring. Be imaginative in using herbs and spices to season vegetables and avoid the over use of salt and butter.

Vegetables are important in everyone's diet. They provide nutrients, bulk, are low in calories and because of their great variety, add interest to many meals. Broccoli, Brussels sprouts and green peppers are excellent sources of Vitamin C. Vitamin A is provided by orange, yellow and dark green vegetables. Serve vegetables often. Care in selecting and cooking them will ensure that the fresh vegetables you serve your family are tops in flavor and nutrition.

VEGGIE DIP

250 mL plain Yogurt
75 mL mayonnaise
15 mL chopped onion
5 mL dill weed
15 mL chopped parsley
5 mL seasoned salt
5 mL dry mustard
2 slices bacon, cooked and crumbed

Combine all ingredients in a bowl, stirring until well mixed. Serve with a selection of fresh vegetables such as carrot sticks, celery sticks, radishes, cherry tomatoes, cucumber or zucchini slices, cauliflower or broccoli flowerets, mushrooms and green pepper strips. (Makes 300 mL).

MARINATED TOMATOES AND CUCUMBERS

3 medium tomatoes
1 medium long English cucumber
125 mL wine vinegar
5 mL oregano
2 mL thyme
2 mL Sugar
5 mL salt
1 mL garlic salt
10 mL chopped parsley

Cut tomatoes and cucumber in thick slices. Arrange alternately in a shallow dish. In a jar, combine remaining ingredients except parsley. Shake until well mixed; pour over tomatoes and cucumbers. Marinate vegetables in refrigerator at least 4 hours, basting occasionally. Drain tomatoes and cucumber; sprinkle with parsley. (4 Servings).
